St. John To Open Forum Series

Robert St. John, war correspondent, author, and well-known radio personality, will open the State College Community Forum series on October 24, Dr. B. V. Moore, committee chairman, announced today.

St. John will replace Herbert Agar, political and historical commentator, who was forced to cancel his engagement because of ill health. He will speak on "Can We Avoid World War III?"

St. John is the author of the books, "From the Land of Silent People" and "It's Always Tomorrow."

Political Round-Up

Fritz Lloyd has resigned as a member of the All-College Elections Committee to serve as campaign manager for the Nittany-Independent, All-College and Senior class cliques. His position on the Election Committee will probably be filled when the committee meets tonight.

The Nittany-Independents had a scheme up their sleeves until the Election Committee frowned. The idea was to put up two men for nomination in several offices. Each nominee would be given a few days to gather and submit evidence of support to the clique. The one with the least support would then resign from the nomination. They are going ahead with the idea but the losers in the battle of support won't officially resign until Sunday night.

Ted LeFevre won out over Bill Gessner for the vice-presidency of the Sophomore class in a meeting Tuesday night to look for Gessner to resign this Sunday night and pledge support to the ticket.

The same thing will happen in the Senior class vice-president and secretary-treasurer slot when the Senior clique meets.

Sweater Hop Tickets Place on Sale Today

Tickets for the "Sweater Hop" which will be held in Recreation Hall from 9 to 12 p. m. Saturday will be on sale at the Student Union desk in Old Main today and tomorrow.

Tickets will also be on sale at the dance.

Ticket Sale Postponed

Sale of Artists' Course tickets, scheduled to begin today, has been postponed until later in the month, Dr. C. E. Marquardt, chairman, announced last night.

Failure of the tickets to arrive from the printers will delay ticket sales until October 23 for students and October 24 for faculty and townspeople.

Tickets will then be distributed according to priority numbers held and at the time designated on the priority cards.

IMA To Enter Sports League

Independent Men's Association is aiding the Physical Education department in signing up men to enter teams in the several Intramural Leagues being sponsored this fall.

Members of IMA and all other independent men may enter teams in the touch football, cross-country or swimming leagues. In order to be eligible for any of these teams, entrants must have a physical examination at the Dispensary in Old Main. Certificate of this examination is necessary before anyone can be entered on team rosters.

Cross-country teams will be composed of three men, and each team will be charged a fee of $75. The fee for swimming teams of 5 to 10 men is $1. Touch football teams, to play nine-man ball, will be composed of 12 to 15 men. There is a fee of $1 for each team.

Independent men who are interested in entering any of these teams should sign up at Student Union where forms are available. Whole houses may enter as a team, and IMA will make up teams of single men who sign up for play.

The IMA will sponsor a bowling league independent of the Intramurals, Eugene Fulmer, president, announced today. Seven-man teams will be made up, and as with the football league, either houses or individual men may make up teams by signing up at Student Union now.

Discussion at the Tuesday night meeting brought out plans for organizing independent houses next semester. Further study will be made of a proposal to award a cash scholarship to the IMA member who shows the most improvement in several semesters.

Collegian Finds Missing Official

On Tuesday in a letter to the editor, "A Good Sports Fan" challenged the Collegian sports department to find on campus "one of the nation's outstanding basketball referees with a name something like De Mario who looks like John Garfield."

Following a hunch, a Collegian scribe went to see Danny DiMarino, assistant dean of men. After all, Danny does have a name similar to DeMario and by stretching the imagination, he does look something like John Garfield.

But no, Danny was never a basketball official. He did, however have a baby-sitter who seemed to fit the description; the fellow's name was Orlando Di-Maria and he was a journalism major in his third semester.

That did it. There under the collective noses of the Collegian staff in the journalism department was one of the nation's outstanding basketball referees—with a parttime job as a baby sitter.

DiMaria, called Flea because of his diminutive size, started officiating while a student at Greensburg High School because he was too small to play basketball. He weighed only 85 pounds when he graduated in 1936.

Getting Pat Kennedy, Madison Square Garden referee to teach him his style, Orlando took the P.I.A.A. exams in 1939, and in 1941 passed the national examination for collegiate officials.

WASHINGTON — Democratic and Republican politicians set up an increasing clamor today for swift action to ease the country-wide meat shortage.

Important advisers to President Truman met at the White House yesterday in an effort to find the answer to the meat shortage. As these advisers conferred, there was talk elsewhere of "emergency action." One highly placed Democrat, who withheld use of his name, predicted President Truman would take some action within a few days to get more meat on the family dinner tables of the nation.

PARIS—The peace conference has approved the French compromise proposals for the government of the free state of Trieste. These proposals, the most hotly disputed parts of the proposed Italian peace treaty, were approved in the face of strong opposition from the Soviet bloc.

BOSTON — On the American sports front, the Boston Red Sox blanked the St. Louis Cards, 4 to 0, yesterday to take a two to one lead in the 1946 world series. Rudy York's second homer of the series, delivered in the first inning with two Red Sox on base, broke the hearts of the rugged Cardinals. Dave Ferriss held the Cards to six hits to take the decision, while Murray Dickson—victim of York's tremendous wallop—was the loser.

SDX to Initiate Six Members

An initiation of professional and local members of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism honorary, will take place Sunday at 4:30 p.m. at the Nittany Lion Inn.

Professional men who will be initiated are Dwight Perren, managing editor of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin; Senator W. D. Mansfeld, publisher of the McKeesport Daily News; Walter Krebs, publisher of the Johnstown newspapers; and L. J. Fagan, city editor of the Pittsburgh Press. Other professional men from state newspapers will also be in attendance.

Two local student members, Ben French and Frank Davis, will be initiated.

Thirteen active members of the local chapter, members of the department of journalism, and college guests will be present at a dinner which will follow the initiation.

Russian Club Entertains Old And New Members

Social meeting of the American Russian Organization will be held in New Beaver Room, 304 Old Main 7 p. m. Sunday; it was announced by club president Michael Fedak. All members and Russian students are urged to attend.

At a recent meeting, the first of the Fall term, new members were welcomed into the club, committees chosen, and plans for the coming year were discussed.

Ann Buganich was selected to head the social committee composed of Mike Fatula, John Labash, Alice Marcinowski, and Pearl Biller. Calendar chairman will be Tim Petroff, with Joe Tarris, Helen Tyriw, Walter Jaskalka, and Ted Pstrak assisting.

Auditing, Ways and Means committee is comprised of chairman Michael Samchak, Joe Featro, Leo Yankosky, and Nick Vlanich. Stephen Sinichak heads the publicity committee which includes Helen Tyriw and Genevieve Tars. Club officers are vice-president Michael Samchak, secretary Elsie Federoff, and treasurer George Latzo.
