Six Students Win Positions On Varsity Debate Team

Six students were recently named to the varsity debate team by Prof. J. F. O'Brien, coach.

They are A/S Phillip P. Bockley, Robert Drucker, Eugene Fulmer, Allan H. Grossman, William S. Karn, and Martin Lennig. Lennig was formerly a member of the debate team and second place winner in the All-College speaking contest last semester.

Selections were made following five-minute speeches made by the candidates on the topic, "Should the federal government adopt a permanent policy requiring a full year of military training for all able-bodied male youths 17-18 years of age, or upon graduation, whichever comes first?"

Engineering, Science, War Management Training To Cease, Says Keller

Instruction under the Engineering, Science, and Management War Training program at the College has been discontinued since June 30, announced J. O. Keller, assistant to the president in charge of extension.

A few additional classes will be continued to round out the existing courses. The ESMWT program has ranged from elementary industrial courses to specialized courses in management training. The program served to fill the loss of technical workers taken into the armed services.

The College has trained 140,000 of the 1,775,000 war workers trained under the ESMWT, which constitutes 7.7 percent or one-thirteenth of all the workers trained. From 144 to 216 colleges have offered these programs under the extension plan.

This year the eighth ESMWT program at the College has enrolled about 8000 men and women, including 230 ex-service men and women.

Also included in the total were 77 members of the armed forces, mostly in the middle district where there is a concentration of service camps around Harrisburg.

Enrollments in districts, in round numbers, was: Allentown, 1200; Erie, 980; Middle District, 1930; Philadelphia, 1660; Pittsburgh, 1700; and Wilkes-Barre, 430.

Armed Forces Institute Expects Enrollment Rise

An increased enrollment in the U. S. Armed Forces Institute was predicted today by Allen E. Wierman, acting supervisor of correspondence instruction at the College, after he received a telegram stating that, effective July 6, U. S. Army Officers may enroll through the U. S. A. F. I. on the same basis as enlisted personnel.

Under this plan the enlisted man pays half the cost of tuition and books and the army pays half (not to exceed $20). As the law originally read, army officers were excluded from the privileges offered other members of the armed forces.

Survey Shows 1718 'Ags' Serve In Armed Forces

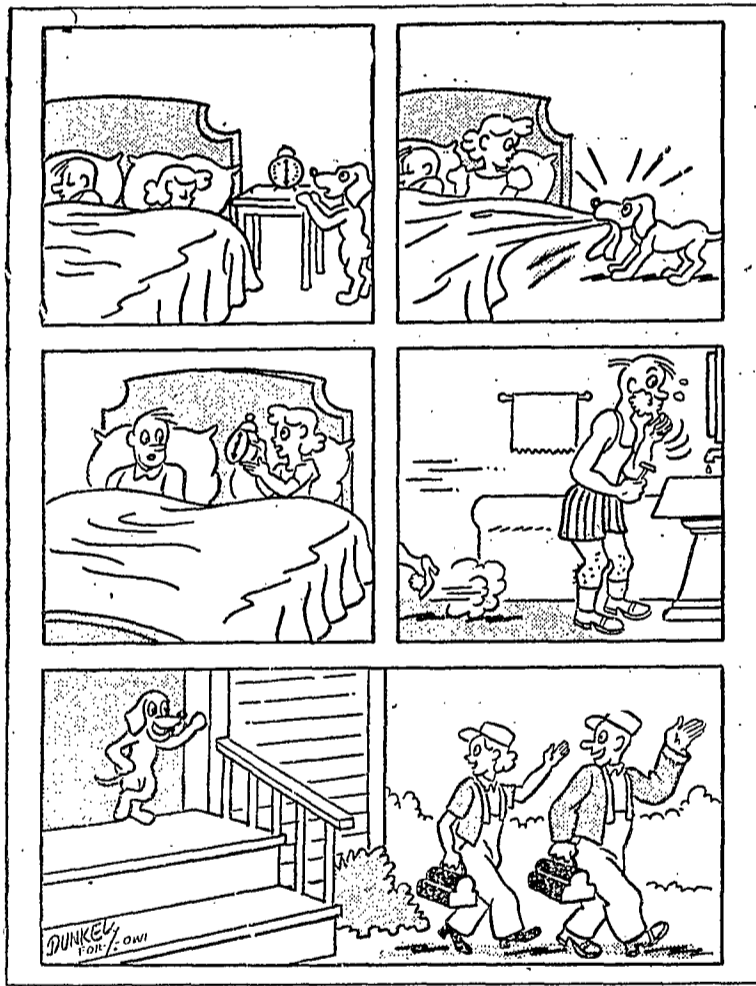

A recent survey revealed a total of 1718 faculty members, alumni, former students, and employees of the School of Agriculture at the College who have seen service in the armed forces. This figure includes 33 faculty members.

Most recent records show that 44 of these former "Ags" have made the supreme sacrifice for their country. The forestry department has the largest representation, as well as suffering the longest list of casualties.

Special recognition of valor has been made to 23 "Ags" while several have received battle field promotions. A few members of the staff have been honorably discharged and returned to their former duties.

We're Sorry

In an incorrect statement in last week's COLLEGIAN, Comdr. Trusdell Wisner, V-12 commandant, was named as the head of the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps which will start at the College on Nov. 1. No one has as yet been designated for this post.
