Wounded Veterans Excel In Automobile Driving

Look for veterans with artificial limbs to excel physically normal individuals as automobile drivers, says Amos Neyhart, administrative head of the Institute of Public Safety at the College.

"Amputees," the safety expert reminds, "will recognize their difficulties and be more fully aware of their limitations. They will be cautious, not cocky, drivers."

Neyhart, who served as consultant for the amputee driver training course which the American Automobile Association introduced at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, regards learning to drive as "an excellent way to recondition amputees."

"Being able to operate a car," he claims, "re-establishes their self-confidence. They realize they can get out, go places, and do things, just like other people."

The AIAA consultant pointed out that veterans who have lost both an arm and a leg, two arms, or two legs, can become "very successful drivers." Moreover, he says, they can learn to drive without benefit of any special gadgets.

Anonymous Art-Lover Buys Mack's Wood Cut For Glasgow College

"Willows on the Water", a wood-engraving by Dr. Warren B. Mack, head of the department of horticulture at the College, has been purchased by an anonymous art-lover for a donation to Glasgow University.

The wood-engraving was submitted in March to the Goodwill Exhibition of Contemporary American Art in London, where the unknown donor saw it. Dr. Mack, started his work in wood engraving in 1926, has completed more than 40 designs, many of them local scenes and landscapes. His "Spring Plowing", made in 1937, was awarded the Warren H. Manning Purchase Prize of the Southern Printmakers Society in 1943.

Interested since boyhood in the graphic arts, Dr. Mack is now an Academy of Design. His prints associate member of the National have been exhibited both nationally and internationally, and are included in the permanent collections of a number of museums and libraries.

Dr. Mack was listed among the technical masters of wood engraving of the present day in the foreword to the catalog of the third national exhibition of prints at the Library of Congress. His print, "Penn's Valley from Mount Nittany", is shown in this exhibit.

Smith Speaks

James T. Smith, executive secretary of the Penn State Christian Association, will speak at the College Chapel service on Sunday. His topic will be "Decisive Battles Behind Closed Doors."

Mr. Smith attended Kansas Wesleyan University, Salina, Kansas in 1931 after having spent part of one year in Business School. He was graduated from the University in 1937, spending one year of the five in under-graduate school, teaching at eight grades in a one room country school during the Kansas duststorms.

He received a scholarship to Yale University Divinity School, and after three years of study with a major in Religion in Higher Education, he graduated in 1940. His career began as Director of the Wesley Foundation for Methodist Students at the University of California, Berkeley. He was also Associate Minister of Trinity Church, Berkeley.

In 1942 he accepted the position as Minister for Youth at the First Methodist Church, Pasadena, Cal. where he worked for one year in cooperation with Dr. Albert E. Day. From there he moved back across the country in the fall of 1943 to become head of the Christian Association at the College.

Some of Mr. Smith's college activities were: president of the All-College Cabinet; member of a travelling collegian choir, A-Cappella, for four years; president of the Central Kansas Methodist Youth Movement, and member of varsity football and track teams. He was also active in collegiate oratory and debate.

Navy V-12 News

Last Saturday night Barracks 9 made its bid for the best barracks party of the semester. Highlights of the mid-party program were a spiritual by the quartet composed of Estelle Rouch, Joe Bondi, "Wild Bill" Berringer, and Tom Sankey, a piece of musical nothingness by Berringer called "Lunatic's Lullaby" and still another rendition of "Nancy Brown" by the southern rebels Archie Craft, Fred Poisson, and Lee Everett. Penn State Player Bob Stabley had the title role in the accompanying pantomime.

Because the annual physical given last month to all the trainees here showed that Chuck Johnson, Don Morton, and Les Szepesi failed to meet the vision requirements, the trio were separated from the unit last Tuesday. Chuck went to the Philadelphia Naval Hospital for a further checkup, while Don and Les were assigned to general detail at the Philly Naval Yard. Don got back his old rate of FC 3/c and Les once more is a yeoman 2/c. Taking Johnson's place as assistant officer in charge of Barracks 9 is Bob Riley.

In the sports world we learn that A/S John Hamilton will help Herb Mendt coach the Penn State soccer team when Coach Bill Jeffrey leaves for overseas next month. Johnny was All-American honorable mention last year and may break into the big eleven this season. Barracks 37 took the V-12 baseball trophy by a decisive margin this season, breaking the string of Barracks 36 championships at three.

While these little things have been going on, Dean Wagner, Lt. Jones, and Lt. Kimball have written a history of the unit, a kind of war diary of naval officer training at Penn State. Best of luck to George Leedom, Stan Rubin,

Fred Ziesenheim, and Harry Ek-dahl who finish their sixth semester and go on to midshipman's school.

Sailor of the week is Walt Nickle, late of the cruiser Minneapolis. Walt, a pre-war navy man, was coming into Pearl Harbor from patrol on the seventh of December, 1941. His ship escaped damage in this initial attack and served faithfully and well during the long months of dogged fighting that followed all over the Pacific. As a gunner's mate he served his five inch secondary in twenty one major engagements. In one of these battles the bow was blown off the ship and return to the States for repairs was necessary. The Minneapolis was present at the assault on Guadalcanal, Tas-safronga, Truk, Tarawa—all the hard-fought, bitter engagements that laid the groundwork for the present thrusts at Japan proper.
