

Cadettes Elect Vernon Dormitory President at WSGA Mass Meeting

Jane Vernon, formerly from Knox University and now a Curtiss-Wright Cadette, was elected president of the Cadette unit in Watts Hall at the WSGA mass meeting last night. Patricia Diener, who supervised the elections, stated that Miss Vernon will represent the women in the House of Representatives. Other Cadettes elected at last night's meeting were Sansa O'Connor from Cornell, vice-president; Mary Hay, University of Minnesota, secretary-treasurer; Bell Black, Tusculum College, air-raid warden-fire chief; Ruth Foster, Indiana University, social chairman; and Gloria Carver, State Teachers College of Oshkosh, WRA Club representative.

Dorothy K. Brunner, chairman of the evening, welcomed the Cadettes prior to the elections. Miss Brunner held a slide rule while she addressed the women, emphasizing that the affair was to be an informal and friendly one.

Miss Eleanor Tilford, and Curtiss-Wright representative Miss R. Cleverly from New Jersey, addressed the women at the meeting. Miss Tilford expressed appreciation to the campus organizations for their cooperation and welcoming of the Cadettes. Miss Cleverly is visiting the College to inspect the courses which the women are taking.

Cadettes sang their own song, "I'm a Rambling Cadette, Penn State Just Met," and Frank R. McEain, head cheer leader, led the women in College cheers and songs.

Adele J. Levin, WRA president, announced the time of WRA club meetings, and Ruth M. Storer, president of WSGA, introduced members of the WSGA Senate.

Harriet G. Van Riper explained the PSCA organization and invited the women to use the Hugh Beaver Room. Marjorie A. Magargel, IWA president, explained the IWA Vic dances and the dating bureau, while Jane E. Booth, Philotes, announced the hours that the Philotes room is open for recreation.

Marion C. Dougherty stated that the Cadettes will observe the same hours as upperclass women. They will be granted 10 o'clocks for week nights, 1 o'clock over weekends, and one 11 o'clock each month. Also they will receive a 2 o'clock and a 1 o'clock over Soph Hop weekend.

Martha E. James welcomed sorority women, and invited stray Greeks to use other sorority houses on campus.

Charlotte E. Ray, dean of women, and Edith J. Melville, secretary to the dean, attended last night's meeting.

Soph Hop Tickets on Sale

(Continued from Page One) Programs entitled to complimentary programs for Soph Hop will be available at Student Union at the time the other tickets go on sale.

The fraternity flags, previously announced as needed by each fraternity and independent group renting a booth, are not necessary now. Instead a group of similar flags will be used to lend the patriotic air to the dance.

Heads Elections

Patricia Deiner, junior senator, was in charge of Cadettes' elections which took place last night following the introduction of BWOC's to the Curtiss-Wright Cadettes.

Seems the maid in Ath Hall East went on strike last week and refused to clean up the concoction some of the coeds cooked up Saturday nite . . . they had pickle juice, perfume, nail polish remover, and soap chips in it . . . that's the same corridor where they had a bicycle in for some recreation and exercise. . .

Before we finish, one suggestion for the assistant dean of women . . . go look at some of the files of letters from the boys in camp and find what they want to read . . . we did, and therefore, don't feel guilty in the least in what we say here.

We, The Women Rationing Necessary In 40-Hour Week

Curtiss-Wright Cadettes met coed campus leaders last night at WSGA's mass meeting. And so the welcome is over. We feel now that they are a part of our College even though they are but temporary coeds.

Because we have only about 20 hours a week on our liberal arts schedules, we find it the least bit hard and silly to do any advising or correcting for those who are here with slide rules, math books and a 40-hour week. But it may be that a few tips on activities and how they can fit into a schedule would be in order.

Invitations to campus activities will be conservative for two definite reasons. One is because many of the active groups are organized on a semester basis and have no room for late comers. The other is because the Cadettes' extended working program allows little time for extra-curricular action.

Thesians and Players, the College's musical and dramatics societies respectively, welcome any new talent. Both are preparing for shows in the near future and ask interested Cadettes to note when meetings and tryouts are held and then be there.

A surgical dressing class, which meets on the first floor of Home Economics at 6:30 p.m. Thursdays, is open to anyone who will bring a smock, kerchief, ruler, and pair of scissors. State College's quota is 20,000 dressings, and there is much to be done toward the reaching of it.

All other activities as outlined in the meeting last night are open to Cadettes if they want them.

The 40-hour week shouldn't be a "stopper" on Cadette activities, but it might act as a restrainer.

Oil your slide-rules with activities, but remember "Oil is ammunition . . . use it wisely."

Four IM Matmen Advance To Final Round Tonight

Going into the fifth round of competition tonight, four IM wrestlers are advanced into the finals along with others advanced as far as the semi and quarter-finals.

Following an open date last night, play will resume on Rec Hall mats this evening. This announcement came from Gene Snedeker and Jim Reifsnnyder, IM wrestling managers.

PSCA Invites Students To Cabin Party Saturday

A charge of fifty cents will be made for supper which will be served there. It will be a "work party" for the purpose of cleaning the cabin, as the one previously planned was postponed, Miss Henning stated.

Faloon, Keller, St. Clair Vie For King Dogpatch Title

Running neck and neck in the lead of the race to determine who will be crowned King Dogpatch at Spinster Skip, March 12, are Rube Faloon, Hank Keller, and Cliff St. Clair, according to latest press dispatches from up Dogpatch way. Final voting for the lucky man who will be conceded to be the most eligible bachelor on campus will begin today at Student Union and the Corner Room and continue until Tuesday.

The top three were the leaders among seven candidates who were vieing in preliminary balloting for the title of official Catch of the Campus. The four who were eliminated from the running are Bill Briner, Jackie Grey, Ben Leaman, and George Pittenger.

Women In Sports

Characterized by better-than-average scores, the intramural bowling tilts ended yesterday when Alpha Omicron Pi topped Jordan Hall, 583-543. This win will give AOPi five points towards the WRA Intramural Cup which will be presented to the winning sorority or dormitory unit at the end of the series.

D. J. Jennings leads in scoring honors with a point rating of 141 followed by her sister Mary Ann, who bowled 129 for the AOPi squad, and Dorothy Evans who placed third with 122. Other Alpha Omicron Pi bowlers with scores include Virginia Ladd with 105 and Betty Eshleman with 83.

Becky Walker leads Jordan bowlers with 114 followed by Eunice Hurlburt with 111. Other individual scores include Cynthia Geffen, 108; Harriet Richards, 106; and Evelyn Gins, 104.

Frosh Cagers To Meet Sophs
 In a close game, full of fouls and hard, fast playing, the freshman basketballers nosed out the sophomores, 31-29 in what proved to be the closest game of the series.

This victory tied the series with three wins and one loss for each team, and necessitates the playing of a final game which will take place in White Hall at 8 p. m. tonight, according to Mary G. Longnecker, intramural chairman.

At the half, the frosh lead the sophomores with a score of 16 to 12. At the end of the third quarter, the frosh dribblers pulled away to 24 holding the sophomores with only a twopoint gain. The sophomore score was 16.

Beck Walker lead the frosh with 19 points followed by Mary A. Jennings with 7 and Harriet Richards with 5. Frosh guards were Gloria McKinley, Doris Huck, and Elizabeth Wolfram.

Peggy Northrup headed the sophs with 14 points followed by Emmie Northrup with 9. Estelle Brown scored 4 points, and Mary K. Hoppel scored two. Sophomore guards were Dorcas Newcomer, Carolyn Crokos, Marjorie Lyon, and Eleanor Wills.

Oddly enough, Slats Coogan, local favorite according to a Gallup poll straw vote, was also edged out, but only after a terrific battle on the part of his husky following who were loath to admit defeat.

To prove that the campaign was really on the up-and-up, and to show how close the voting was, Hekzebiah Hawkins, mayor of Dogpatch, released the balloting results.

Keller, IFC president, polled the highest with 174 votes; Faloon, senior class president, was close on his tail with 172, while St. Clair came in for 165 ballots.

Mayor Hawkins urged that everyone make it his business to visit the polls and cast a vote in this all-important election.

WITH OTHER WOMEN

Coeds at West Virginia University are offered a war course in explosives. After completing the course, which is given for a whole semester, they are eligible for positions at various ammunition plants throughout the country.

At Cornell University, Ithaca, New York, woman students act as aides in the county hospital three days a week. The work consists of helping in the wards, changing flowers, serving trays and folding linen.

Women's athletics are being stressed at the University of California under the motto of "fitness, friends, and fun." For women who take their war duties seriously, the university believes that athletic activities are a primary requisite.
