

14 Sororities Plan Entertainment For Air Corps Cadets

Will Feature Novelty Acts And Refreshments

In compliance with the request that sororities and women's groups entertain and welcome the air cadets, parties have been planned through the dean of women's office.

Members of 14 women's sororities as well as Philotes, independent women's organization, and IWA will greet cadets in their respective meeting units from 3:30 to 5 o'clock today.

Delta Gamma will have dancing and entertainment to welcome 30 cadets.

Alpha Omicron Pi will entertain 25 cadets and 36 members will be present.

Fifty-eight Chi Omegas plan to meet with 30 cadets; 20 cadets have been invited to the Theta Phi Alpha house which had 20 members.

Kappa Kappa Gamma and Alpha Chi Omega with 72 and 63 members respectively will accommodate 50 at each house.

Gamma Phi Beta with 51 coeds accordingly will receive 20 cadets at their suite. The Phi Mu's 30 actives will entertain 25 Army men.

Alpha Z, Delta and Alpha Epsilon Phi have combined to have a party in Atherton Hall at which they will serve soft drinks, dance and play cards. The former with 27 participating will welcome 20 and the later with 60 will greet 40.

Kappa Alpha Theta has planned novelty acts and will entertain 25. There are 60 members in the sorority.

Thirty Sigma Delta Tau's will serve refreshments followed by a program featuring singing and dancing as a salutation to 30 cadets.

IWA will entertain 50 cadets. One hundred forty independents will join in the party which is to be a carnival scene.

Philotes will also entertain 20 Air Corp students.

Kappa Delta and Zeta Tau Alpha, each with 20 active members, will entertain 60 Army guests in Atherton lounges.

We, The Women

Calling Hostesses to Welcome Air Crew Soldiers Tonight

A hostess bar will be featured at the Dry Dock program to welcome air crew cadets tonight. But without hostesses it loses its purpose.

First feature of the USO type to be given on the campus, this variety show is the first official opportunity for women to welcome and meet the cadets. Consider it, then, not as a duty, but as a privilege to act as a hostess at Dry Dock tonight.

According to program chairmen, the bar will be stationed just inside the door to greet the men and to introduce them to other coeds who will be scattered about. The idea is to change partners after each dance in an effort to help the "crewers" to meet many persons.

Chief hostess recruiters are Shirley Tetley, who can be called at the Kappa house, and Betty Eshleman, AOPi house. Interested persons should call either of these women immediately to sign up for active duty tonight.

One of the coeds' chief objections to this sort of thing is that some women will be there with dates and hostesses will be stags and loop cheap.

But this is war and the situation tonight will be a different one. This is no job and yet it's something that women should do and should be glad to do.

ies, will sing "Anatole of Paris" as he introduces his "Victory Easter Parade" number from the Thespian show, "Khaki Waac-y."

Special dance numbers will be given by Anna Radle and the Can Can Chorus from "Love Rides the Rails" and the WAAC Dancing Chorus from "Khaki Waac-y."

The Army Air Crew students who come to the program stag will be greeted at the door by a large number of coeds, serving as hostesses, recruited by Masquerettes and PSCA.

Masquerettes will also be in charge of the special Blue and White refreshment stand, built especially for Dry Dock by the Coco-Cola Co. Cokes and sandwiches will be served at the bar.

Tickets may be purchased at Student Union or at the door for 75 cents including checking. Air

Dancing will be planned for a greater part of the evening, but the floor show, other games, and soft-drinking will offer a varied program for women to direct.

Five hundred men and no coeds would make a sorrowful picture, and recognizing this, we imagine that women will turn out in large numbers for the welcoming.

Here's the coeds' chance to say thanks to their early morning serenaders and to give the College's visitors that famous "Hello Spirit."

Our last word is short but important: Monday is the day that Miss Julia G. Brill will tell interested persons about post-war plans during her Liberal Arts lecture in 316 Sparks from 4:10 to 5 p. m. These tips, having come straight from a recent Washington convention, should help coeds to catch up a little on their global news.

Students To Speak In Women's Dorms

The World Student Service Fund committee has begun a series of evening talks in women's dormitories to speed up contributions to their drive. Two men will visit each dormitory, and the coeds will be given special envelopes in which to put their contributions. It was originally planned that the women would be asked to give up one meal, but dormitory regulations make it impossible to use the money saved this way.

The dormitory speakers are Palmer Sharpless, chairman, John C. Burford, Howard Carlson, Robert C. Dickey, Henry V. Harmon, Ralph W. Harris, Philip Hempe, Reagan Houston, Robert G. Kinligh, Robert S. MacNabb, Clifford M. Painter, Robert T. Kraemer, Clifford M. St. Clair, and James V. Ziegler.

At a recent meeting of the PSCA Cabinet, committees were appointed to carry out a wartime service plan for the college and the Air Corps men.

Crew students will be admitted for 40 cents.

Dry Dock is being produced and designed by Bill Cissel in cooperation with Betty Christman and Sue Clausser. The floor show is directed by Martin Skapik.

College Art Classes Begin Display Of Work

The annual exhibition of work done by Penn State students in drawing and design courses offered by the Division of Fine Arts of the Department of Architecture will be held this year in the period from April 18 to May 2 on the main floor of the Mineral Industries building, according to J. Burn Helme, Professor of Fine Arts.

Because the College Art Gallery is being used as it has been during the last two semesters, for courses in ship drafting, the Department Exhibition this year will take place in the Mineral Industries Art Gallery, with the permission of Dean Edward Steidle.

The exhibited material will consist of drawing, painting, design, and costume design done during the past two semesters by the several hundred students who have been taking this work. Further details with the names of participating students will be published in the near future. The committee in charge of hanging the exhibition is under the chairmanship of Mr. John Y. Roy, Assistant professor of Fine Arts.

A Stamp today? A Bond this week? Talk it over—not with the woman next door—but with yourself.

Cwens Tap Coeds At Early Breakfast

Cwens, national sophomore women's honorary, tapped second semester freshmen and first semester sophomores at its annual breakfast in Mac Hall at 7:15 this morning.

This year's Cwen members knocked on doors in freshman dormitories at 6:45 to waken coeds for breakfast. All freshmen and first semester sophomores were invited to attend.

The new Cwens were chosen for their leadership, scholarship, and activities during their freshman year. After the breakfast, they gathered in the center of the dining room to receive their red and gray blazers from the outgoing members.

Cwens who greeted the new members are Ruth Clyde, Jane Cromis, Patricia Diener, Alice Drumm, Ruth Embery, Carol Emerick, Margaret L. Good, Mary Grace Longnecker, Vivian Martin, Judy McFarland, Betsy McGee, Joan Miller, Jean Ogden, Florinne Olson, Kathleen Osgood, Barbara Painter, Marjorie Schultz, Winifred Singer, Ruth Steiner, Gloria Whyel, Christine Yohe, and Miriam Zartman.

Miss Jean Richards, assistant to the dean of women, is the Cwens' advisor.

Swimmers Should Report

All men who were out for the swimming team this season should report to the Photo Shop at 5 p. m. Monday night if they want their picture in this year's La Vie, John Jackson, manager of the tank squad, said last night.
