

The Seventh War Loan Starts Today . . .

Help Carry The Flag Through Tokio

BY BUYING BIGGER WAR BONDS NOW!

Mile by mile, island by island, our men are moving toward Japan, paying for every inch of the way with pain and blood and all too often with their lives. These are the men who will one day carry the Stars and Stripes down the main street of Tokio. Some of these boys you know. Others you've read about in the papers. They are heroes. Every man who has the courage to face the hardships ahead—to obey orders when death is on all sides—is a hero. These men are fighting for their country—your country . . . Tom and Bill and Harry . . . your son, your brother, your sweetheart. These are the men that nothing can stop—the men who will march into Tokio . . . But before that day more lives will be lost . . . hundreds and thousands. Men you know and love will die. If you could shorten the long and treacherous road to Victory by one day, even by one hour, could you refuse? You cannot be an American and answer "no." That's why in this, the Seventh War Loan, you are being asked to buy an extra bond—a BIGGER bond, than you have bought before. Men are paying for Victory with their lives. You are asked to buy a bond. Make it a big one, the largest that you can possibly afford.
