Food Shortage in Germany May Cause Riots, Reprisals.

"If we send any food abroad we should include the German sector, not through charity or magnanimity, but because the shortage of food may start food riots which would make occupation difficult," said Prof. Carl Maisch, Penn State alumnus, now an instructor in the College's German department.

While serving with the U.S. Army Intelligence Corps for ten and a half months, various countries are doing most Professor Maisch had a chan- of the teaching and are attemptce to observe conditions in ing to restore the liberal arts cur-Germany, particularly Bayaria where he was stationed. He said that the displaced person in Germany, or those brought there as slave labor, are taken care of by UNRRA and are often betterfed than our own troops, but the German people themselves have no food, available, except that which they grow within the country. People in rural areas seem to have enough for themselves, but show no desire to share it with the city people. This has led to the growth of a great black market. Germans, Cooperative.

The German people as a whole are cooperative and obedient because they have been taught to be that way, but according to Professor- Maisch, they are still intolerant of each other and of minorities; they have no misgivings about what they have done and feel that they have just lost on a long gamble only because of a combination of the Allies.

Professor Maisch is well qualified to speak on the German people, for, while in the Army, his job was tracking down those responsible for the Nazi outrages and those in the automatic ar-rest category because of their high office, party membership, war crimes, or subversive activities. The Intelligence Corps was also responsible for investigating any crimes in the territory, such as armed robberies or reprisal killings.

Undergrounds Simmer-"There are the beginnings of an underground movement with appointed leaders," he said, "but there is no definite organization because of rulings prohibiting private gatherings and a continual search for arms. However, the idea is there and waiting for the dissatisfactions to develop to the point, where they can be used to unite the people against the occupation forces."

Edward Martin had authorized these institutions to .cooperate in giving programs designed to take care of freshmen who cannot be accommodated by the College's own facilities.

Teachers Colleges participating in the program are: Bloomsburg, California, Clarion, Edin-boro, Indiana, Kutztown, Lock Haven, Mansfield, Millersville, Shippensburg, and Slippery Rock. Under this plan, 1800 first-year students will be assigned to State Teachers Colleges; 800 to the College's four undergraduate centers; and 125 to the forestry branch at Mont Alto. Of the 2725 freshmen to be offered admission, more than 2000 will be men. Three-fourths of them will be veterans.

President Hetzel said that fully half of the 2200 veterans brought to the campus will be housed in temporary quarters, 850 single men in dormitory-barracks, and 250 married veterans in trailers. The others will replace graduating seniors and those who drop out for various Registrar William S. Hoffman, will administer the plan, explained that freshmen when admitted will be informed of the college to which they will be assigned. He said the selection would depend upon the curriculum elected by the student.
