

WSGA Outlines Final Plans For Freshman Coeds Exam

Senate of Women's Student Government Association Wednesday night made final plans for the bluebook on campus knowledge which is to be administered to all freshman women this week. In addition to the bluebook discussion members received a report on the results of unit elections. Coeds elected in these dormitory divisions will serve either on House of Representatives or on Freshman Council.

The "Frosh Bluebook" in 110 Home Economics at 7 o'clock Monday night is compulsory. This announcement was made today by Ruth Moon, Senate member in charge of the bluebook committee.

Each freshman woman must bring a 16-page bluebook with her when she comes to the test. Those coeds who are unable to attend because of some valid excuse must leave slips of papers with their names and the reasons for their absences in the Judicial box in Women's Building, stated Mary Haines, Judicial chairman.

Coeds are advised by members of WSGA to study the Student Handbook and the All-College Constitution. Senior sponsors will aid their groups by stressing certain sections in these.

Included in the questions will be such points as locations of buildings, names of schools and their deans, positions in All-College Cabinet, campus terms and initials, customs and dormitory regulations, and words of songs and cheers. Most of the questions will be of the essay type, but a few true and false have also been included.

Mary Margaret Dunlap, president of Senate, reminds freshman women that the general class showing on this test will influence the length and strictness of regulations for all freshman coeds.

Proctors for the examination, in addition to Miss Moon, are: Anna Atkins, Rita Grossman, Constance Miceli, and Patricia Reiff.

Also announced at the Senate meeting were the names of the 10 members of House of Representatives and the 12 coeds who are to serve on Freshman Council. All these women were elected to also Bluebook Blues?

Follow These Hints

Do you worry about bluebooks? To those of you who do, particularly the uninformed freshmen, these little hints are offered which are guaranteed to pull you through the worst of exams.

Because you're so busy you won't get around to studying till the day before at the earliest. You should rest up for the coming event however, so when not attending Corner Room 200, relax in the sun or catch up on your Esquire and True Romances reading. Be sure and answer all letters so they won't be hanging over your head. Take a little nap before dinner. Then when evening comes you're all set.

During the course of the evening a good idea is to call up the prof and ask what questions he's going to give. This will make him think you're ambitious and you won't waste time studying non-essentials.

No one can study however, when in an unhappy frame of mind, so to forestall this, accept that date, or participate in a game of bridge.

Don't get worried as the hours slip by—it's not as late as you think.

Whatever you do, stock up on food, and eat heartily as a fortification against exhaustion. This will also draw all your fellow students to the room and you can be certain to settle postwar problems, and the question of Penn State men.

By 2 a.m. the bull session should be over and you'll be just in the mood for good, earnest study, so get out your notes and start to look over them. Are your eyes droopy? Go to bed, as I should have done before I wrote this.

New delegates to the House of Representatives include: Jewel Zanonoff, Joanne Campbell, Jane Dye, Ruth Freed, Bernice Greenes, Maria Hanzlick, Betty Herring, Virginia Ladd, Carolyn Manville, and Shirley McMullen.

Experiment Station

Now Preserves

Food By Freezing

Four housewives have recently been introduced into a new method of preserving food. Participating in experiments carried out by the Agricultural Experiment Station, they prove that freezing is the most acceptable method of preserving food, since it allows the food to remain nearest to its natural state.

The four housewives, who were included as collaborators and critics in these experiments, were instructed in methods of handling, wrapping, and processing foods for freezing. They prepared the home-grown foods in the same careful manner as for table use. The fruits were put up in syrup or sugar, depending on each family's taste. The vegetables were blanched from three to four minutes in boiling water, cooled, packed, and sealed. Asparagus, rhubarb, peas, corn, string beans, lima beans, cauliflower, strawberries, raspberries, cherries, and peaches were the foods involved in the experiment.

The departments of agricultural engineering, home economics, bacteriology, and biochemistry collaborated to study the rates of freezing. They now offer proof to show that the quicker the product freezes, the higher is its quality and the longer it can be stored in a frozen state.

According to research agriculturalist John E. Nicholas, professor of agricultural engineering, recent experiments indicate three phases in freezing foods, namely, pre-cooling, when the food is placed in the freezer compartment to cool from its original temperature to that of freezing; freezing, when the package remains in the freezer so that all its contents will be thoroughly frozen; and sub-cooling, when the product cools from the temperature at which it froze to the freezer environment.

"The time it takes for a package of food to freeze depends upon several factors, particularly the nature of the food, the size and shape of the package, the wrapping material, and the number of layers of wrapping material," declared Professor Nicholas. "Thus the interval may be as short as two minutes when the food is unpackaged and placed in one layer, or it may be as long as two hours."

Products may be "quick" or "sharp" frozen, depending on the time the juices within the food solidify, Professor Nicholas went on to say. If the interval is 30 minutes or less, it is called "quick" freezing. Products frozen longer than 30 minutes, some of them requiring as long as 18 hours, are said to be "sharp" frozen.

Schug Selects

23 Frosh Coeds

For Debating Team

Twenty-three freshman coeds were recently added to the Women's Debate squad, following competitive try-outs. Selections were made by Prof. Clayton H. Schug, coach, and upperclass member of the team.

The new members include: Beatrice Berez, Doris Brenner, Mary A. Conahan, Martha Conley, Vera Eby, Elaine Elperin, Helen Finner, Lois Hagne, Martha Ann Koons, Jane Lee, Reva Levy, Donna McLaughlin, Nancy Pardee, Madeline Millet, Lois Puharich, Kaylee Raffel, Shirley Joan Rhodes, Katherine Snider, Rosemarie Wagner, Beatrice B. Weiner, Joyce E. Partridge, Florence McWaide.

Upperclass members of the Women's debate team who returned for the summer semester are Jean Barrinot, Betty Coplan, Ruth Eisler, Ruth Freed, and Andrinna Winning.

The group plans to participate in an inter-squad tournament later in the semester.

Hillcrest Host At Tea

Students at the Hillcrest Home Economics Practice House are giving an at-home tea from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Approximately 60 faculty members and townspeople have been invited.

Pouring for the tea are Miss Evelyn Benjamin, advisor of Benedict House; Miss Ruth Graham, professor of home economics; Mrs. Frank Odgers, advisor of Beecher House; and Miss Charlotte E. Ray, dean of women.

Treble Singers Get Keys

Keys ordered by the Treble Singers are beginning to arrive through the mails to individual members, announced Betty Herring, secretary-treasurer.

Haines Warns Jokers

Mary Haines, head of Judicial, warns coeds who have been calling other College women and impersonating Judicial members, that unless such calls are discontinued immediately, an investigation will be made and the impersonators will be punished.

'What Happens To WSGA Prexies?' They Say 'I Do'

With the present shortage of eligible males on campus, the girl with the brightest future today is probably Mary Margaret Dunlap, president of WSGA.

For Miss Dunlap will be a candidate for the list furnished by the Dean of Women's office headed "What Happens to WSGA Presidents?" The answer? They get married.

Gertrude G. Rosen, '45 is the only president in the last ten years who is not married. Miss Rosen has evidently decided to try a career before taking the fatal step which will immortalize her in the Dean of Women's files, for she is now working for the National Broadcasting Company in New York City.

The surprising succession of marital undertakings began in 1935 with Lucy J. Erdman, who is now Mrs. Robert W. Brown. She was followed by Frances Turner, '36, who is married to John N. Shaffer, and Genevra C. Ziegler, M. D., '37, now Mrs. Richard H. Driscoll.

The list goes on with Amy F. McClelland, '38, now Mrs. Paul McCormick; Doris Blakemore, '39 who married John Duain Moore; Jane A. Romig, '40, now the wife of Harold Wilson; Elinor Weaver, '41, now Mrs. Harry Pearce; Jean Babcock, who graduated in May of 1942 and is now Mrs. Robert A. Hasek; Margaret Sherman, December '42 graduate, now the wife of W. F. Shollenberger; Ruth Storer, '43, now Mrs. George R. Pittenger; and Pat Diener, '44, now Mrs. Carroll S. Barton.

GSO Re-Elects

Haines President

Mary Haines was recently re-elected president of the Girls' Service Organization. Other officers chosen were Betty Dunkel, vice president; Mary Bitner, corresponding secretary; Vicky Rosen, recording secretary; Mary McMillen, treasurer; and Mary Clouser, historian.

GSO is now conducting a date bureau. Any serviceman wishing to use this service may call Miss Dunkel at 4306. The hours she may be contacted at the Service Center will be announced later.

Any coed or town girl wishing to become a member of GSO should sign at the Service Center before Monday. A new training program will start soon, according to Miss Haines.

The new senior sponsor for the organization will be announced soon.

Prof. Padgett To Speak

Prof. Ina Padgett, associate professor of home economics, will speak on "Something of the Present Nutrition Picture" in 110 Home Economics at 3:30 Wednesday.

Women In Sports
