

Lions Play Bisons, Then Crusaders

The Reash twins, both of Kent State, both Marine trainees, both forwards, both five feet eleven inches from the ground, and both weighing in the 170's, will probably both see action against the home five tomorrow night.

The game with State will mark the coaching debut for Woody Ludwig, who came to Bucknell this fall as assistant football coach. Ludwig is a Penn graduate, and played varsity basketball for the Quakers under Lon Jourdet.

In a practice tilt for their opener with the Lions, the Herd trampled the Northeastern Penitentiary five 61-18.

Susquehanna All-Civilian

When the Susquehanna quintet travels from Selingsgrove to State College for their annual tussle with the Blue and White, Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg Jr. will floor an all-civilian team.

Lacking Navy-Marine players to bolster his roster, the son of one of the peers of the football realm will start Bud Smith and Bill Janson, two varsity holdovers, at the forward and center spots respectively. Dan Reitz, Selingsgrove high school star last season will be Smith's buddy on the forward wall, while John Kocsis, junior from South River, N. J., and Bernie Sweincki, Crusader sophomore, have been nominated for the guard spots. Sweincki played varsity basketball last year.

The upstaters will meet the Nittany Lions with two losses to show for two games played. They lost the opener to Juniata by a 51-34 count, then bowed to Bloomsburg State Teachers 43-29.

Mickey Blatz, former Collegian Junior Boarder, is now with an AST unit at Penn. Hank Yeagley and Ben French are both stationed at San Antonio, Texas, with the psychological research department.

Penn State Club Plans Door Mixer; Folk Heads Reorganized Date Bureau

Penn State Club will sponsor a door mixer in McAllister Hall from 8 to 10 p.m. tonight, Edmund Koval, president of the organization, announced today.

Koval also stated that Dean A. R. Warnock has been made an honorary member of the club. The honor was bestowed upon Dean Warnock following his talk, "The Penn State Club and What It Stands For," at the club's initiation party.

William R. Folk has been appointed chairman of the dating bureau which was recently reorganized. Harold E. Weller also was named representative of the club to the Old Main Open House committee at the last meeting of the executive committee.

Walter Plonski was appointed athletic chairman of the club and Peter J. Keffalas publicity chairman. They filled executive vacancies which developed recently.

State Rooter Offers Ration Points To Lion

An offer of meat ration points today furnished concrete evidence that the public's interest in Penn State's lion cub acquisition was real and genuine.

Apparently unaware that the mascot has since been returned to the care of a New York zoo, a well-meaning young woman wrote to ask whether she might contribute any points to the upkeep of the lion.

"My brother, who is now overseas with the Air Corps, was a Penn State student before he entered the service," the young lady said, "and I know he'd want to keep the lion well-fed."

The letter was directed to Aldo Cenci, Penn State football star and a participant in the radio broadcast that inspired the presentation. Cenci replied to the offer immediately, and sent a photograph of the lion with the suggestion that it be forwarded to the young lady's brother.

with the vicinity's most dashing young man, who entertains none but the most platonic thoughts for her. Mix it up well with complications such as a ten-year war, a gossiping group of teacup-totallars, and a bunch of fairly obnoxious brats, and add a liberal dash of James Barrie's gentle, but cutting satire, and the concoction produced is some of the best fun the theater can offer.

Kappa Alpha Theta recently initiated Suzanne Clouser, Mary Jane Doerner, Louise Long, Marjorie Lyons and Evelyn Wasson.
