

Onward Tradition; Task Falls to Coeds On Campus Front

Fresh mass meetings, songs and cheer practices, and even the good old English placement exams, make us wish we could go back a few years to our own "green bow and name-card days" and begin on a new slate. How differently we would have done things, we say, as we begin to learn a few of the ropes. But we wonder—if we had the opportunity to begin again, would there be too many changes?

Anyway, such a move isn't probable, nor would it be at all practical. However, Cwens, Big-Sisters, CA chums, Senior Sponsors, or merely general friends, we can help all in the program of orientation for the new freshman women. With our short semesters of experience in campus life, we can be of great value to this new group.

With recent drastic changes in our campus life, freshmen will have even a harder time adjusting themselves to a new atmosphere. As pointed out by our own dean of women, the upperclasswomen can have a stabilizing effect directly or indirectly, merely by boosting practices which they would like to have carried on as Penn State tradition.

From our own experience, we all know that frosh inevitably look up to the upperclassmen to a certain extent for standards. If we really want College traditions to outlive the war we'll put our best foot forward and get the new gals off to a flying start. And—as long as ever a few students are banded together on the campus, it's their duty to see that these traditions ARE kept, particularly for our classmates, now at the front, who plan to finish their College education after the war. We all know they'll not want to come back to a new Penn State, but to one similar to the one they left in their undergrad days.

We, the women, should have this task as our ultimate goal—"to keep the home fires burning."

Thanks to our prexy, the women are still securely established in their own modern campus dormitories. We couldn't be able to fully appreciate this fact until we were pushed out by the armed forces and forced to lodge in scattered town homes. It's gratifying to hear only a few grumbling remarks about the late meal shift in Ather-ton Hall. Inasmuch as the Rus-sians are still starving, any com-plaint of this type could hardly be justified.

If we look at a few of these changes from the patriotic angle, we feel proud of giving up a few things as our small bit toward the war effort.

As the semester progresses, there'll be many additional opportunities for the coeds to contribute to the home front, such as rolling bandages for the Red Cross, en-rolling in refresher nutrition or canteen courses, and many others, as well as conscientiously "hitting the books." —HRK

WARNER BROTHERS

STATE

BUY WAR BONDS AND STAMPS—HERE

Today - Saturday

THRILLING! TIMELY! SENSATIONAL!

AERIAL GUNNER

Chester Morris • Richard Arlen • Jimmy Lydon

Monday - Tuesday

TWO TICKETS TO LONDON

Alan Curtis • Michele Morgan • C. Aubrey Smith

Wednesday - Thursday

Ann Miller • John Hubbard

"WHAT'S BUZZIN', COUSIN?"

WARNER BROTHERS

CATHAUM

BUY WAR BONDS AND STAMPS—HERE

Today - Saturday • Features 1:15-3:25-7:00-9:10

AMERICA'S GREATEST ENTERTAINMENT!

Stage Door Canteen

with Cheryl Walker William Terry and

30 GREAT STARS OF STAGE, SCREEN and RADIO

Monday-Tuesday-Wednesday, July 12-13-14

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD!

FIVE GRAVES TO CAIRO

starring Franchot Tone

Anne Baxter • Akim Tamiroff • Erich von Stroheim

PLAYING THURSDAY, FRIDAY and SATURDAY

July 15, 16 and 17

TYRONE POWER

CRASH DIVE

IN TECHNICOLOR!

O'Brien Announces Men's Debate Tryouts

Preliminary men's debate tryouts, open to upperclassmen and freshmen, including students in the Navy V-12 program, will be held in 316 Sparks at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Final tryouts will take place in 316 Sparks at 7 p.m. Wednesday, according to Joseph F. O'Brien, men's debate coach.

The College is planning to run a regular summer program with several radio broadcasts and trips to nearby colleges. "Perhaps one longer trip will be included," Mr. E. James Trimarchi, manager of the team, added.

Obtain Collegians

Students may obtain Collegians at SU. Faculty members are instructed to get issues at the main offices in the main buildings and the paper will be delivered to individual barracks, according to Philip P. Mitchell, business manager.

CLASSIFIED SECTION

Will person who traded Alligator Santhur raincoat in New College Diner July 4 please call Herk 2538.

FOR SALE—One set of golf clubs and bag. Can be seen at 515 W. Beaver avenue, or phone 2718. Reasonable price. 1t-pd—PPM

RW—Four homesick Curtiss-Wright Cadettes would appreciate a ride to Bellefonte Thursday morning, July 15th, to arrive before the 11:20 train leaves. Call Nancy Blanche, 5051, extension 155, between 6 and 10 p.m.

WANTED—Furnished apartment with bath; conveniently located. Call Room 240, Hotel State College. 1t-pd—PPM

FOR SALE—Midwest Radio in good shape. Call M. A. Martin, 4056, 234 S. Allen.

What About Your Parents?

Of course they are very much interested in the events and happenings that go to make up life here at State—be you service-man or civilian.

Let us help them to know and understand your Penn State by allowing us to mail them every issue of the Collegian. The cost to you is only $1.00—the value to them is very much more.

Your parents want to share your life here with you as much as possible.

Subscribe for their enjoyment to the Collegian today in the Collegian Office—ground floor of Carnegie Hall.