

IMA Features Dancing, Games At Fun Night

With an album of Eddie Duchin tunes given as door prize, the Independent Men's Association open the portals of Recreation Hall at 8 o'clock Saturday night when they feature "Fun Night."

Highlighting the evening's program of informal recreation and amusement will be recorded music for dancing, plus card games, ping pong, badminton, and table games.

Tickets for "Fun Night" can be obtained at Student Union all day tomorrow and Saturday morning. Women are to be admitted free. Tickets for men cost 30 cent, tax included.

Salvatore Rocci is general chairman of the affair, with Frank Davis chairman of the publicity committee, John Nolan dance committee, Frank Tindona, games, and Gabriel Harkowiz, tickets.

AVC Program Follows Rally

In conjunction with the football pep rally being held in Schwab Auditorium at 7:15 p. m. Friday evening, the AVC program featuring music by Sonny Royce's orchestra and a talk by the former editor of YANK, Merle Miller, will be presented immediately following the rally, thus affording students a complete evening of entertainment.

Inviting all students, faculty and townspeople to attend the program following the pre-game get-together, Edward Banyai, chairman of the local AVC said, "We feel that veterans will be especially interested in hearing a man like Merle Miller, who was editor of YANK magazine in both theaters of operation, ETO and Pacific."

Miller, whose latest book is "We Dropped the A-Bomb" was, prior to the war, Washington correspondent for the Philadelphia Record. Presently, he is editor of the new publication planned by Marshal Field.

Mr. Miller is also well known for his activities with Americans United for World Government, the organization which sponsored Clifton Fadiman on the Penn State campus this summer.

Last Spring's Cabinet To Meet At 8 Tonight

All-College Cabinet will meet in the Alumni Office of Old Main at 8 o'clock tonight, James Sheehan, seventh semester president, announced.

The meeting is for members of last spring's cabinet or their representatives, and does not include members under the revised constitution.

Soph Hop, the recently approved budget, and other Cabinet business will be discussed, Sheehan said.

Shorthand, Typing

Registration for classes in elementary and advanced shorthand and typing closes today at 5 o'clock. The courses are open to the public and classes will be held two evenings a week for one and one-half hours a night for each course.

Under the College Extension Office, this program will extend for approximately eleven weeks. A registration fee of $10 is required, and classes open Monday.

ATLANTA—The Atlanta Constitution stated last night in a copyrighted story that Japan had made and tested an atomic bomb three days before the end of the war.

The story was written by David Snell, former Constitution reporter returned from service with a criminal investigation detachment operating in Korea.

The newspaper said that the Japanese who developed the bomb are now prisoners of the Russians in Moscow.

Snell said he obtained his story from a Japanese officer, who "gave names, dates, facts and figures on the Japanese atomic project." Snell said he turned over the information to United States Army intelligence officers in Seoul, Korea.

BERLIN, GERMANY—All Berlin newspapers—British and American-licensed as well as Russian-controlled—are in agreement for perhaps the first time on a major political issue.

While all of the newspapers praised the Nuernberg military tribunal for conducting an ex-

College History Now on Sale

"History of the Pennsylvania State College," the first complete published book of this type, is now on sale locally.

The book was written by Dr. Weyland Fuller Dunaway, professor emeritus of American history at the College. It describes the growth of the College from the day the Farmers' High School opened its doors in 1859 until the end of the regular session of 1941-42.

The 519-page book contains 34 illustrations, including a large panorama view of the campus. The chapter headings are indicative of the contents:

Founding of the College, Progress Under Difficulties, Era of Drifting and Experiment, The College Falls on Evil Days, The Forward Movement Begins, The Forward Movement Gains Momentum, Early Student Life and Customs, Popularization of the College, Growth Tempered by Obstacles, The College at Flood Tide, The Departments and Administrative Units, The Extension Services, Later Student Life and Customs, Physical Training and Athletics, The College and the Commonwealth.

Sale and distribution of the history is in charge of the Alumni Office. Copies, priced at $3.50 each, may be obtained from all State College bookstores, the Nittany Lion Inn, and from the Student Union office in Old Main.

China Missionary To Address Chapel In Penn-State-In-China Day Service

Rev. E. Walter Smith, recently returned from China, will relate interesting and trying experiences lying behind his four years as a missionary in that war-torn country in an address observing Penn-State-in-China day in Schwab Auditorium at 11:00 Sunday.

Penn-State-in-China Sunday will commemorate 33 years of support of the school of agriculture at Lingnan University, Canton, China, by students and faculty of the College.

Four years of war, famine, invasion, and finally forced flight by truck, train and plane from capture by Japanese troops marked the first term of service in China of Reverend Smith. With Mrs. Smith and two small children, both born in China, Mr. Smith made a trip home across China, India and the war-torn Pacific in 1944.

Going out in 1940 under the American Board of Foreign Missions the Smiths were assigned to Peking for a year of language study but within a month were forced to flee to Foochow.

IFC Meets To Reorganize

Reorganization of the Interfraternity Council to a peace-time group took place last night when the initial meeting of the Fall term was held in Old Main.

Upon suggestion by IFC president Fritz Lloyd, nearly all fraternities delegated their house president and a junior student to attend the opening session.

The Council, in connection with Daily Collegian, Froth, and All-College Cabinet, voted to contribute to the expense of publishing a student register in time for the coming campus elections October 23.

Fraternalists were urged to enter teams in the coming intramural sports program. Jack Bryon was appointed as IFC football coordinator, while Andy Pippa was selected to plan the swimming schedule. Dave Carlton will coordinate cross-country competition.

The council also discussed the possibility of awarding a cup to the winners since the intramural association will not make any such award this year.

Veterans At College To See World War Film

Veterans at the College will have a chance to see themselves in combat when the department of military science and tactics shows the first of a series of World War II films at 8 o'clock tonight in Room 119 New Physics Building.

The program for tonight includes the four combat action pictures: "The True Glory," "Combat Operations in the Pacific," "Combat Operations in the ETO," and "A Sergeant's Diary."

The films will run for two hours and fifteen minutes and the showing will be open to the general public as well as to veterans.

AA Books Good at Game

Students and faculty and staff members will be admitted to the Penn State Bucknell football game at New Beaver Field Saturday, via their athletic coupon books, officials announced today.

H. R. Gilbert, assistant graduate manager of athletics, said this system was made necessary by the loss in transit of the tickets originally ordered for this game.

Substitute tickets have been printed but will be used only to meet mail orders, and alumni requests. All these persons, plus College guests, will be seated in Section D of the West stands.

Tickets for the general public will entitle them to seats in Sections A and B, in the West stands; and Sections O, P, and Q in the East stands.

Upperclassmen will be seated in Sections J, K, L and M, in the East stands. Section C, in the West stands, will be reserved for faculty and staff members.

Release of regular tickets for the other games on the home schedule will begin on Wednesday of next week.

Lion To Roar At Pep Rally

Nittany's proud old Lion will let out a roar to shake the very columns of Old Main from Schwab Auditorium at 7:15 p. m. tomorrow.

Plans for the first big pep rally of the banner 1946 gridiron season are near final completion and Blue Band, cheerleaders, and Coach Bob Higgins and his varsity football eleven will appear for a rousing speech, song, and yell session.

According to Richard Sarge, organizer of the rally for the Daily Collegian, Student Handbooks are available at the Penn State Christian Association office in Old Main for rally enthusiasts who are

Marquardt Sets Dates

Priority numbers for tickets to the 1946 Artists' Course series at the College will be issued between 4 and 4:30 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, Dr. C. E. Marquardt, chairman of the Artists' Course committee, announced today.

Students may get their numbers Monday, faculty and townspeople Tuesday, and the remaining numbers will be issued Wednesday from the Athletic Association office window, Old Main.

Group Fails In Attempt to Revive Clique

Another attempt to reorganize the pre-war Campus clique fell flat again last night as a group turned out last night in answer to a call from Alexander Petrowski, a former member of the clique.

The plan to revive the former fraternity-backed clique was discarded after it was pointed out that a clique must present a complete preliminary slate of nominations Sunday night.

The small size of the group turning out last night and the large job ahead if the clique was to present a slate for the coming elections was given by Petrowski as the reason for abandoning the project.

This was not the first time that groups have attempted to revive the Campus clique, it was learned. All other efforts have ended in the groups attaching themselves to the two established cliques.

White To Miss Graduation

When Commencement Exercises come around next year, a familiar face will be missing.

It will be that of Hester V. White, retired miller and former member of the Board of Trustees at the College, who hasn't missed a June graduation in 62 years. He died at his home in Bloomsburg on Monday at the age of 88. Funeral services were held yesterday.

Learning of White's death, Ralph D. Hetzel, president, yesterday said: "The College will miss his active devotion and great spirit. His passing is a real public loss."

White served on the Board of Trustees of the College from 1886 to 1923, having been elected from the county agricultural and industrial societies. From 1902 to 1919 he was on the executive committee of the Board and from 1907 to 1909, served as secretary. He was also a member of the advisory committee of the School of Agriculture from 1900 to 1910.

During the 62 years that White has been attending June Commencements, he has seen more than 23,000 of the nearly 33,000 graduates of Penn State receive their degrees. In 1915, his daughter, Elizabeth Aiman White was among the graduates.

White had the distinction of seeing Penn State's smallest graduating class of three students receive degrees in 1887 and in 1939, and again in 1940, the largest class of 1157 men and women get their degrees.

Air ROTC Enrollment Closes Saturday Noon

Fifty students at the College have enrolled for the advanced course will lead to a second lieutenant's commission in the air reserve. The course will include 10 hours of air orientation and 15 hours of actual flight time during the senior year.

It was explained that if pending legislation is approved, flight time earned as an Air ROTC student may be applied in obtaining a civilian pilot's license.

Walter Smith

At first much of Mr. Smith's work as superintendent of schools, churches, a dispensary and an orphanage in the area of Ingtau, 40 miles distant from Foochow, was carried on by traveling on foot, in rickshas and by river launch from Foochow. Then to avoid the long hazardous trips, Reverend Smith moved his family to Ingtau, a city still in a primitive stage of progress. They found the people there backward, undernourished, and diseased.

In June, 1944, after privations and difficulties during which the Smiths witnessed one of the worst famines in the history of that area, the Japanese came to Foochow. Since Pearl Harbor had intervened, the Smiths were now enemy aliens. With their two children they fled in a primitive carriage and trunk, by river barge and plane to Kunming and over the "hump" into India.

Reverend Smith was born in Memphis, Tennessee and educated at Duke University and Union Seminary. Before going to China he did religious education work and was a pastor. During the past year of furlough he has taken work in the Chinese Language School of Yale University.
