

Price of Cigarettes Means Day's Ration to Students

"Fifteen cents means a pack of cigarettes to you, or a day's ration to a student starving in Greece." This is one of the slogans of the World Student Service Fund, which operates on the Penn State campus through PSCA. The fund, which receives donations from colleges in 47 states, sends intellectual and spiritual as well as practical aid to students interned in refugee and prison camps all over the world.

The organization, which operates solely as an agency for collecting funds and seeing that they get to national committees which administer aid, has been in existence since 1937, when it began to aid Chinese students driven from their colleges by the war with Japan. Since then it has spread to all the countries of the world.

The WSSF files contain thousands of letters of gratitude from interned students, some of whom benefit by the books sent as something to occupy their time and so keep up their morale, while others use the few minutes of study they get a day as their only diversion from long physical labor in prison camps. WSSF funds also go to agencies providing recreation and pleasure for refugees and internees, while in Greece, according to the WSSF handbook, "it is not a question of intellectual relief, but of saving students from starvation and death."

Dean Ray Commends Coeds for Welcome Given to Air Cadets

"All women's social groups are greatly to be commended for the success of the welcome parties held for the Air Corps cadets last Saturday," Miss Charlotte E. Ray, dean of women, stated today.

Miss Nina M. Bentley and Miss Edith J. Melville, assistants to the dean, who attended numerous meetings, felt that the novel programs and friendly attitude on the part of all coeds were greatly appreciated by the cadets.

Especially noteworthy was the question and answer program conducted by members of IWA. Witty remarks were given in answer to questions about service life.

The attendance at all houses proved to be high as did the enthusiasm as games were played, refreshments served, followed by dancing.

At one of the houses a milk bar was constructed and placed in a convenient place for cadets. A style show was given by another group and cadets and coeds danced the "Hoky Poky" with other sorority members. Despite the fact that many houses had no entertainment planned, many cadets offered to participate in bridge and ping-pong tournaments and they engaged in some enthusiastic singing.

Numerous cadets expressed their thanks to the social groups for this hearty welcoming program, saying that such a theme brought them relaxation and enjoyment comparable to life on their respective home grounds.

We, The Women

'It's A Woman's World Now...' Coeds Must Sound Out Talents...

"This is a woman's world and will continue to be for the duration."

Bringing to light this startling realization, Miss Julia G. Brill, Liberal Arts School vocational adviser, gave a summarized report on post-war problems and women's position in this war. She recently attended the annual conference of the Institute on Professional Women's Relations in Washington, D. C.

Miss Brill quoted one conference speaker as saying, "There is a greater opportunity at hand for trained women today than ever before." With this in mind, the representatives discussed opportunities in various fields, accomplishments of women thus far, and duties of the college woman of today.

According to Washington officials, 2,000,000 women have been added to war effort services so far and a large part of the 6,500,000 persons to be employed this year will be women. Miss Brill pointed out the necessity of finding one's place before induction is necessary.

Nurses and the health services women, along with workers in physics, are among the professionals found needed today, it was pointed out; however, every vocation once considered a man's job is now open and even demanding of women. Miss Brill stated that courses which seldom interested coeds because the number of jobs was so limited are now calling for coed students to enroll.

Clearing up any deceptive thinking which might have come from the entrance of the woman's selective service bill in Congress, Miss Brill explained that it was meant to merely sound out the number of trained persons available in the 18-50 age group. If a serious need for women became apparent, it is understood that a call for volunteers would go out first and then, the situation demanding, women would be inducted for service.

"Right now is the woman's chance. Right now is the time when women should find her talents and fit them in. This is her opportunity. As was pointed out in the talk yesterday afternoon, women can reign now but, unless they do a good job of it, post-war plans may not include them. They may be the ones to take a beating when the armistice is signed.

However, if the job is done well, if the employer is well-pleased, the worker will not be dismissed. It's a cinch that no official will throw out someone who has done an excellent job and one who has made herself valuable to the company.

All of which only means that women should take an exclusive glance while they have the chance, find their niches, and stop worrying about being thrown out. They have to prove that they can do the job the way they can do it.
