Navy V-12 News

A new and refreshed V-12 unit, just returned from inter-semester leave, gave a commendable performance in the Independence Day parade last Wednesday. A lot of credit is due the thirty new men on board, all fleet men with long navy experience, and all former college men. Many of these new men have played college football too, and we're hoping they'll strengthen the Nittany gridders this fall.

In a less happy vein we note that Tom Einbecker, Charlie Grube, "Moon" Mullins, "Bugs" Colvin, Joe Fiore, R. J. Glenn, and Frank Leggieri are now serving at Great Lakes while George English and "Red" Welch are awaiting ship at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. . . . All the men of the unit express their deep regret at Commander Wisner's recent loss of his mother.

With courses in naval science now part of the V-12 curriculum, the complement of officers stationed at the College has been increased. First to arrive was Lt. Maurice P. O'Connell, formerly stationed at Holy Cross where he was assigned to duty as instructor in naval science. Newly arrived from the fleet are Lts. Edward F. Lawler and George E. Grieb. Lt. Lawler has served as assistant navigator, turret officer, division officer, five-inch battery officer, and CIC watch officer aboard the heavy cruiser Chester. The Chester was active in the bombardments of the Marshalls, the Gilberts, the Kuriles, Marcus, Wake, and Iwo Jima besides escorting carriers at the Palau and Philippines air strikes. At present Lt. Lawler is busy buying furniture, and it is said that before the month is out he'll be a bachelor no longer.

Lt. Grieb, on the other hand, served for almost three years aboard the U.S.S. Brooklyn. He served as main battery gunnery officer in the actions at Casablanca, Tunisia, Anzio, and South France as well as convoy duty to Panama and Scotland. Rounding out the officer staff will be Lt. John F. Ganong, who is scheduled to arrive July 15. At the same time Lt. Kimball will leave for temporary duty at Muhlenberg College. Newly aboard, too, we have chief athletic specialist John C. Grenfell, once coach at a San Diego high school and for the last three years an athletic specialist at Bainbridge, Great Lakes, and Norfolk.
