Dean Requests Coeds Report To Dispensary

"Any coed returning to College from a home in which illness is present must report to the Health Service immediately upon her return to campus," stated Charlotte E. Ray, dean of women, today.

"This precaution," warned Dean Ray, "is necessary in order to protect not only the student herself but also her associates, all of whom may be endangered if she has come from a home in which there was a communicable disease."

Dean Ray also added that any student called home suddenly to a house in which there is known to be a communicable disease should notify the Health Service before leaving.

Freshman Registration

Freshmen registrations has been changed from 8 a. m. February 28 to 7 p. m. Mar. 1, William S. Hoffman, College registrar, announced today. Since the entering class is so small a shortened freshmen week program has been planned.

Upperclass registration will take place on March 2 and 3, as originally scheduled. The spring semester will start Monday, March 5.

Attention, Frosh

Removal of customs and Move-up Day for first and second semester freshman women will go into effect today, according to Elizabeth Robinson, Judicial head.

First semester women may remove their green bows and name cards.

Second semester women are now granted sophomore privileges. These include one o'clocks on Friday and Saturday nights, dating on week nights until ten o'clock, and one eleven o'clock per month.

We The Women

To boost our self-esteem we like to recall the remarks of numbers of visitors at Penn State who have admired the comely appearance and careful grooming of the coeds.

Recently, however, information has been received at the Dean of Women's office that some coeds have been attired, shall we say sloppily, when they go on bus or train journeys. This certainly doesn't reflect well on Penn State's name, or for that matter on Penn State coeds.

With travel conditions as they are today, coeds are not expected to travel in the very latest style from Schlow's, but they are expected to travel neatly and to be well groomed, and thereby prove that the human element of the College equals the beautiful surroundings.

Proceeds from the Cwens-Mortar Board sponsored "Spinsters' Skip" December 9, 1944, supplemented the scholarship fund for the fall semester.

'Thirty Seconds' Authentic to the Very Last Detail

Down to the smallest exciting detail, "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo" is not only a true story, but the most accurate motion picture ever filmed. Its authenticity was assured by three young heroes of the Tokyo raid. They are Major Ted W. Lawson, author with Robert Considine of the absorbing best-seller account of the raid from which the picture was adapted; Major Dean Davenport, his co-pilot of their B-25 bomber, the Ruptured Duck, and Lieutenant H. Allen Fairbanks, Navy fighter pilot who on the raid, was assigned to the famed aircraft carrier Hornet.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film, with Van Johnson, Robert Walker and Phyllis Thaxter, and with Spencer Tracy as Lieutenant Colonel (now Lieutenant General) James H. Doolittle, opens at the Cathaum Theatre. Adv.
