

OPA Representative Explains Local Rent Situation to Clubs

Pacing his discussion with the statement that rent control means a fair deal for landlords as well as tenants, Kurt Schumacher, OPA representative in Williamsport, explained the local rent situation to a joint meeting of Common Sense, X-G-I Club, and the American Veteran's Committee, Wednesday night.

According to Mr. Schumacher, national legislation for rent control has already been passed, but to make it effective in the State College area, local opinion must make itself felt to the extent that the Bureau of Labor and Statistics in Washington be made to transfer the whole of Centre County to the jurisdiction of the OPA rent control office in Williamsport.

In order to exert this necessary pressure, the organizations sponsoring the meeting, collected $15.75 to send telegrams to price administration officials and local representatives in the nation's capital. In addition, a petition for extension of rent control to this area, signed by more than 2,000 students, will be forwarded to the proper authorities.

Price Control
James Cross of the economics department, representing a committee working on the reported violations of price ceilings by local merchants, said that the price control board in State College ceased functioning in November 1945 when it was consolidated with the boards of Bellefonte and Philipsburg.

Mr. Cross asked for the establishment of a control panel to conduct a survey on all restaurants, cleaning concerns, car agencies, etc., operating in this area to establish any violations of ceilings by local merchants. He recommended the usual OPA fines for violators.

Speaking for the X-G-I Club, Frank Campbell presented the results of a housing survey conducted last Fall and Winter. Of the 850 questionnaires distributed, half were returned filled out. Of these, 24 per cent offered proof of rent increases to be levied in the near future, while 20 per cent considered their present rent too high.

Copies of the survey results have been forwarded to the regional OPA, the State American Legion, and the Bureau of Labor and Statistics.

Shirley Milner and Edward Banyai pledged the resources of The Common Sense Club and the AVC in support of the resolutions to bombard Congress, OPA, and the Bureau of Labor with letters, cards, and telegrams. Collegian would appreciate it if students would report any such violations to the Collegian office, Carnegie Hall.

Police Named For Windcrest

Raymond C. Lee, Jr., and James D. Magargee have been deputized policemen of Windcrest, with duties to enforce all rules and regulations of the borough of Windcrest, by Albert E. Yougel, Burgess of State College.

The new policemen's duties will include seeing that the speed limit is enforced in Windcrest, and also enforcing the signs prohibiting horseback riding in the borough. They are empowered to issue tickets and to make arrests, reporting offenders to the State College borough authorities. They will also work in conjunction with the Windcrest fire chief, Howard Sparks, in case of emergencies.

Burgess Stanley C. Gross announced that the College library has contacted him and indicated willingness to equip the Windcrest community hall with a library. He will see that arrangements are made so that advantage is taken of this offer.

A new numbering system will be used for the newly-painted trailers in order that there will be conformity in all the numbers on the route. Numbers on Wagner lane (first street parallel to College avenue) will be 1 to 100; Reiter drive, 200 block; Fisher lane, 300 block. The 400 and 500 blocks will be in North Windcrest, but streets there have not yet been named.

The remaining twelve trailers for the main community are being set up as they arrive, and the community hall is partially set up.

Architect in Contest Finals

The Department of Architecture announced recently that C. Gregory Bassett was selected one of five finalists in the John Stewardson National Memorial Prize Competition, which offers $1000 for the winning solution of the six week architectural design problem.

Bassett, senior architectural student and local president of Scarab fraternity, was chosen on the basis of his three day preliminary solution for a Boys' Preparatory School.

Recently elected Scarab Architectural fraternity pledges are wearing the Scarab Beetle and other pledge accessories on campus this week. The new members, pledged for their academic averages and promise of professional aptitude, will carry their "T" squares and triangles as symbols of their work. Each pledge must also wear a black ribbon bow tie in place of the usual four in hand until he is initiated.

Wright Talks On Building

Frank Lloyd Wright, internationally known architect and the man who planned the Guggenheim Museum for New York City will lecture on "When Democracy Builds," Thursday, 8 p.m. in Schwab auditorium. Tickets are now on sale for $1 at the Student Union desk.

Wright, credited for his architectural genius and unorthodox views and actions concerning architecture, built a house above a waterfall at Bear Run in Pennsylvania. In Kansas City he designed a church with pillars of light instead of a tower and with a triple-decker parking space.

In Tokio, the Imperial Hotel which still stands, despite earthquakes and bombings, was designed by Wright. He is being brought to the College by the State College Community Forum, comprised of nineteen campus and town organizations.

Planning for Today—and Tomorrow?

Our plans include young men, men with college degrees who wish to specialize as

- CHEMISTS
- CHEMICAL ENGINEERS
- ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS
- MECHANICAL ENGINEERS

The American Viscose Corporation was America's first commercially successful producer of rayon. Ever since our first plant was established in 1910, we have continued to pioneer the development of rayon. Today, with seven plants (located in Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia) and an eighth plant now being designed, we continue to be the largest rayon producer.

The ever-increasing demand for our products offers promise to young men who are interested in research, development, engineering or production in a chemical processing industry. If you are interested in learning more about our company, contact your college placement bureau.
