

Library Receives Memorial Gifts

The College Library recently received a gift of books and newspapers from W. H. Nesbit of Milton as a memorial to Joseph N. G. Nesbit, who graduated in engineering from the College with the degrees of E. E. in 1904 and M. E. in 1908.

Among the books of especial value and interest are many early Pennsylvania imprints. The collection includes books on foreign relations, biographies of American pioneers, Bibles or parts of Bibles and religious books, a gift book, and other items. The newspapers include miscellaneous numbers of "The Stars and Stripes" and "Trench and Camp" which were issued during World War I by American units in the war.

Another gift to the College Library by an anonymous donor includes a number of special issues of the Philadelphia Inquirer, published during the Civil War, and a copy of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin dated September 7, 1901, relating to McKinley's assassination.

MI School Helps Publish State Mineral Reports

The School of Mineral Industries at the College has cooperated with the State Department of Internal Affairs in the publication of a report entitled "Pennsylvania's Mineral Heritage."

According to William S. Livengood Jr., secretary of the State Department, the purpose of the report is to provide a source of accurate information for those interested in further industrial development of Pennsylvania's mineral industries and to serve as a text book for library, college, and school use.

Included on the committee which prepared the report were Dr. Edward Steigle, dean of the school; Dr. W. M. Myers, associate professor of mineral economics and technology; and Dr. A. W. Gauger, director, Mineral Industries Research.

WSGA Requests Coeds to Conserve College Fuel

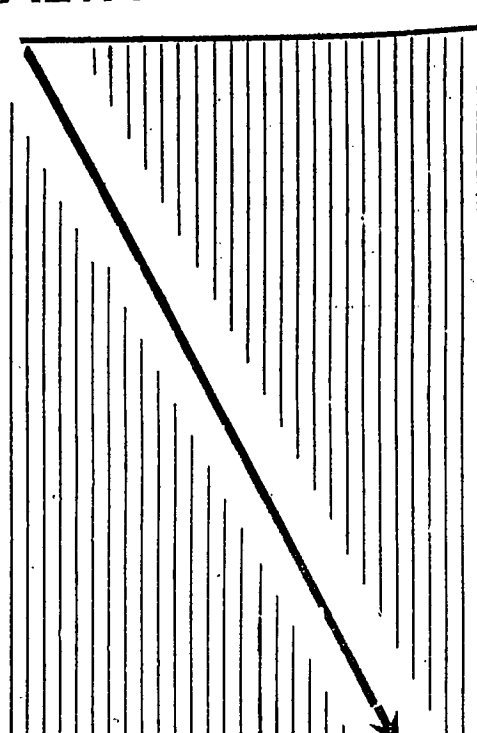

WSGA has issued a request to all coeds that they cooperate with Fuel Administrator James Byrnes' recent order concerning the conservation of coal.

As all the heat and light for the College are made from coal at the power plant, WSGA feels that great savings can be made if each coed will conscientiously turn out all unnecessary lights, particularly if she is to be out of the room, and turn off her radiator in place of opening her window should her room become too warm.

The Collegian office on campus will be open to receive classifieds or advertisements from 1 to 2 p.m. only, Monday through Friday.
