

Coeds Honor Retiring Dean At Song Fest

The women students of the College surprised Miss Charlotte E. Ray, dean of women, with a mass rally and song fest in front of Old Main at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday.

The program was planned by the Coed Coordinating Committee, made up of the presidents of women's organizations, "to do something for Miss Ray," according to Florence Porter, president of WSGA.

Following the cheers opening the program were a College song and three songs composed for the occasion by Jean Ford, Phoebe Forrest, and Jo Ann Roraback.

Miss Ray was presented with a sterling silver platter inscribed: "Dean Charlotte E. Ray from the women students of The Pennsylvania State College, June, 1946."

Drawing the mass meeting to a close were another school song and the Alma Mater.

Expressing her appreciation for the tribute paid her by the women students, Miss Ray said:

"Those who work with youth are in a continuous process of being remodeled by these same youth whom they so zealously attempt to direct. If the final product does not meet requirements, it is because youth has been working upon rather unyielding material. With two diverse generations struggling to remold each other, the final outcome represents the survival of the fittest. Hence comes progress!

At any rate, one who has lived long on this campus expresses eternal gratitude to Penn State students for the privilege of living among them, also a special "Thank you" to the girls for their mass-meeting of June 18 and for the beautiful songs composed by three of their number. Like all who deal with youth, I have learned more from them than they have learned from me. May the world be as good to them as they have been to me!"

Judicial

... has granted 11 o'clock permissions to women students beginning Sunday night and continuing throughout final week. A 1 o'clock permission has been given to graduating senior women the night before graduation, according to Lois App, Judicial chairman.

Where Oh Where...

By MARILYNN JACOBSON

If a certain Lancaster country club is overcrowded this summer, the reason may be Marilyn Globisch, who will spend her vacation as a life guard there. With a fond look back at College days, she eagerly looks forward to teaching physical education at the John Reynolds Junior High School in Lancaster this fall. All this from the valedictorian of the graduating class, who is also holder of several swimming records and Queen of Spring Nocturne, a la John Robert Powers.

Arline Gerber wants to learn to cook this summer in order to show her future husband, whom she will marry in October, that a Phi Beta Kappa also knows the way to a man's heart—by way of the culinary art. By the way, the most surprising thing she learned in college, she says, is the fact that people actually live in other places than Brooklyn.

And on to Your Ph.D.?

Priscilla Wagner isn't even going to try to tear herself away from Penn State. She's coming back in the fall to work for her Master's in psychology.

Woodene Bell is taking a week-end vacation to New York, which will be her first trip to the big city. On the way, she plans to stop off and see Jack Reid marry his home town girl. In the meantime, she is looking forward to doing general reporting on a newspaper and "let someone else worry about getting out the paper." She feels

Panhel Okays New Sorority

Aldebaran, newly-formed sorority, was approved by Panhellenic Council yesterday, announced Margaret Langdon, president of the new sorority.

The group will join Alpha Gamma Delta, national sorority, in a year, she said.

The sorority was formed by three coeds who were Alpha Gamma Delta at Westminster College and transferred to the College. They are Miss Langdon, president; Patricia Fetherlin, chaplain; and Patricia Carney, first vice president.

Pledges include Doris Fry, recording secretary; Janet Wesley, corresponding secretary; Nancy Musser, treasurer; Shirley Ochsenhirt, Constance Black, Beatrice Decker, Marjorie Hemphill, Janet Smith, Leah Snook, and Ann Stoitz.

that she has left the College a great deal—namely six wallets, two umbrellas, and a raincoat.

Diplomacy for Tish

A girl, who speaks Spanish fluently and "stutters real pretty like" over French, wants a job in the diplomatic service after spending the summer working on a Pittsburgh newspaper. Her name is Ruth Tisherman and she is particularly proud of having served on the Liberal Arts Student Planning Committee.

"Posy" Schearrer hopes to get married if "Grif" ever gets a job, or if she ever gets one. She says she'll miss everything about College except the numerous meetings she has had to attend. And just in case you're wondering, this girl will leave a lot of enemies in the coeds who have received campuses from her, when she was head of Judicial.

Food for Cameras

Home Ec majors don't all become housewives right away, as Marge Blackwood will prove. She's going to do industrial food work for Eastman Kodak, come July 1. She hopes to eliminate the running around then.

Commencement will mark the end of her College career and the beginning of another career, marriage. June First, who is "crazy about this place in general," will be married tomorrow, and she and "Murph" plan to send all their children to Penn State too.

Spinsters Sports

Chi Omega's softball team, in a surprise 11-5 victory over Alpha Chi Omega Tuesday night, broke that sorority's undefeated record and tied the women's double elimination tournament. Both ChiO and AChiO have one loss, AChiO having defeated ChiO earlier in the season.

In the last half of the fourth inning, Eunice Hurbunt, one of ten phys ed majors playing for ChiO, began a rally in which ChiO scored ten runs against AChiO pitcher Hanne Ludwig. Rebecca Walker pitched for the winning team.

At the close of the second of three archery rounds, Atherton team is in the lead with Kappa Alpha Theta having the next highest cumulative score.

Speech Group Initiates 12

The banana plant, resembling a tree, actually is an herb with tightly rolled leaves serving as stems.

Masquerettes Tap Sixteen

Masquerettes, sister organization of the Thespian Club, have tapped 16 members of the cast and committees of "No Time For Trouble" for membership in the club.

Organized in 1943 to give recognition to the girls who work in Thespian show who are unable to be members of the all-male Thespian Club, the group will hold the initiation ceremonies at the Kappa Kappa Gamma house, 7 p. m. Monday.

Those tapped are Arloa Betts, Shirley Coogan, Carol Dieckmann, Joyce Eichhorn, Frances Glass, Charlotte Halpern, Ruth Hatfield, Margaret Heagy, Leona Holmes (honorary), Sara Holstrum, Ruth Horrocks, Elizabeth Johnson, Pete Patterson, Beatrice Stern, Jacquelyn Struble, and Mary Lou Sweet.

Waygood, James Elected Cwens Junior Advisors

Cwens elected Mary Lou Waygood and Nan James as junior advisors for the coming year at the first organization meeting of the newly installed group.

Cwens who want copies of the pictures recently taken may sign up for them at the Photo Shop, said past president Mary Lou Waygood.
