Personnel Office Asks Students to Register

Registrations for part-time student jobs are being held in the Personnel Relations office, 423 Old Main.

Students who registered for work during previous semesters and are still interested in part-time employment should register, as well as those who have never been employed through the office.

Personnel Relations does not hire students but interviews them, keeps a file of their schedules, and informs them of possible openings.

Honorary Holds Smoker For Men in Journalism

Men journalism students will be guests of Sigma Delta Chi, national men's journalism honorary, at a smoker at the Phi Epsilon Pi house Sunday evening, Stanley Ziff, president of the organization announced yesterday.

Held for all male journalism undergraduates, it is the plan of Sigma Delta Chi to help acquaint these students with the various campus publications and to encourage men to go out for them, Ziff said.

Detailed plans of the smoker will be announced later in the week.

Club To Elect New Official

A special presidential election will be held at the next Penn State Club meeting because of president Bob Moore's absence from the College this semester. Michael Horen and James McMaster are nominees for the post. Walter Pascoe will fill the position until installation of the elected president.

Club meetings will be held every other Tuesday night, and the executive council will continue to meet weekly at the same time and place as before. The College will audit the books according to a new ruling of the club.

A cabin party for Penn State Club members and their dates will be held at the Ski Lodge, May 11. Two dorm dances have been arranged for this semester, and invitations will be sent to prospective members.

Book Savings Reach $500

At least $500 was saved by students who took advantage of the Book Exchange, reported Charles Hill, All-College Cabinet member, who co-managed the exchange with Bernice Gilinsky of Common Sense Club. More than 2000 books were received, and the total value sold was over $1400.

Hill emphasized that the venture would have been impossible without the generous assistance of more than 20 volunteer workers. He said the library's donation of a room for the Exchange and storage space for books was also appreciated.
