Sandwich Shop Opens For Summer Session; New "Coke" Machine

One of Penn State's traditional institutions has returned to operation after a three year interruption of serving the armed forces, but only for the main Summer Session.

The Sandwich Shop, located in the basement of Old Main, is once more open to the public, serving breakfast, lunch, and dinner, and as a place for class-weary students to spend their sandwich hours. Under the supervision of Miss Hazel G. Fall, the Sandwich Shop offers complete cafeteria-style meals at reasonable prices.

In September 1942, when coeds took over the tri-dorms, the sandwich shop was converted into a mess hall for these students, because of the lack of dining commons to accommodate the extensive enrollment of coeds, Curtiss-Wright cadettes, and Hamilton Standard Propeller trainees.

When the Navy V-12 program was changed to Naval ROTC at the College, the Sandwich Shop converted to serving meals to enlisted men and carried through until the end of last semester, when the final group of trainees left campus. Still to be noted in the cafeteria are the six-compartment trays and G.I. cups.

Now, the Sandwich Shop, with a new coat of paint and a Navy serving counter, is back to pre-war status for the remainder of the Summer Session, with mid-morning and mid-afternoon snacks, and "cokes" always available, as well as regular meals.

One of the new features of the recently reopened eatery is the soft drink dispenser which automatically returns correct change.

Former Chaplain

JOHN H. FRIZZELL

(Continued from page one) tary of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in the Episcopal Church. Frizzell returned to Penn State in 1926 as associate professor of public speaking, and organized the work in speech and debating into what is now the department of speech.

Frizzell became College chaplain quite by accident, too. In the Spring of 1928, College officials found themselves without a chaplain to offer the invocation for commencement. They asked Frizzell.

"I had never written a prayer," Frizzell, who since that time has written and published a book of prayers, said. "But I prayed, to, for, and with the graduating seniors instead of telling God all that had happened in the Commonwealth during the past year."

Frizzell was appointed to the chapel list and in the Fall of 1928 found himself acting college chaplain. Nine years later, when someone raised the question in a letter as to how long one should be an acting chaplain before he became a chaplain, he was appointed College chaplain, which position he held until his retirement.

Frizzell was the founder of the local chapter of his fraternity, Phi Kappa Psi, and during World War II, his home really became the house for his fraternity.

In tribute to Frizzell for his interest and service to the chapter, the fraternity has presented him with a leather-bound volume containing letters from 121 members of the chapter. The cover is inscribed with the words, "John Henry." A sizeable money gift in the form of an annuity accompanied the volume.
