Three new naval officers will arrive at the College this month to take over duties as instructors in naval science and tactics.

Lt. M. P. O'Connell, former faculty member at Manhattan College, arrives today. He comes from the Philadelphia Navy Yard, and was formerly stationed at Holy Cross with the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps.

Lt. George E. Grieb, who has seen three years of active duty in the Mediterranean on the cruiser Brooklyn, and Lt. Edward F. Lawler, who has been transferred from Camp Parry, Va., will assume their duties later in the month.

Maintenance Bill Provides Fund For Research Work

College was liable for the amount invested by the State through the General State Authority in the campus buildings which we generally speak of as the General State Authority Program."

President Hetzel revealed that the Governor also approved an act which clarifies and liberalizes the accounting controls of the Commonwealth as they affect College income other than State appropriations.

"This action," said he, "will be particularly helpful at this time in making available for use in meeting obligations which have accrued during the war period some items of income received from Federal war contracts."

"Such funds will be particularly helpful in providing for the salaries of staff members now on leave for war service, the repair and replacement of equipment exhausted during the war years, and for repairs to the physical plant which it has been impossible to care for during the war."

He added: "In spite of these generous and substantial provisions on the part of the Commonwealth, the College still faces difficult financial problems. Student enrollments are still approximately 40 per cent of normal and, therefore, income from student fees correspondingly low. In addition to this, the Federal programs, the income from which has been very helpful in carrying the overall financial load have been sharply reduced and the trend continues downward."

"Because of these circumstances, the total financial resources in prospect for the next biennium remain at about the same level as for the fiscal year just drawing to a close. While these circumstances make it impossible for us to expand College operations, they do give reasonable assurance that the essentials of the present College program and organization can be maintained. In other words, it now appears that we have seen the worst of the war economy as far as it affects the work and fortunes of the College and that we shall emerge in condition to meet the heavy demands which will be made upon us at the end of the war."

Beta Sigma Rho Elects

Beta Sigma Rho recently elected Eugene Siegel chancellor; Nelson Wollman, vice-chancellor; Mervin Will, warden; Stanley Chadwin, vice-warden; Sanford Rafsky, auditor.

Lt. Hollis B. Farnum is the first officer at the College to take a refresher course at Fort Benning, Ga., for all ROTC instructors. All officers now stationed at the College will take the course, which lasts for three weeks, before August.

The College death toll in this war already exceeds 235, with more than 50 others missing in action. The Alumni Association estimates prisoners of war at 43. The toll in World War I was 77.
