

Spring Semester Elections Slated For March 27, 28

All-College elections for the spring semester will be held March 27 and 28 in the first floor lounge of Old Main, Robert Gleichert, chairman of the Elections committee, announced today after receiving Cabinet approval earlier this week.

Voting will be conducted from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. on both days. Elections will be for the offices of president and secretary-treasurer in every semester except the first. All students who registered as regular students and who filled out the election forms will be eligible to vote.

So far two political parties have announced their intentions of competing in the election. They are the Key and Nittany cliques. Membership lists of the parties are to be turned in today, states the code.

The Elections committee will meet with candidates and clique chairmen in 318 Old Main at 8 p. m. March 26 to answer any questions, to clarify the code, and to hear any complaints concerning the code.

Two itemized expense accounts must be turned in at Student Union by noon on March 28 for the approval of the Elections committee. No party may spend more than $15 for publicity purposes. Donations are included in this budget and they must not exceed $5.

Clique chairmen must submit the names of all candidates, tabulated on a single petition, to Student Union.

Food Inspection Course Offered

Sponsored jointly by the College and the War Food Administration, a course in the inspection of processed foods will be conducted at the College from Tuesday, March 27 to Friday, March 30.

The course, which is designed to prepare men and women for positions as food inspectors with the United States Department of Agriculture, is open to college graduates in home economics, agricultural biological chemistry, and agricultural education, and to home economics seniors.

Instruction will include methods of inspection, methods of preservation, food and drug requirements, and general information on the determination of quality.

Students who satisfactorily pass the examination given at the end of the course and who show an aptitude for the work will be offered positions. Salaries for the first six months will be $810 plus overtime after which successful trainees will be promoted to $2000 per year plus overtime.

Registration may be made by contacting the office of Dr. Laura W. Drummond, head of the department of home economics at the College. There is no fee for the course.

Moore Advises Industry

Dr. Bruce V. Moore, head of the department of education and psychology at the College, addressed the supervisors of the Aluminum Company of America in New Kensington Friday.

His speech was the first in a series concerning the problems and techniques of adjusting and absorbing veterans into the organization.

Penn State's Own Hollywood

SETTING THE SCENE for a studio shot on the importance of driver training for "Teach Them to Drive". On the set: Raymond Tyson, Mrs. Lucetta Kennedy, and Corporal Shannon, of the Pennsylvania State Police. The technical crew: Paul Seitzinger, sound; Frank Neusbaum, director (with back to camera); and Luther Kepler, photography.

Players Select 'Brother Rat' Cast

Jane Staus and Richard Frontman, Helen Joanne Peoples, Portman Paget, and John Sadden will play the lead parts in Player's forthcoming production of "Brother Rat," to be held in Schwab Auditorium April 13 and 14.

The supporting cast will include Marion Wilder, Audrey Kreeger, Libby Peters, Joseph Vispi, Jack Seitchik, A/S Robert Stabley, Joseph Sitkin, Gabriel Roth, Robert Ernst, George Englert, Joseph Mayers, Morris Bortek, Harry Natschke, and A/S Fred Kecker.

There's a happy love affair between the effervescent Joyce (Jane Staus), a prom trotter from way back, and ingratiating (in spite of his being northern) Billy Randolph (Richard Frontman).

Bing (Portman Paget) and Kate (Libby Peters), secretly married strike the note for the general mayhem which usually ensues. Dan Crawford (John Sadden) has a full time job just playing a happy medium between his two room mates, Billy and Bing.

Neusbaum Writes, Directs Movie On Highway Safety

"Teach Them To Drive," an educational film directed and written by Frank Neusbaum, associate professor of dramatics at the College, will appear soon, starring past and present Penn State Players, professors at the College, high school students, townspeople, Alabama school children, and Pennsylvania State Police.

Nearly 150 people appeared in the fifth major educational film to be made by Penn State's movie production unit.

In the interests of highway safety "Teach Them To Drive" was produced in cooperation with the American Legion and the Automotive Safety Foundation to encourage the establishment of planned training in automobile driving in the schools.

The male lead, that of the father whose son is killed in an accident, is played by Raymond Tyson, assistant professor of speech, formerly of the Cleveland Playhouse acting staff. He is the father who persuades his community to give driving lessons to the high school students.

His wife is Mrs. Lucetta Kennedy, who has had professional experience with the Schuberts.

John Henry Frizzell, professor of public speaking, is heard as the narrator.

The two juvenile leads are played by Jean Thurston, now at the College, and Robert Keller. Both were then students at the State College High School.

Soon to be released, this 25 minute production was shot in Alabama and in State College.

Forster Opens Forum Series

"Work or Fight Legislation" will be the title of the first of three discussion meetings to be presented by the College Forum. The discussion will be held in the Hugh Beaver Room, Old Main, 4:15 p.m., Wednesday. Kent Forster, of the history department, will be the speaker, and Dr. K. D. Hutchinson, professor of economics, will preside as chairman.

The College Forum Advisory Committee met in Room 308 of the central library, 4:15 p.m. last Thursday to complete plans for the group of three discussions and to elect new members to the Advisory Committee. This is the second consecutive year that the forum has been held.

"To What Extent Should Curriculum Planning be Affected by Student Desires," the second of the discussions, will be held April 4. Professor E. W. Callenbach, of the poultry husbandry department, will act as chairman.

The last in the series will be "Issues of the San Francisco Security Conference," April 18, with Dr. C. C. Peters, School of Education, presiding. All three of the discussions will be held in the Hugh Beaver Room at 4:15 p.m.

New members of the Advisory Committee are Dr. Arnold Currier, professor of chemistry; Rabbi Victor Eppstein, of the Hillel Foundation; Kent Forster, of the history department; Dr. William M. Myers, professor of mineral economics; Audrey Ryback, 6th semester, journalism; Mrs. Mary W. Streiffeler, instructor in home economics education; Richard Werner, 3rd semester, Lower Division. Mrs. Streiffeler has been elected secretary of the committee, and Dr. K. D. Hutchinson, chairman.

National Magazine Praises College Business Survey

Editor and Publisher magazine recently referred to the "very reputable Pennsylvania Business Survey." This survey is published here on campus by the Bureau of Business Research, School of Liberal Arts.

According to Prof. Carl W. Hasek, head of the Business Survey staff, "it is a monthly summary of business conditions in Pennsylvania." The publication's circulation includes important business houses and government agencies. It has been quoted widely, and is the best continuous publicity matter for the College." Prof. Hasek qualified his last statement by declaring that the Pennsylvania Business Survey "provides more newspaper lineage for the College than any other single item."

The latest issue indicates that general business in leading Pennsylvania industrial areas during January was up six per cent from December and increased three per cent from a year ago. Anthracite coal, crude petroleum, and steel production were the only series to register declines after the seasonal adjustment from December to January.

One-half of the Survey is devoted to an analysis of business conditions in leading Pennsylvania cities, such as Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Altoona, and Bethlehem.

The Business Survey has been published by the Bureau of Business Research, in cooperation with the extension services, since 1938. Its staff includes Prof. Hasek, director; Prof. George L. Leffler, assistant director; Mary Virginia Brown, statistician; Prof. R. Hadly Waters, associate analyst; and Ann Sparhawk, secretary.

ASTP Men Transferred

Pfc. Sam Tribovich and Sgt. Jacob F. Krock, who have been stationed at the College with ASTP personnel, have been transferred to Camp Pickett, Va. They will become part of the 18th Service Command Unit. Neither Pfc. Tribovich nor Sgt. Krock will be replaced.

Cabinet Deplores Lack Of Spirit; Sets Elections

The lack of school spirit on the part of students was hit by members of the All-College Cabinet at the first meeting in Old Main Tuesday night.

Michael Lynch, sixth semester president, suggested that the Cabinet do something about that "Penn State Spirit" which is slowly disappearing from the College campus.

It was proposed that The Collegian cooperate with Cabinet in restoring school spirit. After a short discussion, Acting Chairman William Kelley asked Victor Danilov, editor of the paper, if The Collegian would help with the campaign.

Danilov said the newspaper would publish a series of articles describing the various student organizations on the campus starting next week with All-College Cabinet. He also stated that The Collegian would back the drive in any other way possible.

The matter was then dropped until the next meeting when further plans will be made to bring back school spirit at the College.

William Morton, chairman of the "Swing Inn" committee, made the report that "Swing Inn" would not be open in the Armory tonight. However, the Armory will be open tomorrow evening for dancing. There will be no admission charge.

Revision of the present All-College Cabinet Constitution was brought up at the meeting by several of the members. It was decided that the constitution will be reorganized in the near future. No definite action was taken because of the approaching election when the new Cabinet will complete the plans for revision.

Progress of the Red Cross War Fund drive on the campus was reported by Walter Falkenberg, fourth semester president and co-chairman of the College campaign. He stated that ISC raised approximately $100 for the fund last weekend at its dance. Falkenberg said that the women students have given $328.86 to the Red Cross and the men students nothing during the first week of the drive.

Robert Gleichert, chairman of the Elections Committee, read the changes in the code for this semester. He announced that elections for all semesters except the first will be held March 27 and 28 in the Old Main first floor lounge. The code was approved by the Cabinet.

Falkenberg said that the light at the Lion Shrine was out and should be replaced. Chairman Kelley was appointed to see that the grounds and buildings department put in a new bulb.

The meeting was attended by Walter Falkenberg, Judd Healy, William Kelley, Michael Lynch, Alice Mendenhall, and eight ex-officio members.

Pay Fees March 23

Payment of fees for the spring semester may be made in the Armory from 9 a.m. to noon, and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., March 23.

No estimate of the individual student's fees will be given out at the Bursar's office, but a fee estimate sheet may be obtained there to enable the student to calculate his expenses, stated Bursar Russell E. Clark.

The College will accept either cash or personal checks as payment. There will be a special window open for students who have applied for deferment of fees.
