Bolivian Student Finds College 'Jollie'

By RUTH TISHERMAN

Lilia Salgueiro has achieved national recognition in her native Bolivia as its first woman architectural engineer, but according to this dark eyed South American who recently enrolled in the College, it's far more "jollie" being just one of the "Ath" girls.

Though she arrived in the United States only eight days ago with merely a few dozen English words at her command, Lilia already will tell you with a flashing good neighborly smile, "America—I like eet verree verree much."

Having received the 1944-45 Pan-American Scholarship, awarded annually by the Pennsylvania Federation of Womens Clubs under the auspices of the Institute of International Education to an outstanding South American student, Lilia is enrolled for a year at State as a graduate in the department of Architecture headed by Prof.

B. K. Johnstone. At the end of this time she will take a cross-country tour of hospitals and low cost housing projects by means of a fellowship granted her for this purpose by the College.

Lilia is particularly pleased with American boys. "They are—how you say, lively, laughing, like boys in my own cuntry." But American girls amaze her. "They are more pretty and more high than in Bolivia," she said.

"I like to do . . .," Lilia enthusiastically began, and then pantomimed fencing, shooting, and riding. She is typically American in her love of sports, for as she explained, "Football and baseball are in Bolivia too."

One aspect of American college life particularly surprises her. "How can so manee go to school?" she asked. At the University of Saint Andrew from which she graduated, 120 men students were in her freshman class, but only five received diplomas. "No monee," Lilia explained.

A favorite with her classmates already, Lilia finds that there is one thing that all girls everywhere now have in common. As she said, "We have boy friends fighting."

Lilia is engaged to a British engineer whom she hopes to marry after the war.

Get Collegian Thursday

Next week's issue of Collegian will be published Thursday instead of Friday. The change in date is caused by Thanksgiving Holiday, when employees at the print shop will not be working.

There will be no meeting for Collegian candidates next week. Staff members report with stories Tuesday evening.

Lion Squad Seeks 6th Grid Victory Over Maryland

Navy Trainees Parade At Last Home Tussle

Nittany gridders will seek their sixth win of the season and their sixth victory over the University of Maryland eleven when they meet a squad of civilian students, underage, 4-F's, and discharged servicemen at New Beaver Field, 2 p. m., tomorrow, in the last home tussle.

Speedy Johnny Chuckran, who received a hip injury in the Temple game Saturday, returned to State College Tuesday but will not see action in tomorrow's game. Tailback El Petchel will probably be given the starting nod.

Navy trainees and the V-12 band will parade between the halves of the Penn State-Maryland game instead of before the kickoff as in previous games, Comdr. Trusdell Wisner said.

Hatmen, Frosh To March

Hatmen will be on the field only during the halves of the game, said A/S J. P. Anderson, president of Skull and Bones. They will supervise the marching of Frosh offenders around the track.

The Lions will be encountering an easier foe than last Saturday, Maryland suffering six defeats and one tie this season despite the return of four lettermen to the first string.

Coach Higgins will send Dino Taccalozzi onto the field as quarterback, Larry Cooney in the wingback slot, and Al Lang in the fullback position. Ed Voll and Harry Muckle will see their share of action in the backfield as the game goes on.

Higgins Picks Line

Forming the line will be Don Miltenberger and Bob Hicks at the ends, Caskey and Norton as tackles, and Simon and Matthews as guards. The latter will be relieved by V-12ers Rutkowski and Dimmerling.

Kasanovich, McCoy, and Milson will share the duties as center with Kasanovich opening the game.

Maryland boasts the return of 165-pound Towanda half-back Charles Ryan from last year's team as well as alert guard Les Daly, 185-pound Washington tackle Wilbur Rock, and staunch end Frank Doory.

Besides Ryan, midget Duane Bates, Pittsburgher Sal Fastuca, and Les Smith will start in the backfield. The team averages six feet in height.

Bishop Corson to Speak In Schwab at Chapel Thanksgiving Services

Dr. Fred B. Corson, Bishop of the Philadelphia area of the Methodist Church, will speak in Chapel Sunday on the subject, "A Wise Man's Question."

Bishop Corson served as President of Dickinson College for ten years and was appointed Bishop this year. He was a member of the World Peace Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Governor's Committee for Revision of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

He received his A. B., A. M. and D. D. from Dickinson, his L. L. D. from the University of Pennsylvania and Western Maryland College. Ordained to the Methodist Episcopal ministry in 1920, he served as pastor in 8 churches.

The Bishop belongs to Phi Beta Kappa, Kappa Sigma and Omicron Delta Kappa fraternities.

"Prayer for Thanksgiving," an Old Netherlands Hymn, will be sung by the choir.
