Looking at the calendar, which shows less than three weeks to go, brings to mind the beginning of a childhood verse, "No more lessons, no more books, no more teachers' dirty looks." All of which was a hard way of getting to the point, which today is conventions. Dorie Mawhinney has been selected to represent the local Zeta chapter at the 18th national and 7th international convention of Zeta Tau Alpha, slated for the Spink-Wawasee Hotel, Lake Wawasee, Indiana, June 20-25. Another convention-goer is George Fryberg, whom the Sigma Pis have chosen as delegate to their national conclave at Asheville, North Carolina.

AEPH Weds

Bernice Kurland, former AEPH was married to Danny Pomerantz, of Philadelphia, Saturday. Twelve sorority sisters trekked down to the city of "Brotherly Love" for the ceremony and reception.

The DGs have voted to adopt a child from the Foster Parents Plan for War Children, and under that plan will act as the child's foster parents for a year. The child will be from Europe.

The ChiOs entertained the SPEs last night and the SPEs are having a picnic at Whipple's Dam tomorrow. ## June, 1946 To Graduate 62 Home Ec Housewives

If figures are any indication of what's to come, 62 of the 266 coeds who graduate this month will make excellent housewives.

According to a recent survey, the home economics department is graduating more coeds this semester than any other department at the College. And what is more, only the Arts and Letters category comes close, with 58 graduating.

Ready to take the schools in hand will be 32 education majors. In addition ten coeds are music education majors.

Future graduates on June 27th will be 20 psychology students, 17 would-be journalists, ten weary phys edders, and 12 businesswomen in commerce and finance.

Six brave pre-med women will reach for their diplomas at Commencement, with at least ten other coeds in related fields like chemical engineering, chemistry and physics, and science.

Alone in their fields of study are the fuel technologist, the ag bio-chemist, the architect, and the ceramics major.

An undisclosed source predicts that it takes a surprisingly short time to change to the fields of dish-washing and diaper changing. June, 1946's graduating coeds will be fortified with a variety of curricula as background.

Whitey's Wife Takes 3 Balls, 2 Strikes For Acceptance

Peggy Kurowski wants to get into College again. "I have a room, I'm an ex-serviceman's wife, and a former student," she says. Multiply that by the fact that she's Ray "Whitey" Kurowski's wife, and almost anything can happen to the spouse of the Lion's second baseman.

Peggy withdrew after her marriage in September, 1945. After battling out four semesters of political science and history, she was content to watch her slugger husband hit somewhere in the number three slot. But now she wants to get back into college, and is still optimistic. You see, she's a slugger too.

Coed Makes Top Magazine With Crack Camera Shots

When a Penn State coed makes Editor and Publisher magazine, it's hats off. Betty Lou Eisenberg, 6th semester journalism major, does the hat-collecting—and the laurels as well.

"I will not lend my camera to Dick Sarno, even though he is director of photography for the whole Hearst organization," she told a journalism professor when the noted newspaperman asked for a camera. The scene was a recent press conference of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association in State College, and Editor and Publisher for May 25 tells the whole story of Betty Lou's meeting with Mr. Sarno.

Camerawoman

BETTY LOU ISENBERG

Betty took six pictures at the press convention, some of which will be used by William Hardy, head of PNPA, from whom she has received favorable comments.

This woman photographer takes her work in big doses, as she admits that she has "messed around" with cameras all her life. Her father is under contract with several newspapers and for the past two years, Betty has been working with him. When she graduates from the College, she hopes to go to Tascope School of Photography in Aurora, Mo., to study photoengraving. Meanwhile, her 4x5 speed-graphic wins her some extra cash—and publicity in Editor and Publisher.

Dr. Evan Pugh, first president of The College, was a distinguished scientist.

Dr. Joseph Marin

... professor of engineering mechanics, will present a paper at the annual meeting of the American Society for Testing Materials, to be held in Buffalo, N.Y. from June 24 to 28. The paper entitled, "Torsion and Tension Creep Properties of Cloth-Laminated Plastics," is a report on tests conducted in the creep laboratory of the department of engineering mechanics. The tests were conducted with new types of testing machines that were designed by Dr. Marin.
