Atherton Hall Turns Into Aviary—Pigeons Build Nest on Bureau

The housing shortage has hit the great outdoors!

Two coeds who live at 418 Atherton, returned from class one sunny morning to find that their room was no longer their own. A pair of pigeons had moved in via the open window and were perched on one of the bureaus.

Disturbed by the girls' intrusion, the birds stopped their cooing and departed for more familiar realms.

Later in the afternoon, however, the girls found that the pigeons had really moved in lock, stone, and barrel.

The stone part of this phase can be taken seriously for on the bureau were all kinds of things—twigs, pebbles, straw and a solitary worm-eaten potato chip.

The pigeons had decided that the bureau would be a wonderful place for a nest and were busy for the rest of the afternoon, flying in and out of the room with nest-building materials. The pile of rubbish on the bureau grew, and the coeds began to get apprehensions about the whole thing.

Lovers of nature, they decided to leave the pigeons alone. But by evening they could stand it no longer. Their room was taking on the appearance of a forest and the sound of a machine shop.

Finally when their guests had left for a while, feeling like Simon Legrees, the girls threw out the rubbish and shut the window.

The pigeons stood around for hours on the terrace outside room 418. At last, with a pitiful coo and a flap of their wings, they departed, deciding the great outdoors would just have to do this season.

Tribunal, Hatmen Halt Frosh Revolt

V-F (Victory-Freshman) Day started at 11 a.m. Monday when the freshman class voted to remove customs.

V-T (Victory-Tribunal) Day started at 9 p.m. that evening when Tribunal sent out flying squads of hatmen that rounded up a majority of the precocious class at a mass meeting and convinced the culprits to don the symbols of their greenness.

At the regular Tribunal meeting Wednesday, Chairman Newton lectured a number of frosh who neglected to take the "Frosh Bluebook", made provisions for those freshmen to take a bluebook in the office of the dean of men, and hung a sign on Frosh Joe Ridley.

A compulsory mass meeting for all freshmen on the steps of Old Main at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Engineering Library Offers Scientific Books

"Engineer Highlight Collection" in the Engineering Library, Main Engineering Building, at present features books chosen from a list selected by the Engineers' Council for Professional Development. These books may be borrowed by anyone interested in general reading of engineers and scientists.

An organization representing the principal national engineering societies, the Engineers' Council for Professional Development, studies matters relating to the betterment of the professional status of men in this profession. The reading list which it suggests for junior engineers is intended to supply the needs of upperclass students and graduates who desire to promote their own education by good reading.
