Greek War Relief Opens Campaign

To secure clothes for destitute Greeks, suffering since 1942 under the iron heel of the Nazis, the Greek War Relief Association opened its drive on campus this week. Donations should be turned in to Student Union.

Under existing conditions one pair of shoes costs 400 million inflation dollars. An article from the Baltimore Sun states that clothes are so scarce the vice-president of the Supreme Court in Athens recently had his last blanket cut into a suit of clothes.

Stressing that half the people are without coats or shoes, the committee on campus says the following articles will be especially useful: Coats, light or heavy, suits, dresses, sweaters, pajamas, underwear, socks, shoes, scarves, gloves, caps and soap.

Visiting Deans, Teachers Exchange Ideas on Colleges

In conjunction with its attempt to establish close contact among schools in order to exchange ideas on different phases of college life, WSGA introduced at its regular Wednesday night meeting, deans of women and teachers from visiting high schools and colleges in the state.

After explaining to the visiting guests that WSGA had taken a poll to determine what new features the Coeds would like to see introduced on this campus, M. M. Dunlap, chairman of the Polling Committee, reported that a majority of students requested that White Hall be opened to women for swimming on Sunday afternoons. This plan has now been put into effect.

Plans are still underway for a Student Union building, Rosalie Devecka, chairman of the committee, reported, and letters have been received from other universities suggesting unique features that might be embodied in the proposed Student Union building at Penn State.

Miss Devecka told the group that these letters have been complied in a scrap book, and that they will be presented to President Hetzel when the committee meets with him to discuss the plans.

The freshman senator, Elizabeth Ann Berkheimer, brought a plea from Freshman Council that the freshman women be allowed 7 o'clock dating privileges during the week, instead of the 5:30 deadline now imposed upon them. However, WSGA rejected the proposal on the grounds that below grades were not in yet, and thus it was too early in the semester to determine whether the privilege should be granted.

It was suggested by Joan Huber town senator, that action might be taken on the Collegian editorial of three weeks ago, calling for the establishment of a student committee to aid in the post war reorganization plans for the Liberal Arts school.

Gertrude G. Rosen president of WSGA, said that the matter would be referred to Cabinet.

Marguerite Susanin was appointed treasurer of WSGA for the summer semester and Patricia Trester was appointed Independent Women Senator.
