Five thousand documents of the United Nations Conference on In-ternational Organization, held in San Francisco, April 25 to JJune 26, 1945; have been acquired by the College Library. These pub-lications dealing with the United Nations can be examined by inquiring at the reference desk or by consulting the card catalog. The United Nations Informa-tion Office in New York, along with its sister organization in London, has published most of the official documents. These provide not only current information, but also furnish research material for the students of future years.

The 16 volumes already received cover the work of the San Frankisco Conference including the papers of the general sessions and of the committees. Texts are given in the two working languages, French and English. In addition, the texts of the final documents such as the Charter, the Statute of the International Court and the Interim arrangements are given in five languages, Chinese, English, French, Russian, and Spanish.

Because the San Francisco Conference itself, made no provision for the publication of its complete proceedings, the United Nations Information Organizations in New York and London arranged with the Secretary-General of the Conference shortly before its adjourn-The cooperation of the Liberty of Congress was also secured to carry out the undertaking.

Ag Enrollment Hits New High

The agricultural short courses ne agricultural short courses enrolled 485 students for the period July, 1945 to July, 1946 establishing a new high for en-rollment, announced A. Leland Beam, professor of dairy products and director of the short courses in agriculture in agriculture.

This year's enrollment nearly doubled the previous high of 289 last year. The course in general farming enrolled over twice as many students as it did last year, while the course in dairy farming was given to three times the num-ber of students who took it in 1945.

The course in ice cream manufacturing proved so popular that it had to be repeated in order to accommodate all who registered for it. A total of 110 persons were

Professor Beam said that the agricultural short courses were important to workers in agriculture and agricultural poducts because they filled a distinct newl. He said that many people who could not otherwise attend the School of Agriculture because of the time and cost involved, find the short courses of much benefit to them in their particular field. Among those enrolled in short courses this year, Professor Beam said, were several elderly people who recently retired from a city business life.
