

WSGA To Sponsor Mass Meeting For Curtiss-Wright Cadettes Wednesday

Diener To Organize Women For House

To better acquaint the Curtiss-Wright Cadettes with the College, and to clarify any doubts they may have concerning campus organizations, WSGA is sponsoring a Cadette mass meeting which will be held in 110 Home Economics 6:30 p. m., Wednesday.

"It will be a very informal affair," Dorothy K. Brunner, chairman for the evening stated, "and Cadettes are asked to bring their student handbooks with them."

Patricia Diener, will organize the Cadettes for the House of Representatives. Miss Diener will supervise the election of president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, social chairman, two WRA representatives, an air-raid warden, and fire chief. Person chosen for president will represent the women in the House of Representatives.

Dorothy J. Jennings will lead the women in songs, Miss Brunner continued. Hattie G. Van Riper will welcome them to PSCA, and invite them to future PSCA functions. Adele J. Levin will announce the hours for the Cadettes at White Hall, and explain all athletic activities that effect them.

Marion C. Dougherty will state the Judicial laws which will effect them. Martha E. James will welcome sorority women who have houses represented on campus, as well as stray Greeks whom she will invite to use any of the other houses.

Dorothy Brunner, will explain IWA and also announce the hours when the Philotes room is open. Two cheerleaders will be present to lead the women in cheers.

Iota Sigma Pi, Honorary, To Hold Banquet Friday

Iota Sigma Pi will hold a banquet in State College Hotel at 6 p. m., February 26. Dinner will be followed by a lecture in the Home Economics building.

Miss Woodford, from the American Cyanamide Company in Stamford, Conn., guest speaker of the evening, will be entertained at a reception by the members in the Hugh Beaver Room immediately after the lecture.

Iota Sigma Pi will make Miss Woodford an honorary initiate at that time.

McKenzie To Speak

All members of the Riding Club are urged to attend a business meeting at the Club Stables at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Peter C. McKenzie of the Animal Husbandry Department will speak on showing horses. This talk is part of the preparation which the club is making for its part in the Little International Livestock Show, April 17.

'Informal Affair'

Dorothy K. Brunner, WSGA president, urged Cadettes to attend the mass meeting scheduled to be held in 110 Home Economics, 6:30 p. m. Wednesday. The affair, sponsored by WSGA, will be informal.

Women In Sports

Sophomore basketballers seem to have the interclass basketball tournament not-to-well in hand as the two more games loom on the White Hall horizon next week. A win meted out from the plucky frosh sextet will clinch the tourney for the sophomores—but, the frosh present a real problem.

The frosh sextet is the only real threat to sophomore supremacy. This squad trounced the junior-senior cagers, 36-22, and dropped a close one to the sophomores, 33-29. One win, one loss—all of which means trouble for the sophomores.

Let's look at the individual scores. Becky Walker, a frosh, leads all interclass cagers with 36 points in two games, followed by Sophomore Peggy Northrup with 30. Mary A. Jennings, another frosh, places third with 20 points. The best the sophomores have to offer in second place scoring honors goes to Mary K. Hoppel with 15 points. For individual scores, the frosh have the edge.

It may well be said that the junior-senior dribblers are practically out of the running, since their two attempts to annex a win have been spiked by both the frosh and sophomores.

The following schedule for next week's tilts has been released by Mary G. Longnecker, intramural chairman:

Tuesday, 7 p. m.—Frosh vs. Junior-Senior team.

Wednesday, 7 p. m.—Sophomores vs. Frosh.

A frosh win Monday night against the junior-senior squad followed by another win against the sophomores would make the soph cagers mighty unhappy.

Blackhawk in Chicago, the Palladium in Los Angeles, Manhattan's Hotel Astor, and the Cedar Grove, N. J. Meadowbrook. Each stay was extended beyond its original limit.

When Les Brown and his orchestra were in Hollywood, making "Seven Days' Leave" for RKO, they were playing nightly at the famous Palladium. Although they spent a full eight hours a day on the lot with the orchestra hearing the arrangements for the film, the production staff as well as Victor Mature and Lucille Ball could be found on hand at the dance hall to dance to the maestro's music.

Ginger Rogers and Cary Grant were two other stars who paid the Palladium a frequent visit while Les and the Band broke all attendance records for that ballroom.

IWA Meeting Monday; Record Dance Tonight

IWA will meet in 318 Sparks at 6:45 p. m. Monday, according to Marjorie A. Magargel, president.

All representatives and all independent women are urged to attend, Miss Magargel stated.

Everyone is invited to the IWA Recording Dance in Grange Playroom after the basketball game until midnight tonight, Miss Magargel concluded.

Ration Books Returned

All coeds who have not yet done so should obtain their sugar ration books from dormitory hostesses at once. Those who have lost their receipts are asked to report it to the hostesses so that they may investigate and then return the books.

Registration for War Ration Book No. 2 will take place in the Armory Monday, and students will be asked to present their first books before they can receive the new ones.

'Women In Chemical World' Topic Of Annual Marie Curie Lecture

Miss Lois W. Woodford, one of the outstanding women in the field of industrial chemistry, will give the fourth annual Marie Curie lecture in room 119 New Physics at 8 p. m. next Friday. She will speak on "Woman's Place in the Chemical World."

Miss Woodford has had an unusual opportunity to observe the position of women in chemistry. She holds the position of assistant to the Director of the Technical Service Division of the Research Laboratories of the American Cyanamid Company, where she selects and manages the highly trained and technical personnel. Under her supervision are more than 120 chemists, and a number of metallurgists, physicists, engineers, and other professional workers.

In the Research Laboratory, investigations are carried on in organic, colloidal, and physical chemistry. The speaker's associations with these experiments further prove her qualifications.

Miss Woodford received her degree in chemistry from Mt. Holyoke College. She is a member of the American Institute of Engineers. The Marie Curie lectures were inaugurated in May, 1940 by Palladium Chapter of Iota Sigma Pi, women's chemistry honorary. The lectures were designed to give women chemistry majors and the public in general an opportunity to meet well known women chemists and to become informed of their work.

Faculty members and their wives, townspeople, chemistry students, are invited to attend the lecture.

Brunner Gives Statistics

Urging further cooperation from woman students, Mrs. Henry Brunner, in charge of surgical dressings for State College, last night revealed statistics of the semesters' work. During January, 128 coeds working 388 hours turned out 1620 dressings, 380 short of the 2000 per month quota.

Hekzebiah Hawkins' Decree Gives Coeds Their Chance

Go get your man, gals. The five-to-one ratio may be dwindling but there're still enough male specimens in Nittany Valley for you to practice the time-honored tradition of Sadie Hawkins, from up Dogpatch way, and catch yourself an escort to Spinster Skip.

As all enterprising coeds know, this chance comes once a year, according to the decree of Hekzebiah Hawkins, mayor of Dogpatch, who initiated the custom in order to give his fair daughter an opportunity to get herself a husband.

Hill folk from miles around will join in the festivities on March 12, and since the time is drawing nigh the best catches on campus will go to local Sadie Hawkinses who are the quickest to act and take advantage of the tradition which, according to recent vital statistics from the Labor Department, proves even more of a boon to womankind than Leap Year.

Mayor Hawkins, who is in charge of current elections for King Dogpatch, announced that it is the bounden duty of every citizen to get out and vote for the King, who will be crowned official Catch of the Campus at the Skip.

Seven candidates who are competing for the crown are Bill Briner, Rube Faloon, Jarkie Grey, Hank Keller, Ben Leaman, George Pittenger and Cliff St. Clair. Also on the ballot, by petition of the Dogpatch Society for the Promotion of Fair Campaigns, are Uriah "Greasyneck" Lincoln and Slat Coogan. Straw vote of the local Gallup Poll shows Coogan to be the favorite.

Stage Knick-Knacks Of Dancer's Career

Flamenco dancing, a strange and mystical art, according to Robert Sylvester of New York's Daily News, is always exciting when it's good and when exceptional it can be fairly hair-raising. Carmen Amaya's dancing is exceptional.

Midway through one of her dances a press photographer, hunched over his camera, reported that his speed lens wasn't fast enough to spot the action of her feet.

Carmen Amaya appeared at the White House in the spring of 1941 to entertain the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and their guests at the Press Dinner. In order to meet her schedule Amaya had to take the plane from New York to Washington—the prospect of which made her blanch.

She had never before left the ground except in one of her leaps in the middle of her fierce dances. Her father reassured her, with Gypsy fatalism, that the worst that could happen to her was that the plane would crash and she would die. It wasn't the plane ride, however. There would be no time for rehearsal with the orchestra. "And if I flop before the President," she hissed at her father, "I will live to return and it is you who will die."

Part of Carmen's good showmanship is her terrifying seriousness. Whenever someone laughs or smiles during her dance she glares at him.

Triana, Dancer, Is Amaya's Partner

Antonio Triana, foremost male flamenco dancer, and partner to fiery Carmen Amaya, is the remarkable result of two "ifs" favorably resolved.

First, if Antonio's father, Gerónimo Moto of the Triana Gypsy sector of Seville, had not forsaken his resolution to enter the clergy in favor of falling in love and marrying little Felipa, there might never have been any Antonio at all.

Second, if a professional appearance of nine-year-old Antonio had not been vociferously acclaimed by critics, papa and mama Triana's disapproval of his dancing and their determination to keep his recalcitrant nose to the grind of formal education would have remained unchanged.

As it was, Antonio Triana was born thirty-two years ago, obtained only such schooling as a disinterested pupil would, gave full rein to his all-consuming interest in dancing, and became one of the greatest male Spanish dancers in the world. By the time he reached his 'teens he was famous throughout Spain—without benefit of formal dance training. And it was not long before his reputation spread to the rest of the globe.

Triana's brother is a composer of radio and stage prominence in South America and Mexico. There is a sister, too, who is married. Triana says she could have been a great actress and dancer. "But," he shakes his head half sadly, half disgustedly, "she choose marriage instead."

Kappa Offers Coeds Three $500 Fellowships

Kappa Kappa Gamma will offer three $500 fellowships to woman graduates of any of the colleges and universities where the sorority has a chapter, according to an announcement received by the dean of women's office. Applicants need not be sorority women.

The fellowships have been awarded annually since 1936 and are usually given to persons in the fields of science, arts, and human relations.

Applications may be obtained from Ruth A. Shanes, president of the local chapter, and must be returned by March 1.
