

Whitmore Writes Article

(Continued from page one) other countries were not so prodigal with their trained manpower. He said that Dr. N. A. Ragozin, a Russian petroleum engineer who recently visited the College, expressed astonishment at the drafting of American technical students.

Dr. Ragozin stated that Russia has more technical students than ever before. When the Russians retake a city from the Germans, one of the first things done is to rebuild the local university and fill it with students.

The chemistry and physics dean believes that a large number of chemists and chemical engineers, possibly 10,000, are in the armed forces and not engaged in technical work.

"Whatever the number, this is not the fault of the armed forces," asserted Dean Whitmore. "If a local board puts a chemist in the army, it is practically impossible for the army to find a job for him because outside the Chemical Warfare Service, there are very few chemical jobs there."

"The only thing you can profitably do with a misplaced chemist is take him out of the armed forces and put him in a gasoline refinery, rubber factory, a plant engaged in making explosives, or the like," proposed the College dean in his article.

"I fear very much that the fault is to a certain extent due to the natural modesty of technical men and their absorption in their technical work. We have allowed the public to think that the achievements of chemistry and other sciences and technologies are pure magic.

"We see a wizard like Edison inventing things, and ignore the hundreds of young technicians in his laboratories. On that assumption the public is perhaps justified in feeling that, for magic, all you need is one magician.

"Consequently, why should we not put all our young chemists and other technical men in the army and leave a few old magicians to wave their magic wands in order to produce the thousands of materials needed to carry on a modern war?

"But the material for fighting this war is not produced by magicians; it must be made by trained technicians, and the time has come when technical men must overcome their distaste for controversy and publicity and let the country know the truth," concluded Dean Whitmore.

V-12 Show

Broadway's "Heilzapoppin'" will provide the inspiration for the "Chow Hall" scene. The orderly MacAllister eating establishment will be completely transformed and a little seasoning added before being served steaming hot.

Office, calisthenics and barracks scenes will provide more grist for the comedy mill.

Pvt. Monroe Moskowitz plays the part of "Commander Stables" in the V-12 Follies presentation while Pvt. Vincent Wilson portrays "Lieut. Smiley" and A/S Fred Vogel takes the part of "Lieut. Meddlesome." A/S Arthur Lorenz is the stage version of Captain Spittle and A/S Albert Gremlich plays the role of "Gunner Harass."

WSGA Plans All-College Dance for White Hall

WSGA will hold an All-College dance in cooperation with WRA at White Hall on June 17. Final plans for the dance have not been completed, according to Patricia Diener, WSGA president.

Pat Enright was appointed by Senate as the freshman representative to the "Penn State in China" committee.

Junior Service Board will tap at the end of each semester beginning with this term instead of each year, Miss Diener announced.

WSGA elections will be made for the next three semesters May 29. If elected officers do not return for the summer session, a substitute will be appointed for that term, and original officers will serve for the fall and spring semesters only.

Home Ec Clothing Clinic Opens Advisory Service

Mrs. Lois J. Copper, a member of the clothing and textile staff of the College announced that the Clothing and Grooming Clinic sponsored by the home economics department has been reopened.

This Clinic was first opened in 1939 for the home economics students but since then it has been opened for all coeds and town women.

The Clinic tries to help the woman in her selection and care of clothing, use of cosmetics, and hair styling. This help is given in individual consultations.

It is especially important for the young woman starting out in a career to choose the right clothes and to make herself as attractive as possible. All girls and women should feel free to bring their problems to the clinic.

Consultations will be held in 117 Home Economics from 3:45 to 4:45 p.m. on Wednesdays and in 223 Home Economics from 3:45 to 4:45 p.m. on Thursdays.

CHAPEL SPEAKER

Rabbi Louis Wolsey will speak on "Religion in the Democratic Process" Sunday.

Philadelphia Rabbi Talks On Religion's Place In Democratic Process

"The Place of Religion in the Democratic Process" will be discussed by Dr. Louis Wolsey in Chapel Sunday morning. Dr. Wolsey is from Rodeph Shalom Congregation in Philadelphia.

Dr. Wolsey has held many positions of responsibility throughout the country, and was awarded the honorary D.D. degree in 1939 by the Hebrew Union College. He was president of the Hebrew Union College Alumni Association, 1913-14; president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, 1925-27; chancellor of the Jewish Chautauqua Society, 1925-38; and a charter member of the World Union for Progressive Judaism.

A native of Midland, Michigan, Dr. Wolsey was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1899, with a B.A. degree, and was ordained a rabbi at the Hebrew Union College the same year. He has done post-graduate work at the University of Chicago, Western Reserve University, and the University of Pennsylvania.

After graduation from college, the rabbi's first position was with Congregation Eshai Israel in Little Rock, Arkansas, where he served until 1907. He was then called to the Euclid Avenue Temple, Cleveland, Ohio, where he directed the building of that congregation's synagogue.

The Cleveland congregation offered him a life contract, but in 1925 he was released to accept the pulpit of Congregation Rodeph Shalom in Philadelphia, where he still serves.

The cover of the May issue of Engineer will carry a colored shot of the campus, announced Eugene Van Arx, editor.

With a turnout of 14 new candidates Monday, the prospects of next semester's magazine look good, it was also announced. However, the Engineer is still interested in candidates.

'Blossom-Time Ball' Buds In White Hall

"Blossom-Time Ball," the annual IWA scholarship fund dance, will be held in White Hall from 9 to 12 p.m. tomorrow.

Guests may come dressed formally, semi-formally, or informally, according to the committee. Music will be provided by the Navy-Marine Band and tickets may be obtained at student union or at the door for $1.20.

"Girls are buying the tickets to the dance," according to Elaine Freed, chairman, "but if the men want to buy the tickets, we aren't discouraging them."

Assisting Miss Freed on the committee are Sally Bernstein and Adele Glod. Dorothy Funkhouser is publicity chairman.

There will be a German Club meeting in 304 Old Main at 7 p.m. Wednesday to elect officers. Refreshments will be served and songs will be sung after the business meeting.
