College Honors New Cadettes At Welcome Dance

Jack Lord's Aristocrats To Play from 9-12

Penn State's newest service group, the Curtiss-Wright Cadettes, will be welcomed to the campus by nearly 100 male escorts tonight at the Welcome Dance being held in the Nittany Lion Inn.

The dance is being sponsored by the Wartime Service Committee, an All-College committee that will take charge of welcoming all newcomers to campus. Represented on the committee are WSGA, Pan Hellenic council, IWA, IMA, Penn State Club, IFC and PSCA.

Co-chairmen Daniel Gillespie and Claire Weaver announced last night that WSGA donated $15 to the committee to be used in all future events of this type.

Jack Lord and his Aristocrats, will play from 9 p. m. to midnight. A short entertainment featuring Jane Abrahamson and the "Honeyboys," will take place during intermission.

Dance programs were distributed to the Cadettes at dinner last night.

There are a limited number of dance tickets on sale at the PSCA office in Old Main for couples who would like to attend the dance. Admission is 55 cents a couple.

Serving on the committee are John Burford and Hattie Van Riper, who will meet the girls at Watts Hall and introduce them to their escorts, Robert Dickey, Eugene Yeager, Ruth Storer, Ruth Sprague, and Margaret Ramaly.

Religious Groups Join to Observe Brotherhood Week

Next week has been designated by President Roosevelt as "National Brotherhood Week."

All student religious foundations of State College are joining in the sponsorship of a "brotherhood program" to take place at the Westminster Foundation, West Beaver avenue, next Sunday at 6:20 p.m.

The program will feature comments by Miss Ione Sykes of the Yale Divinity School. Miss Sykes was formerly associated with the Westminster Foundation here. A motion picture titled "The World We Want to Live In" will be shown along with a playlet, "Parable of the Three Rings."

A special dinner will be held in the Allencrest Tearoom honoring Rev. Charles Owen Rice, who will speak at Sunday's chapel; Rabbi Max Artz, visiting at Hillel Foundation; and Miss Sykes.

Serving on the Brotherhood committee are Robert Dickey, Cleo Mellot, Wallace Riley, Joseph Boscov, and Louis Ullman.

Rumor Corrected

Applications for admission to the Pennsylvania State College are still being received by the Registrar's Office, William S. Hoffman, registrar, emphasized in pointing out an error in yesterday's column, "Campuser," by Robert Kimmel. It was reported then that someone had been refused admission, but Hoffman points out that the statement is untrue and the practice is against the policy of the administration.

OWI Questions And Answers Discuss Future Education

This is the last in a series of questions and answers prepared by the Office of War Information. Education after the war and the future of liberal arts studies are discussed.

What changes in education may we expect as a result of this war?

The war will undoubtedly emphasize the necessity of technical and vocational education. In the development of our present huge war machine, both within the military services and within civilian services, men and women have specific jobs to perform. It is equally important that they be trained to do specific jobs in the post-war situation. Only in this way can we expect to secure maximum economic production results.

Quick forms of communication and the events of the war have made it clear at last to the great majority of people that this is a very small world and that we must be interested in the implications for our country of events and conditions in every corner of the world. Hence there is bound to be a great up-surge of interest in public print and in schools and colleges with respect to international affairs. The curricula in history and the social sciences will certainly be revised to take care of this situation.

There will also be a need for re-orientation to the new world of ideas and discoveries coming through science, and to the larger world of other peoples and other cultures with whom we must collaborate in establishing world order. To this end there must be a renewed concern for clarifying human values and aspirations toward which we can direct our group activities and our personal lives.

We used to be told that liberal arts were the basis of education. What is going to happen to liberal arts now? What is going to happen to small liberal arts colleges?

The liberal arts college must re-adjust itself to new developments in American life, but its basis is sound. The historic aim of liberal arts education was to give the individual some understanding of the major ideas and conceptions which have guided the thinking and action of our culture, as well as some awareness and sensibility to the values and insights needed for human relationships, as they were expressed in the arts.

The need for such education will be greater than ever after the war, and it is hoped that American educators will have the courage and imagination to provide a program of liberal arts education for living in the post-war world.

Coed Debaters Vie At Shippensburg

Traveling to Shippensburg State Teachers College this afternoon, the four women debate teams, accompanied by Coach Clayton H. Schug, assistant professor of public speaking, will compete tomorrow in the fifth annual debate tournament.

Question to be argued is, "Resolved that the United Nations should establish a permanent federal union with power to tax and regulate international commerce, to maintain a police force, to settle international disputes and to enforce such settlements, and to provide for admission of other nations which accept the principles of the union."

The cross examination style including 15-minute constructive speeches, 10-minute cross examinations, and 5-minute summaries, will be used, according to the coach.

The two affirmative teams are composed of Margaret K. Ramley, Ruth P. Sprague, Gertrude G. Rosen and Florence I. Jaffy. The two negative teams include C. Grace Goodlin and Rosalind B. Schnitzer, Ruth Clyde and M. Elizabeth Zimmerman.

In the tourney which will continue all day tomorrow, the College teams will compete in a total of 12 debates, with each team entered in four. Penn State teams placed second in last year's Shippensburg tournament and took both first and second places in the tournament held in Lock Haven in December.

Engineering Student Withdrawals Highest Despite Deferments

Despite the fact that Engineering students are among those granted deferments to continue college, this school leads in the number of student withdrawals for military service this semester and sixty-one of the former engineers are now serving with the Army, Navy, Air Corps or Marines.

This can probably be accounted for in that this school numbered the largest male enrollment on campus at the beginning of the semester, and all but 14 of those affected by the Army's call are freshmen.

Falling in second place, Lower Division has lost 36 to Army khaki, as well as one to the Curtiss-Wright program. Military action drew 33 from the School of Chemistry, third in order of withdrawals. Agriculture losses total 25; Mineral Industries, 17; Transition School, 11; Physical Education, 10; Education, 3; Liberal Arts, 3; and Graduate School, 2.

Optical Phenomena Talk At Meteorology Seminar

Central Pennsylvania Meteorological Seminar will meet in 121 Mineral Industries from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Monday.

A special feature of the evening will be Albert Miller's discussion on "Some Optical Phenomena of the Atmosphere," an explanation of the rainbow, halo, aurora, and sky aspect. Slides will be shown and an informal discussion will be conducted.

Alan Brunstein '44 will speak on "Hurricanes" at the following meeting of the Seminar. Both Alan Brunstein and Albert Miller are official observers of the College weather station.

The Army Meteorology course accounts for eight of these withdrawals, and the Curtiss-Wright program five, while the 50 additional students who left school for diversified reasons raises the total number of semester withdrawals to 253.

Cabinet Meeting

Jack R. Grey, All-College president, announces that the Cabinet meeting has been changed from Monday to Tuesday, 305 Old Main, 7:00 p.m.

Blue Key Donates Soph Hop Ticket To Victory Raffle

Blue Band To Be Featured at Game

Another prize, a ticket to Soph Hop contributed by Blue Key hat society, raises the total to four awards for the second Victory Raffle to be held during intermission of the Pitt-Penn State basketball game.

The game basketball, two $5 credit slips, and a Soph Hop ticket will comprise the awards to be given to the winning ticket holders at tomorrow night's game.

Appearance of the Blue Band is another added attraction of the raffle, originally sponsored by All-College Cabinet. Hummel Fishburn, band director, will lead the fans in singing the National Anthem before the athletic events begin. Music will be played intermittently throughout the evening, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Skull and Bones, Blue Key, Druids, Friars, and Parmis Nous hat society members will sell War Stamps for the affair. Albert Swan and John Watkins will sell stamps at the Corner Room tonight from 8 to 11 o'clock, while Laibe Kessler and Philip Mitchell will take over the duties from 2 to 4:30 p.m. tomorrow afternoon.

Purchase of a 25-cent War Stamp entitles the buyer to one raffle ticket, while three chances for the awards are given to purchasers of 50 cents worth of stamps. Stamps will also be sold at the balcony and main floor entrances of Rec all before game time.

The $5 credit slips were donated by Paul Mitten and the Charles Shop. Swan will draw the lucky numbers for the prizes.

Two more raffles will be held during the remaining two home basketball games.

Froth on Sale Tuesday

Froth will go on sale next Tuesday, G. B. M. "Mousey" Stein, the publication's business manager, announced last night. This Soph Hop issue, complete with four extra pages, is to be one of the finest of the current semester, they say.

Anyone having jokes for publication (they need not be of the drawing room variety) should shove them under the door of the Froth dungeon in Carnegie Hall any time this week.
