Campus Political Parties Intensify Campaigning

Campus politics, with all the splash and color of pre-war years, return this week as both cliques begin to intensify their campaigning.

Already mass meetings, complete with dance bands and the candidates, are being held and a goodly number of students are wearing little white keys denoting their association to Campus-Key or a red tag with the inscription, "Vote Nittany-Independent."

Colorful posters adorn the windows of the downtown merchants and the local restaurants are crowded with politicians from dawn to dusk, all wearing their best campaign smiles.

This year each clique will be permitted $100 for publicity purposes as compared with $50 last spring and $25 in 1945. An additional five dollars is being given to each clique by the election committee to compensate for the former use of printed posters. Voting will be conducted from

Waring Writes Piece Ruins Hum's Peace With Rush Job

"We Pennsylvanians must stick together," said 'Hum' Fishburn. And thereby hangs a tale of hectic hours in the music department Monday and Tuesday.

It all began when Fred Waring mailed to Dr. Henry S. Brunner the original manuscript of "The FFA," a new tune presented and dedicated by Waring to Brunner's 100-piece Pennsylvania State FFA Band. This number was a piano arrangement. Dr. Brunner needed instrumentations for the band instruments, so he appealed to the music department for help. Fishburn summoned Cecil Bowles, a graduate student in music and instructed him to "get busy" transposing and shuffling the notes for the bandmen.

Meanwhile the high school boys were scheduled to leave Friday for the trip to Kansas City. That meant arranging the music, getting enough parts for each player, and a chance to rehearse the Waring number before presenting it to the unsuspecting 15,000 persons expected at the FFA convave.

Fishburn checked his other music classes. Perhaps the students in harmony and composition could copy the parts, making their course practical, and yet get enough copies ready be-

S U Committee Meets Tonight

The first meeting of the All College Student Union committee will be held tonight at 7 p. m. in 110 Home Economics, it was announced by chairman Lawrence Foster.

As was the case last semester, every organized group on campus is urged to have a representative present. Independent, as well as fraternity members of the student body who are interested in backing the Union project are asked to take an active part.

"The Student Union committee has plans for Homecoming Weekend, but in order to carry them out, we'll need the help of the people who were a part of our group last semester, as well as any newcomers who have the urge to support the Union project," announced chairman Foster.

It was learned from the Student Union Office in Old Main that many more entries in the IFC decorating contest have come in. Because of the sudden rush, IFC chairman Fritz Lloyd has decided to extend the deadline until this evening at 5 p. m.

A number of the sororities on campus have individually volunteered to decorate their houses for the weekend, it was learned last evening.

George Donovan, manager of the Student Union office announced that his department, has asked a student photographer to take pictures of the fraternity displays. Donovan feels that they will play an important role in recording the progress made by undergraduates along Student Union lines.

A number of the fraternities who plan displays have suggested that the judging be done on Friday evening because it is felt that the lighting effects will play an important part in the general appearance of the decorations. James Jones, IFC contest chairman could not be reached and at present the exact time of judging is not known.

Dairy Science Honors Jones

Philip D. Jones, in charge of the College dairy herds 30 years, was honored Tuesday night by the Dairy Science Club. In recognition of his "helpful service to dairy students over a period of 30 years," he was given a life membership in the Penn State Student Chapter of American Dairy Science Association and presented with a copy of Dr. W. F. Dunaway's "History of the Pennsylvania State College." John Wilson, chairman of last spring's dairy show, made the presentation.

In a short business meeting, at which George D. Heidelbaugh presided, the local club learned that it had been the first student chapter to be recognized by the parent organization. This occurred in 1926.

The 35 members will elect officers next week.

Warnock States Policy On Student Car Permits

Dean Arthur R. Warnock, in an interview regarding the college policy on automobiles, said, "College regulations require that all student cars be granted permits from the patrol office and should display numbered tags.

Campus traffic regulations forbid students driving on the central campus between 7:30 a. m. and 5 p. m. on days when classes are in session."

Dean Warnock said that all student drivers should be cautious both on the campus and in town, because of the increased size of the student body.
