

Michigan State Crushes Blue And White, 33-0

A jittery and over-confident Penn State eleven dropped its second game of the season to a superior Michigan State squad, 33-0, on Macklin Field, East Lansing. With the Lion star, Joe Tepsic, sidelined with a charley horse suffered in practice, a much faster and more alert Spartan eleven passed its way to a decisive victory over Penn State, as Orange Bowl hopes faded.

The Lions, with everything to lose or gain, demonstrated their concern by throwing away two touchdown passes in the first few minutes of play. The Spartans, with nothing to lose, reciprocated in a kicking duel.

However, when Lang fumbled the ball on the Nittany Lion 29, Michigan State took up the offensive which had failed to materialize. Tepsic's absence was possibly the reason for this apparent lack of Penn State spark.

Three short passes followed the Spartan fumble recovery, and then Breslin piled over for the first score.

In the second quarter the Michigan State attack gathered impetus, and culminated in a fumble by Bellas on the Lion eleven: Reader then flipped a 10 yard pass to Huey who went over for the second marker.

An interception by the Spartans on the mid-stripe started the third touchdown drive. A pass by Conti and two by Reader, all complete and in succession, and the half ended; Penn State 0, Michigan State 20.

In the third quarter Conti tossed from the 38 to Reader on the 20 who went on to score.

Triplett fumbled on the 15, and the Spartans took over. Penn State, very much on the defensive, stalled the Black and Gold attack on the six yard line. After an exchange of punts, Bellas fumbled on the Lion 24. Two short passes later, Breslin went over for the last Spartan tally.

Michigan State's third team then went in, and the game ended with the Spartans on the Blue and White's 32.

The vaunted Penn State attack was apparently lost without its sparkplug, Joe Tepsic. The three lost fumbles and the three Spartan interceptions did not help either, but the decisive Black and Gold aerial offensive was the big factor in the sinking of the College eleven.

The Spartan attack centered around Russel Reader, a University of Michigan transfer. He had previously not shown up on Michigan's squad, but he surely stood out on the Michigan State eleven.

Pittsburgh is reputed to have a better passing offensive than the Spartan's air raiding, which overwhelmed Penn State.

Bks. 9 Captures First NROTC Cage Contest

With a slashing first half attack of 30 points, the Barracks 9 basketball team went on to defeat the first company, first platoon squad, 38-19.

High scorers for the victors were Honig with 14 points and Williams with 12. Attack leaders for the losers were Grafenburg and De Vine, each with five points.

On Friday evening the band team (Barracks 36) went down to defeat, 40-20, under the play of the first company, second platoon. Strong and Masterson led the scoring for the winners, making 9 and 8 points respectively. McGowan for the band ran up a total of 8 points.

Elmer Gross, former Lion star and hero of the Normandy invasion, is John Lawther's basketball aide at Penn State.

Outlook Dark For Pitt Game

The outlook is none too brilliant for the Nittany Lion eleven in the scheduled clash with the Pittsburgh Panthers Saturday. In fact, everything points to our losing the contest.

We were badly beaten last Saturday by a Michigan State squad which boasted a topnotch passing assault and a topnotch passer, Russel Reader. Pitt's passing attack has been rated above the Spartans, and to top it off their passing ace, Billy Wolff, has been called by some "a smaller version of Sammy Baugh."

Two of the reasons for our loss to Michigan State were sluggish play, and Joe Tepsic's injury. There is still no indication that Tepsic will stand and, in addition, Bronco Kosanovich, Chuck Drazanovich, Wally Triplett, and Larry Cooney were hurt in the game, but they will probably play.

The Panthers will be out to win in order to salvage part of their season. Clark Shaughnessy is in grave danger of losing his coaching position at Pitt, so his ball-players will be trying extra hard just for him.

Penn State will have no passing ace who can consistently pitch strikes like Billy Wolff. The Lions may also be handicapped because of injuries, by a lack of backs like Jimmy Joe Robinson and Ed Zim-movan.

The combination to watch, though, because of the certainty of a concentrated aerial onslaught, will be Wolff via the air waves to end Ed Skladany.

As far as games won and lost go, the record would seem to favor the Blue and White. Penn State has won five and lost two, while Pitt has taken only two, dropping six. But Pitt has one of the toughest schedules of any team of similar rating in the country. Pitt also lost to Temple and Michigan State, but, as the amazing number of "upsets" show, statistics mean next to nothing this season.

Whatever may be the outcome, the Pitt-Penn State game remains a question mark, to be answered only on Saturday.

Middy Booters Down Lions

Penn State's soccer team closed its season Saturday by losing a well-fought game to the undefeated U. S. Naval Academy, 4-1.

The Lions, according to Coach Bill Jeffrey, were beaten by the best team in the country, as next week's final clash with Army will prove. From comparative scores, the Lion mentor points out that the Cadets were hard put Saturday in gaining a 2-0 verdict over Cornell, whereas the Lions had no trouble at all in conquering the same team, 8-0.

The game was a tight defensive battle throughout the first half with neither side gaining a decided advantage. The Middies fought through for a score in the first quarter, however, and led at halftime, 1-0.

In the second half, the superior Navy offense began to click and two quick goals were scored in the third quarter, with their fourth and final score coming in the last period. Freshman Jerry Cooper broke through the Middies' tight defense for the Lions' only score.

"There is no doubt that the Middies have a faster, trickier and more experienced squad. They have at least four or five potential All-Americans, and their goalie was exceptional," Coach Jeffrey said after the game. It was the second victory over Penn State in a row for the Middies (having topped the Lions last year) and the third time they have done the trick since 1927.

The Lions, with six freshmen in the starting lineup this season, finished with a record of two wins, two losses, and one tie. They downed Muhlenberg and Cornell, 7-1 and 8-0, lost to Temple and Navy, 2-0 and 4-1, and battled Army to a scoreless tie.

Women In Sports

The Blue-White hockey teams opened the five-game series with the Blue team, captained by Penny Stevenson, winning the first tilt, 2-1. The White team, captained by Alice Hooper, took the second game, 3-2.

Basketball practice for sororities and campus dormitories begins November 26 and will continue throughout the week; announced Ann Baker, intramural chairman.

The Bowling Club elected the following coeds to office: Lois McClelland, president; Patricia Kinkead, vice-president; Alda Fisher, secretary; and Jean Peterson, publicity chairman.

Pastry Demonstration

Helen B. Zoller, Proctor and Gamble representative, will give a demonstration featuring techniques of pastry in 110 Home Economics from 9 to 11 a.m., November 27, announces Edith V. Harding, associate professor of home economics. Everyone is welcome.
