'Names Can Be Humorous' Says Pert LA Secretary

"Mrs. C. J. Cronmeyer," she said, "just spell it with ease!" The secretary of the Liberal Arts school could best be described as a gray haired "young" lady with all the pep, personality, and vigor of the average coed.

Between humorous anecdotes, Mrs. Cronmeyer said that she had been working for the College since 1917 and she intends to stay for at least ten more years. When asked if she liked the work she was doing, she answered, "Why --- I like it or I wouldn't be here this long."

When Mrs. Cronmeyer first came to the College she worked as a secretary for the Horticulture department and worked there till 1923. She received her secretarial training at the Commercial College in York, her home town. "I guess my diplomas were official," she laughed, "I received two of them."

"Names are the funniest things that happen around here," the secretary added. "There was a girl here last year and her name was Anne E. Wiser. She withdrew to get married and the question of the moment is, 'Is she any wiser now?' June First used to come to the office, and we would ask her why she didn't come with Mary Friday for she may as well have the date and the day, too."

"When I first came to the College, I didn't understand the Horticulture language. I was told to write a letter to Arnold Arboretum and I addressed it to Mr. Arnold Anberateum. Afterwards I found out that Arboretum was a school."

"So many interesting things do happen around here," Mrs. Cronmeyer went on. "Last year when George Gage came to paint Dean Stoddart's picture, he painted it right here in the office. He was very nice and would let us come in and watch him; then he would ask our opinion on it and how we thought it was coming. We received Christmas cards from him last year."

The secretary said that there is a lot of friendly rivalry between the different schools of the College concerning how many flunk-outs there are going to be, who will get them and which office will get the dean's list out first.

"The most profound shock I ever had was when Dean Wagner died this year. He was the most wonderful man—I never knew whether I was working for him or whether he was working for me. Stoddart is simply tops as a boss, too," she added.

"Scuse me, there's the phone—again," Mrs. Cronmeyer grinned. "Fun to have met you!"
