

Russian Club Aids War Relief Drive

The Russian Club will sponsor a combined community and campus drive for the aid of The Russian War Relief Kit program from September 18 to October 1.

All contributions will be used to supply families with packages containing household necessities which are practically non-existent in Russia's war-ruined cities and villages.

A clothing drive will also be launched during the same period. This clothing will be sent to the areas now being liberated from the Nazi invaders.

Elaborate plans have been made for this drive. Alpha Rho Omega will have a library display describing the program. The Russian Club has also contacted the Russian Embassy and may have a Russian diplomat come to the college to speak.

Prominent in aiding the club in this drive are Dr. and Mrs. Carl Hasek, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Selsam, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Krymine, Dr. and Mrs. Calvert Wright, Father Constantine Auroroff, and Mrs. Rose Jermain.

New Lubricating Process To Permit Higher Flights

Engineers familiar with lubricating problems, attending a two-day meeting at the College, today witnessed a newly developed lubrication system that will enable high flying airplanes to go even higher—up 20,000 feet more.

Knowing that ordinary lubrication systems fail in altitude because of low barometric pressure (which at 40,000 feet is only one-sixth of that at sea-level) representatives of almost all the nation's major airplane and engine manufacturers as well as the Army, Navy and government came to the Diesel Laboratory to see the new system demonstrated.

The new system is known as the S-S system after the men who jointly developed it—Dr. P. H. Schweitzer, professor of engineering research at the College, and L. P. Sharples, president of the Sharples Corp., Philadelphia. The two delivered the paper yesterday afternoon explaining the system. Later, the actual workings of the system were demonstrated by means of transparent equipment.

The following advantages are claimed for the new system: (1) It raises the lubrication ceiling by 10 to 20,000 feet; (2) It is lighter and perhaps simpler than the conventional system because it uses a plain tank instead of a hopper tank and a much smaller size tubing between the tank and pressure pump. The deaerator and eductor are simple and light; (3) It permits location of the oil tank at almost any part of the plane; (4) Diluent can be introduced into the circulating oil system without diluting the oil in the tank; (5) The air is eliminated from the oil before the cooler, when the oil is hot. The efficiency of the oil cooler is thereby improved and the likelihood of over-foaming is reduced.

Successful flight tests with aircraft using the new system were described at the meeting by E. A. Metz of the Allison Division, General Motors Corporation, and H. P. Gilpin, of Bell Aircraft.

Two other papers were presented at the meeting. R. J. S. Pigott of the Gulf Research and Development Co., reported on his new rotary pump for aircraft engine lubrication, and W. L. Weeks, Wright Aeronautical Corp. reported on aircraft power plant lubrication.
