School Officials Approve Temporary College Plan

School officials of Pennsylvania's institutions of higher learning recently approved Governor Edward Martin's plan to establish a temporary college at Indiantown Gap. The college will be for ex-servicemen and high school graduates unable to matriculate at overcrowded colleges.

"We still hope the existing institutions may be able to take care of our educational needs with assistance in housing and equipment requirements," stated the Governor. "After a careful survey, if we find this cannot be done, we will proceed at once toward the establishment of a separate institution."

Pint Sized Library Of Technical Books

"Pint-sized" is the word for the library of the Ordnance Research Laboratory.

Two hundred and fifteen books covering a variety of subjects including mathematics, physics, chemistry, photography, and mechanics are in constant circulation, and news books arrive each week. In addition, the library keeps on hand numerous technical magazines and pamphlets.

The most important function of the library, however, is to catalogue and file documents sent from other research organizations and the memoranda written by Ordnance research workers. To date, almost 800 such documents and several thousand memoranda are filed.

The filing system for the memoranda, an improved variation of the system used at Harvard Underwater Sound Laboratory, was devised by Eric A. Walker, director of the laboratory, as a result of his experience in organizing the files at HUSL.

The Wisconsin Student Union claims the title of "The Finest Community Center in the Middle West."

State High Press Convention Will Open Saturday Morning

The Annual State High School Press Convention which 400 to 500 high school editors are expected to attend, will open with an address of welcome by Jeannette Bosch, president of Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary and Stanley Ziff, president of Sigma Delta Chi, journalism fraternity and Alpha Delta Sigma, advertising fraternity, in 121 Sparks, 11 to 11:50 a. m. Saturday.

Talks will be given by A. O. Morse, assistant to president of the College in charge of instruction; George Scott, of the Washington Bureau, Associated Press, former editor of Collegian; and Stanley W. Calkins, president of Pennsylvania Newspapers Publishers Association. High school delegates themselves will hold discussions the remaining morning session.

Musical entertainment; an address by Don Rose, humorist and columnist of Philadelphia Evening Bulletin; presentations of newspaper awards by Professor Franklin Banner, head of the department of Journalism, and advertising awards by Professor Donald W. Davis, of the department of Journalism, forms the afternoon assembly in 121 Sparks from 2 to 3 p. m.

High school representatives that remain after the convention may take sightseeing trips conducted by men's and women's fraternities of the campus and its activities. Theta Sigma Phi will serve tea for advisers and staff in northwest lounge of Atherton Hall.

Editorial and advertising contests are being offered by Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism fraternity, and Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising fraternity, for those high schools that sent delegates to the convention.
