

6 Debate Students Receive Key Awards

Six persons from the men's debate team will receive the debate key, it was announced at a recent meeting of the Forensic Council.

This key is awarded to all men who have participated in five or more intercollegiate debates during the debate season; however, Prof. O'Brien, debate coach, decides if the person is worthy of receiving a pin.

Those receiving pins are Lewis Ullman, who will have eleven debates to his credit at the end of the season; Zelmar Barson, ten debates; Edward Zemprelli, eight; Allen Kahn, seven; Martin Cohn, seven; and Otis Castleberry, five.

Because of war conditions and the possibility of being drafted, the men will receive their pins early rather than at the end of the season as was customary in the past.

Theatre Lists 3 Plays

Three one act plays will be presented with no admittance price charged to students, faculty, servicemen, and townspeople in the Little Theatre at 7:30 o'clock tonight, Professor L. E. Tucker of the dramatics department announced yesterday.

These "Workshop Plays" represent the combined efforts of the students enrolled in Dramatics 1, 11, 402, and 451, courses in beginning acting, stagecraft, stage make-up, and directing, respectively. The presentation has been prepared under the supervision of Professors Cloetingh and Tucker.

College Students Discuss Postwar World

"What do college students think about the organization of the postwar world?"

In a cross-section representing 16 colleges of various denominations and types throughout the state, a majority of the students believe in a world organization which, not so long ago, would have been thought an extremely radical scheme.

This cross-section was obtained in the recent meeting of the Pennsylvania State Debaters' Convention, and the majority opinion voiced is to be found in the bills which, in the manner of regular legislative procedure, were drawn up in committee and passed by the general assembly.

The establishment of a permanent world organization as a basis for the post-war foreign policy of the United States was called for in a resolution passed by a majority vote of the convention. Furthermore, this government is to be supported by an international police force, to which each member shall contribute a quota of men, funds, and supplies.

Command of the world police force is to be appointed by the international organization and shall be responsible to the central government alone. Its duty shall be to resist aggression upon the order of the international government, for which purpose, according to the bill, it is to receive certain strategically located areas as bases of operation.

Further providing for a unicameral legislative body, the bill asks representation on the basis of one representative each from nations having a population of not more than 10,000,000, two representatives for nations with populations of between 10,000,000 and 100,000,000, and three representatives for nations having a population of over 100,000,000.

Powers of the legislature are to make international laws, which, when passed by a 2/3 vote, are binding on all member nations; to regulate international services, such as mail and international travel; to outlaw war; to establish a commission to promote peace through removal of discriminating trade barriers and through promotion of reciprocal trade agreements to develop economic cooperation and interdependence; to control and limit the manufacture of all heavy armaments; and to establish an international police force.

Provision was made for a plural executive consisting of one permanent representative each from the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China, plus five other representatives elected by the Assembly from the remainder of the nations which are members of the organization. Its powers would be to enforce legislation of the assembly and decisions of the World Court.

Among comments on the bill received by Edward P. Zemprelli, secretary of the convention, are those contained in letters written by members of Congress.

James J. Davis, Senator from

Pennsylvania, wrote: "I have read the material . . . with utmost interest and I am sure that it will prove of considerable value to me when these questions are brought up for consideration and debate on the floor of the Senate."

Representative D. Emmert Brumbaugh, of the 23rd Congressional District, said, "I have enjoyed studying the points which your Convention raises, many of which indicate profound thinking and a full grasp of the situation as it affects our relationship with foreign countries."

"The question of our foreign policy is receiving deep concern by the people in every walk of life, and in studying such a mammoth issue the viewpoints of your Convention will be of great assistance to me."

Delta Gammas Initiate

Twenty Delta Gamma pledges will be initiated at the Delta Gamma house, 4 p.m. Sunday, it was announced by President Marjorie Cherry. The pledges have been preparing for initiation the past week.

The initiates-to-be will attend chapel Sunday. After initiation, dinner will be served at the Corner Room.

Psychology Honorary Initiates Candidates

Initiation ceremonies of Psi Chi, national psychology honorary, were held in the Hugh Beaver room, 7 p.m. Friday, announced Rosalind Becker, president of the Penn State chapter.

All but five of the original candidates were admitted into the honorary. Those not accepted at Friday's meeting will be welcomed as active participants of the organization at a special get-acquainted party, to take place at Atherton Hall May 1.

Plans are now under way for a party in June, to climax the semester's activities. The social committee is arranging for some form of entertainment to follow election of officers and discussion of pertinent business.

Kappa Delta Initiates

A ONE-MINUTE QUIZ

ON YOUR LONG DISTANCE CALLING

1. Do you keep all Long Distance calls as BRIEF as possible?
2. Do you make only NECESSARY Long Distance calls?
3. When you use Long Distance, do you give the operator the NUMBER of the distant telephone, if you can?
4. Do you avoid calling between the hours 7 to 10 P.M. so that Service Men can call home?

If you can answer "yes" to these four questions, you rate an A+ for helping to keep lines clear for vital war calls.
