

Brennan Travels To Washington

Commander Patrick Brennan represented the X-G-I Club at the first national convention of the National Veterans' Collegiate Association in Washington, D. C., on July 6.

Highlighting the convention was a talk by Congressman Karl E. Mundt, South Dakota, on his bill for an International Office of Education. The bill is now before Congress.

Commander Brennan, who was elected vice-president, will give a favorable report to the X-G-I Club on the advisability of joining the Association. "It is time for Penn State and all the service clubs of the various universities and colleges to unite to form a pressure group to obtain more educational benefits for the veteran and to cut down the red tape," he said.

The NVCA has as its immediate goal the revision of the GI Bill of Rights to increase the age limit that veterans may attend colleges and to increase the allotments granted to them by the Veterans Administration.

Among the schools represented at the convention are Columbia, New York University, the University of Pennsylvania, Temple University, George Washington University, Indiana University Law School, the University of Wyoming, the University of Colorado, and the University of Arizona.

With 8 Addresses Letter Travels 21,000 Miles

If you've thought of complaining to the post office because your mail doesn't reach you on time, consider the case of the letter that traveled over 21,000 miles with eight new forwarding addresses before it reached its destination, and then was only 50 miles from the College where the letter was sent out to begin with.

S/Sgt. O. R. C. hadn't turned in his lessons for a correspondence course in accounting which he was taking at the College so his instructor, Joseph F. Bradley, wrote to him at his camp in Georgia on February 12 to see what the difficulty was.

But O. R. C. moved too fast and the letter followed him from Georgia through Utah, California, Hollandia in New Guinea, Leyte in the Philippines, back to the United States, through two Army hospitals, and finally caught up with him at Lewisburg, Pennsylvania on July 1.

In the meantime the sergeant had tried to study (he took his correspondence course with him wherever he went) but events moved too swiftly. However, he assures Mr. Bradley that he has not lost interest in his course, and he says that under present circumstances it will be even more valuable to him. When he returns to a hospital July 21 he will resume work on the lessons right away.

Campus Briefs

Audiovisual Aid

Approximately 800 films are shipped each month to schools and industries throughout the State by the College audiovisual aids service. This service is also utilized in resident instruction at the rate of about 20 films per day.

College War Workers

Approximately 140,000 men and women were prepared for war jobs by the College during the last five years under the terms of the Engineering, Science, and Management War Training Program. This total represents 7.7 per cent, or one-thirteenth, of the national enrollment.

200 Significant Courses

A committee appointed to chart postwar courses at the College estimates that at least 200 of the courses now offered may be classified as international in scope. Political science, history, and languages were rated highly in this department.

Delta Tau Delta Elects

Joseph Steel was elected president of Delta Tau Delta recently. Other officers are James Sommerfeld, vice-president and secretary, and Bill Spliethoff, treasurer.

Bricklayer Sells Bonds

Abraham Lincoln Hite, the College bricklayer who prides himself on his physical resemblance to the Civil War president, is still Centre county's most active war bond salesman. His stamp and bond sales at county schools already total more than $75,000.

Sigma Chi Elects

Sigma Chi elected the following officers for the summer semester: David Adams, president; Leon Erdman, vice-president; A/S James Jones, secretary; Herbert Wright, treasurer; A/S Donald Reibe, associate editor; Harry McMillin, IFC representative.

Sigma Chi's A/S Robert Eastlin and A/S William Cobbs, from Michigan State College and Roanoke College respectively, have joined the V-12 unit this semester.

Modern Music Course

Professor Hummel Fishburn, head of the music department, has announced that a course in the appreciation of modern music will be given in 117 Carnegie Hall at 7 o'clock every Tuesday, starting next week.

There will be no credit given for attending the course, and anyone may attend. William C. Reutti will conduct the course.

Gibbs Scholarship

A scholarship has been awarded to May Cleary by the Katherine Gibbs Secretarial School of New York, according to Miss Charlotte E. Ray, dean of women. Miss Cleary is the first student at the College ever to win this scholarship.

Debate Council Elects

At a recent meeting of the Forensic Council, co-ordinating body for men's and women's debating teams, the following officers were elected: Otis Castleberry, president; Sanford Rafsky, vice-president; and Betty Coplan, secretary.

In addition to Miss Coplan, other new appointees to the council include A/S James Jones, A/S Fred Kecker, and Ralph John.

Common Sense

Common Sense asks all students interested in serving on either the publicity or cultural committees to contact Mary Le Clair, 207 Atherton, either Saturday, 11 a.m., or any evening from 6 to 7 p.m. before Monday.

Campus Police Warn Students Against Theft

Captain Phillip A. Mark of the Campus Patrol advises all students having large sums of money to deposit that money in the bank, therefore insuring themselves against any loss or theft. He also warned students against leaving their coats on the racks in the halls of buildings; many coats have been stolen and it is safer to take them into the classrooms.

Captain Mark announced that there is still a need for men on the Patrol. All students interested should leave their names at the Patrol Office in Old Main.
