

Fall Deposits Due June 10

All Students Must Pay $10 for Readmission

All students planning to attend College full-time in the Fall semester must apply for readmission at Recreation Hall from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Wednesday, June 12, and deposit $10 at that time.

Registrar William S. Hoffman, in making this announcement, explained that the phrase full-time students includes graduate and undergraduate students, special students, and Navy ROTC students. Those who are now part-time students and expect to attend College on a full schedule in the Fall are also included.

The $10 deposit, Registrar Hoffman announced, will assure students a place in the College next semester provided they meet all other requirements. The plan is designed to help the College determine in advance the number of students who can be admitted, and to provide opportunity for the admission of the largest number of returning veterans.

Students who fail to pay this deposit and later decide to apply for readmission can be reinstated only on the basis of a priority list for admissions applicable also to other students applying. Those who pay the deposit and fail to return for the Fall semester will forfeit the deposit unless the registrar is notified before September 13.

For returning students, the deposit will be credited on their bills when they enter for the fall semester. In the case of veterans enrolled under the G. I. Bill of Rights, the deposit will be returned shortly after the opening of the Fall semester.

Porter Questions Cabinet's Power

Florence Porter, president of Women's Student Government Association, challenged All-College Cabinet's right to control Judicial at the last meeting of Cabinet.

Miss Porter based her argument on the fact that Judicial was originally set up as a subsidiary of WSGA, and was taken over by All-College Cabinet without official permission from the College. She believes that the present system is inefficient, since WSGA sets up the rules for women, and a Cabinet body enforces them.

Judicial covers a wider area of power than Tribunal, according to the WSGA president, while the Freshman Custom's Board does the same type of work as Tribunal. In conclusion, Miss Porter asked Cabinet if the new set-up, with Judicial under Cabinet rather than WSGA, has increased cooperation.

Judicial's answer to WSGA came from Janet Mollenaur, representing Joan Schearer, Judicial chairman. Miss Mollenaur stated that Judicial has encountered no difficulty in carrying out Senate's rules under the new set-up, and that the group believes it is valuable to have men on the nominat-

Proposed Campus Structures Include 3 Dorms, Gym Wing

(Editor's Note: The College recently announced proposed construction of five new campus buildings. This is the first of two stories describing the women's dormitories. Other building plans will be described when they are final.)

Among five new campus structures approved by the College Board of Trustees, two will be woman's dormitories.

Others, also announced at a recent board meeting, will be a men's dormitory, housing upwards of 1000 students, and including a dining hall; a classroom building; and a new wing for the Recreation Building.

The classroom building and the wing, to be constructed with $1,296,000 allocated by the State, were selected from a list of eight projects submitted by the Board of Trustees. Selection was made by Governor Edward Martin, acting upon recommendation of the Public Instruction Department.

Full allocation of State funds for postwar construction at State institutions has not yet been announced by the Governor. Of these structures, complete details are available only on the women's dormitories. A description of their location, size, design, content, and other details follows:

LOCATION: In the area east of Shortridge Rd. and south of the extension of Pollock Rd. on a plot with a frontage of approximately 700 feet.

SIZE: One dormitory has a frontage of approximately 300 feet; it will house a few less than 500 women. The other will run about 380 feet and will house a few in excess of 500.

DESIGN: Georgian colonial. The dormitories will be constructed of brick. Their style will be consistent with that of other campus living quarters, with a touch of the "moderne" here and there.

Although the design of the building is described as formal, it follows an "open informal" plan so that greatest use may be made of the sloping topography of the site. The buildings will not be symmetrical because of the desirability of arranging wings so as to provide the maximum of natural light, ventilation, and vista down the Nittany Valley.

LOBBY AND LOUNGE: Each building will have its own first floor lobby with an adjacent dormitory office. There will be four suites for hostesses, each with private office; three ample lounges, including a gallery lounge on the first floor; and a kitchenette. An open air terrace, overlooking the Nittany valley from the southeast, will run along the outside of the three lounges.

FIRST FLOOR: In addition to the foregoing, the first floor will include a large recreation room for dancing, games, cards, and other informal social activities. The recreation room will be flanked at one end by a canteen and kitchenette from which snacks may be dispensed at social events, and, at the other, by a post office where students will receive mail and parcel post. Also in the plans are student rooms, sorority suites, a ladies' powder room, and men's coat room and toilet facilities.

SUB-SURFACE FLOORS: The dormitories will have two floors below the first—the ground floor and a basement. There will be student rooms, sorority suites, and two dining rooms on the ground floor, and, in the basement, service, storage, and other rooms.

OTHER FLOORS: On both the second and third floors will be student rooms, sorority suites, and informal lounge with kitchenette to be used for unorganized gatherings of women students. In one of the dormitories, provision has been made for a suite of rooms for the dean of women if she prefers residence there. Otherwise, the space will be converted to student rooms.
