With the Editor

For those students who consider student government more than a popularity contest to be held once a year, the following may be of some information:

Since the start of the semester, All-College Cabinet has met three times. A small group of students have taken an active interest in the meetings. Most of them are men running for office this Fall. Their motivation for attending and participating in student government meetings may have been political in nature; this I doubt.

To Jim Sheehan, candidate for Senior class president, goes most of the credit for the work that has been accomplished by cabinet this Fall. Jim probably feels that he could have spent those three Thursday evenings more profitably by campaigning where the votes are. He was, however, conscientious enough to carry on his duties as acting chairman, even though it was not necessary for him to call cabinet meetings.

Other presidential candidates who took an active part in student government meetings and work were Bob Foote, candidate for All-College president; Gene Fulmer, candidate for Junior class president and both Sophomore presidential nominees, Emory Brown and Richard Sarge.

Editorials and features in The Collegian reflect the opinions of the writer. They make no claim to represent student or University opinion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Campus-Key Replies

TO THE EDITOR: Wagging of tongues and over use of the pen has long been known as the tell-tale sore spot of those that are in much the same position as the cornered rat. The return of old Campus party members and in turn their mass movement toward ties with the Key party seems to irk the opposition because of their loss and our gain in talent, experience and integrity.

The theme song of the opposition as the only friend of the independent students is in itself the most base mis-statement of fact to come out in this campaign.

We remind every student that the Campus-Key party has two independent candidates; exactly the same number as the Nittany-Independent party. Where does this give them priority as the Champion of the independent students? The Nittany-Independent party inaugurated the 60-40 per cent plan whereby at least 40 per cent of their candidates would be representatives of the independent students. Has mathematics changed so that TWO independent candidates out of TWELVE is 40 per cent?

We are sorry that members of the Nittany-Independent party must use the column "To the Editor" of the Daily Collegian to mis-inform the student body as to the policies of the Campus-Key party. These two men wrote, "There are some of us—who had stakes in the Campus party—that realize that the old idea of fraternity versus independent is definitely outmoded."

We wonder if these two men realize that the present Nittany-independent party which was once known as the Nittany party, approached the Key party a few months back and wanted to combine into one party against the independents. This incident is recalled very clearly and it is remembered that we refused the Nittany party's suggestion. It was then that the Nittany party merged as the Nittany-Independent party.

We are amused to discover that Mr. Miller and Mr. Douglas first denounce the old Campus party as a political "machine," and immediately assert that they number among themselves some of those "policy making" members of that "machine."

The spirit of this letter is neither aggressive nor defensive. It is rather, a protest against seemingly willful depreciation by those who seek personal gain through the erroneous presumption that Penn State students are ignorant of the facts and easily misled.

We do not believe these conjectures to be well founded. We challenge the perpetrators of the letter to the editor to show proof either of the validity of their accusations, or of the disproof of the statements we have made in this letter.

Popularity

TO THE EDITOR: If the members of the football team who swiped the Student Union display from a fraternity house sometime after 2 a.m. Sunday had expended that energy in Saturday's game—the fraternity would have had a display left on Sunday—and the football team might be a little more popular with the student body than they are right now.

Sincerely,
One of many who wasn't in a frivolous mood after Saturday's loss.

- Blessings on thee, BMOC, Laden with hat and many a key! With thy booth in ye cornerroom Wherein friendships leap to bloom; In open-collared shirt of white, Perpetual dress by day or night; With a coed on thy arm, Bathing in thine untold charm; My heart cries out! I give to thee, Blessings from an LMOC.

• Homecoming weekend is when all alumni come back and pretend they were BMOC's when they were in College, and all present BMOC's pretend that they are someday going to be alumni.

• The student's definition of a friend seems to be "a person from whom one can borrow good notes for at least three courses."

India—1946

Tomorrow night the Common Sense Club will present a program entitled "India 1946." At this time native Indian students from the College will speak and a film, "The Changing Face of India," will be shown. We invite you to attend this meeting because we think it will interest you.

Why, you may ask, should we, the students of Penn State be interested in far-away India? There are several excellent reasons aside from any purely cultural considerations. If we subscribe to the belief that men are brothers, concern for the well-being of all men should follow quite naturally.

At this time India is especially worthy of interest—she is a country of many complex problems which have been intensified to a certain degree by the colonial policies of Great Britain.

As citizens of the world it is to our own best interests that we keep ourselves informed about the problems of other world citizens, for only by being well-informed can we think and act intelligently when the need arises. Therefore to inform you and to stimulate a search for further information, the Common Sense Club presents "India 1946."
