Tons of Beefsteak—College to Auction 75 Unfitted Heifers

Rabid beef-steak fans will have their chance to hit the jackpot Saturday for steaks galore, both for themselves and for all their friends. At that time they will be able to buy beef: in fact, a half ton of it or more, unfitted and on the hoof.

The occasion of this outburst of beef is the sale of 75 head of pure-bred Aberdeen-Angus heifers at the Beef Cattle Barn at 1 p.m. Saturday. This will be the first auction held by the College at which unfitted heifers are to be sold in lots of two, three or four cows—thus the half ton or more.

PSC Gaybird and PSC Gaybird, II, will be sold from the College's registered herd, while William L. Henderson, professor of animal husbandry, will sell Nittany Lady Revolt, the 4th, and Nittany Valley Gay Bird from his herd.

The College is supported financially by grants from the Federal Government, and appropriations from the State Legislature, as well as student fees.

Seven Attend Ag Conference

The College will be represented by seven faculty men at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania section, American Society of Agricultural Engineers, which will be held in the Penn-Alto Hotel, Altoona, on June 7 and 8.

Blasingame, head of the department of agricultural engineering, will review his recent trip abroad in a discussion of "Agricultural Engineering in England" at the Saturday morning program.

Robert J. McCall, professor of agricultural engineering extension, who is secretary-treasurer of the section, will speak on mowing and storing hay. William F. Ackerman, instructor in agricultural engineering, will be in charge of the recreational program, while Prof. David C. Sprague will speak on dairy farm structures in a forum.
