Have You Met Flo? She's The Newest Popularity Queen

The most popular female on and off campus is "Flo". Anyone who doesn't know her personally has seen her, even though she just came to the campus this semester. Eager males flock her way; little boys look on with wonder and amazement; no matter where she goes, people smile. Indeed, she's something to be admired.

"Flo" is the Crosley convertible with the green body and red upholstery that can be seen dashing down College avenue, whizzing up Fairmount, and squeezing into the most limited parking space, any time, any day. Beta Sigma Rho pledge Mickey Becket and frater Bob Freedman, both Ex-G-I's are the lucky owners in a town and at a time where even a covered wagon would satisfy many of the car-hungry veterans.

Standing three feet above the ground and stretching eight feet along the curb, "Flo" is an inexpensive proposition. Her gas tank, which is under the hood, holds only four gallons, but who cares: "Flo" travels 45 to 50 miles on just one. In fact, Mickey and Bob drove her to school from Philadelphia in ten hours on only four and a half gallons of gas. "And what a commotion we caused every time we stopped," Bob said. "People always wanted us to pull over so they could life up the hood and have a look."

Speed Limit, 45
"Flo zooms down a level road 45 miles an hour," Mickey added, "and 60 down hill." It took a lot of prodding before either Mickey or Bob would tell the eral story about acquiring "Flo." But, when it finally came out, with additions, corrections and subtractions from the whole fraternity, Collegian found out that as in all good enterprises, there was a girl involved — and her name was Florence, as one might have guessed.

Mickey began dating Florence after he got back from overseas, and Florence fell hard. However, she was going to Florida to school and wanting to show Mickey how much she cared, she sold him the car. "But," Mickey argued, "I only bought it for lack of anything better to do with $200. At any rate, Florence left Philadelphia, and Mickey dated other other girls. So did Flo, in fact, she is now engaged to be married. How does Mickey feel about it? "Well, I have the car," he concluded.

Speedometer?
It didn't take long to find out that "Flo" needed a new motor and starter before she'd be fit to make the trip to State College. That's when Bob became half owner. However, she's in good condition now, that is if you overlook the broken speedometer. Wayne, Pa., is the only place in the state where the boys can buy replacement parts.

Equipped with a regular size battery, free wheeling, and sliding windows, the Beta Sigs pile in (four or five at a time cause that's all "Flo" can hold).

Everybody everywhere else is looking at the new Buick, but State College has their eyes on "Flo." Offers are "a dime a dozen, but we wouldn't sell her for the world," the owners said.
