Alice Drumm, Betty Funkhouser, Lois McCool, Arnold Feldman, Robert Hartman, Bob Worthington, Francis Pyle, Ben Clouser, Barbara Anderson, Dorothy Hoke, and Garnet Levant have cooperated in organizing the service, which will also have special singing.

Awarded Coed's Essay in Writing Contest

Transfer student, Leah Dolan, has been awarded a prize of $50 in Harriet Beecher Stowe Writing Contest.

Fund Condition

Published report of the Hetzel Fund for the story of a $4,000 fund granted loans to students on campus, four years ago. On Christmas morning a five dollar bill for Mrs. Hetzel's fund for students interested in the fund at State, primarily for large loans, the transaction fund could be granted small immediately up to $50. And what to initiate the fund the newly acquired bill.

Investigated further the college and the replies of their systems they were called. The replies of Mrs. Hetzel set to work State emergency fund, and adding the best feature of the fund, and adding the replies that would Penn State student Estelle H. Hetzel started in the manager.

Since March 20, 1940 (the date of the first loan) there have been 810 loans made. Of this number one was considered a gift and one was written off because of the death of the student. The loans totaled $8,071.37 and every loan thus far has been repaid.

State from State Teachers College, Fredonia, New York, where she wrote her essay in a sophomore composition course. The article was based on international cooperation in the western hemisphere and was entitled, "Unity, Destiny of Two Continents."

Interviewed in the second floor lounge of Old Main, Miss Dolan recalled the gradual growth of her interest in writing. English composition appealed to her in high school, when she entered a contest in which the transfer student received first prize of $25 with an essay on fire prevention.

While returning from a school trip to Gettysburg, the history-minded coed composed an article concerning the glory in Gettysburg, the famous battle of 1863, the hardships, sacrifices, that have made Gettysburg what it is today. Yes, she won another prize. The money she has received as a result of her literary achievements is helping her to get through school.

Leah was asked if there are any special subjects that catch her fancy.

"I'm interested in so many things that I have a difficult time narrowing my mind down to one in particular," stated the coed.

While at the State Teachers College at Fredonia, Leah was enrolled in the elementary teacher training course. At present she is in Lower Division, and hopes to major in history, though she showed a slight inclination toward journalism.

In "Unity, Destiny of Two Continents," she stated that the Latin-American countries are different from each other and the United States. Unity, she declared, can be achieved by making use of their differences. Cultural ideals should be inter-mixed.

In the western hemisphere we have these two countries, stated the writer, each with complementary characteristics. Latin America could profit from some of our democratic ideals, and in exchange, we of the United States could learn from our neighbors the elements of a deeper living where onrushing desires are eliminated.
