Cissel Painting Heads Red Cross Drive on Campus

Faloon Announces Coed Campaign Solicitors

Hitler, Mussolino, and Hirohito were shackled in chains in front of Old Main, yesterday afternoon, but at the expense of artist Bill Cissel, who has painted a six-foot mural of the three dictators for the All-College $5000 Red Cross War Drive, led by Robert M. Faloon.

Cissel's painting will be used as the committee's barometer of contributions, and as each one dollar donation is turned in at the Student Union office, a stamp will be pasted over the face of the dictators until the entire drawing is completely submerged.

Faloon said last night that several fraternities have turned in 100 per cent contributions in the first few days of the drive, and others will have their lists complete by the end of the week.

Since many houses will be evacuated tomorrow, there may be some difficulty in collecting the funds, but the campaign head said that most of the men have made arrangements with their fraternity president to make contributions.

Sorority women, and dorm coeds have been progressing rapidly this week in their collections, and several groups will go over their quota before Friday. Independent men are being contacted by representatives of the drive, and many are making contributions direct to the Student Union office where solicitors are stationed.

Campus coeds will appear in front of Old Main in the next few days dressed as Red Cross nurses, and will receive contributions from independent men who have not as yet been contacted by Faloon or his assistants.

Coed contributions may be made through the following women representatives, while other names will be announced at a later date, Faloon added.

Luncheon to Play on Spotlight Bands Tonight

Penn State dancers will get a listening preview of their band choice for Junior-Senior Ball tonight at 9:30 p.m. as Jimmie Luncheon and his orchestra broadcasts over Blue Network stations.

Luncheon will climax his current Southern tour of Alabama, Georgia, North and South Carolina, Delaware, Maryland and Washington, D. C., with his second "Victory Parade of Spotlight Bands" appearance.

The famous organization scored one of the outstanding hits of the fall season with its first appearance on the "Spotlight Bands" series. Tonight's program will be broadcast from an Eastern seaboard service camp or war plant.

ROTC Movie Tonight

All men in the advanced ROTC Signal Corps, and all students who plan to enter that branch of the Army upon induction, are urged to attend a film on celestial navigation in 206 Engineering A, at 8 o'clock tonight, according to a statement released from the ROTC headquarters.

Rumor Adds Other Fraternities To Army List All-College Cabinet Urges Sane Student Behavior

Ramaley to Attend USAA Conference

All-College Cabinet, at last night's meeting, urged students in the fraternity district to refrain from destruction of property. A rough estimate revealed property damages amounting to several hundreds of dollars, which must be paid for out of the class treasury.

Margaret K. Ramaley was appointed by Cabinet members to attend the United States Student Assembly at Washington Friday. Discussion on "Inflation or Stabilization" and how it will affect the college student will take place at the conference.

A report by Ruth Storer and George Pittinger, representatives to the Pennsylvania Student Government Association Conference held at Philadelphia recently, was given to Cabinet. The representatives reported the discussion of post-war topics as well as current events affecting the student body.

Colleges within the state were divided into two sections—the Eastern and the Western—to facilitate holding of conferences. Penn State was placed in the Eastern Section. The next conference will probably be held at Gettysburg or Indiana State College.

March 27 was approved by the governing group as opening date for Dry Dock. A motion was approved by the group to send a letter to the Board of Trustees and President Hetzel endorsing the construction of a Student Union building following the war. A letter was also sent to Syracuse University's student governing body requesting suggestions for the solution of the housing adjustment problem now confronting Penn State students. Syracuse male student body had to cope with the same housing problem that now affects Penn State.

Benefit Show Combines Top Campus Talent For Open House Night

Top entertainers on campus join hands Friday evening in the Old Main Open House show for benefit of the current Red Cross War Drive being conducted throughout the College this week.

Highlight of the show will be the appearance of Penn State's famed three stooges in one of their usual comedy skits. Jane Abramson of Thespian fame will do several song numbers, while Bud Mellett is slated for a specialty dance routine.

Another feature on the united show is the Varsity Quartet, campus male singing group, which will handle the vocal chores for the night. There is also a possibility that the Glee Club will appear as a group, but definite word will be received from Director Frank Gullo in the next few days.

Frank Neusbaum's drama students are rehearsing for three one-hour skits, scheduled for a performance in Little Theatre. Other sections of the program will appear on the Schwab Auditorium stage.

Dorothy K. Brunner also announces a bridge tournament for the evening, open to all students who register at Student Union before Friday noon.

Hail, Alma Mater

They were given notices to evacuate their houses, so many of Penn State's fraternities went on a "last fling" rampage and caused damage amounting into hundreds of dollars of damage to fraternity, borough and private property. No use making any attempt to stifle news of the drunken brawl which transpired. To hush up the affair would be undemocratic, and rumors would outdo the truth.

Remember one fine day last fall when an All-College convocation was called to inform the students of what would probably happen to college programs? And remember the statement that a lot of adjustment would lie ahead? Then at least a month ago a statement was released from the President's Office, and printed prominently in The Daily Collegian that many of Penn State's fraternities would have to combine, or evacuate to make room for an influx of Army students.

Friday morning reality came crashing down with the announcement in the Collegian that nearly a score of fraternities would evacuate, although nearly all of them had been notified earlier.

And Saturday night a lot more than reality came crashing down. It crashed in the form of glass from street lights, glass from parking meters, broken street signs, a ruined porch, a bonfire in the street and a generally rowdy evening.

LA Faculty, Wives Will Hear Far East Report At Banquet

Liberal Arts faculty members and their wives will hear Edward Angley, Far Eastern war correspondent of the Chicago Sun, at the annual faculty dinner, February 22, according to Mrs. Ormelle H. Stecker, assistant professor of mathematics, and Dr. Stuart A. Mahuran, assistant professor of journalism, co-chairmen.

Mr. Angley, a graduate of the University of Texas, was one of the few correspondents who witnessed the attack on Pearl Harbor by the Japanese. He was also the first accredited American correspondent to be flown from Australia to the United States.

In his position as manager of the London Bureau of the Herald Tribune, chief of the Associated Press Bureau in Moscow, and mid-East and Far Eastern correspondent, Mr. Angley has been on the spot when and where the news was made. It has been said of him that "he has not followed the war—he has anticipated it."

Covering the war has taken him to Russia, Great Britain, Greece, Iraq, Syria, New Guinea, and Africa. Mr. Angley was also on the scene at the battle of Dunkirk.

In addition to the guest speaker, dance numbers will be presented by Miss Jesse Cameron's modern dance group and music will be furnished by the department of music, according to the co-chairman.

W. T. Chase, '44, Killed in Crash

Lieut. Walter T. Chase, '44, died Saturday in a Tucson, Ariz., hospital of injuries received in the crash of an Army B-24 bomber.

While at Penn State, Chase was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity and active in campus activities. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Chase of Bala-Cynwyd and was a bombardier with the U. S. Army Air Forces. Chase was 21.

Recently commissioned a second lieutenant, he was taking part in a practice flight when the B-24 crashed in the desert two miles south of the Davis-Monthan air base at which he was stationed.

Committee Lists Queen Candidates

Plaid shirts, peanut scrambles, and apple rolls will be the rule Saturday night when Harvest Ball featuring the music of the Campus Owls will take over Rec Hall from 9-12 p. m.

Three nominees for Harvest Queen have been selected by coeds, in balloting at the dorms. They are Jane Vernon, Curtiss-Wright Cadette, Margaret L. Good, and Elizabeth J. Bratton.

All-College voting for the Queen, to be chosen from these three choices, will begin Thursday at Student Union and the Corner Room. The winner will be announced during intermission at the dance, according to Harry J. Hofmeister, dance chairman.

Committee for the dance was released by Robert I. Brawn '44, president of the Agriculture Student Council, general chairman, Harry J. Hofmeister; advertising chairman, Arnold R. Chiquoine; tickets chairman, Wilbur S. Bull; decorations chairman, Jack F. Dolly and John Hulbert; and checking chairman, David C. Warner.

Plans for decorations will be announced later, said Hofmeister. However, informal dress is to be the rule.

Swarthout to Appear In Final Artists' Course

Gladys Swarthout, third and final concert artist on the spring Artists' Course program, will give her performance in Schwab Auditorium, 8 p. m., Tuesday, March 23.

Miss Swarthout was originally scheduled to appear next Monday, but it was believed that she could not make the trip to the College in time for the concert and a postponement until Tuesday was made to assure her appearance.

The noted mezzo-soprano of radio, stage and screen fame, was a child prodigy. Her career began at 13 when she pretended to be 19 and obtained a position in a Kansas City choir. Financing of her career by her wealthy parents was never much of a problem, and the gifted singer went on to enjoy tremendous popularity throughout the country.

Word Is Not Confirmed By College Officials

Although no official word has come from College officials, it is rumored that additions have been made to the list of fraternities that have voluntarily offered their living quarters to the United States Army for 127 men, composed of 500 Army Air Corps cadets, 500 Army Specialized Training Program students, and 267 advanced ROTC cadets present at the College now.

These fraternities, if the rumor proves to hold water, will be added to the list of 19 fraternities that have already offered their facilities to the Army for use in housing and feeding enlisted men.

Fraternities which will house cadets have been ordered to vacate by tomorrow evening so that the houses may be ready for use immediately upon the arrival of the troops that will come to Penn State within the next two or three weeks. New fraternities added to the list will have to leave their quarters in the very near future, too.

Men who arrive here for training, will be instructed by College professors and instructors, and will be subject to strict military discipline. Advanced ROTC cadets, although they will be placed in uniform and housed, fed and paid by the Army, will be permitted to continue their present semester's work. At the completion of the semester, these men will probably be sent to Army camps, just where is unknown at the present time.

Evidence of the fact that fraternity men were none too happy about leaving their present houses was expressed this past Saturday evening when a number of them took a "last fling" attitude, absorbed a great deal of liquor, and all in all committed a near riot. Expressions of this sort are likely to lead to serious trouble with the Army, any may result in drastic measures taken on the Army's part, although nothing has been done about the rumpus up to this point.

Penn State is one of the few institutions in which fraternity houses were approved by the Army for barracks. This is solely because houses are well concentrated and can be zoned.

Selection of the fraternities was determined by a plan of the Army officers to make zones. Eleven farthest zones from campus are in the Air Corps zone; the Locust (Continued On Page Two)

Committee Announces Class Honor Candidates

Nominations for Senior Class honors, which will be given to selected students on Commencement Day, May 11, were made by a committee of school council presidents last night.

Selection of a Spoon Man, Barrel Man, Cane Man, Pipe Orator and Class Donor will be made by members of the Senior Class on return post cards which will be mailed to them within the next few days.

Seniors nominated for class honors include Benjamin Lehman, Jack Grey, Robert Faloon, William Briner, George Pittenger, Charles Lebow, J. Robert Hicks, Harry Coleman, Don Kulp, and Robert Davis.
