

Dean Ray Requests Coeds To Make Vacations Count

Miss Charlotte E. Ray, dean of women, made the following announcements recently encouraging women to make a wise choice before deciding what to do during the coming summer vacation.

"Making a decision is a terrible ordeal for some who have never exposed themselves to education; for the college woman of today, it is a matter of daily routine. Before long each of you must decide what she will do with this summer to make it count for her country and for her own welfare. Some will need a rest for at least part of the summer, perhaps combining this with a job or with a short term of study. Others, we hope many, will fit into defense jobs or into work that will release men for the armed services. Many more will return to campus to continue study and fit themselves for the jobs ahead.

"Whichever way you decide, you will be impelled by the thought that the boys of this College are giving up everything for you and me—their education, their health, their lives. When some of them return, shall we be able to give an accounting of our time in a way that will prove us kindred spirits with the great heroes of our day?"
