

Pi For Russia

Sometimes the printers "pi" the type in a story. This means the type lines have been inverted or deleted. Sometimes the editor of a paper has to shorten a story because you cannot squeeze lead type lines to fit the space. Such was the case with this writer's editorial on Robert St. John in yesterday's Daily Collegian.

"Either you take your tottering future in your own hands or you will have no future at all," was the sentence of the editorial which was deleted at the end.

Type is not the only commodity which is "pied." Sometimes the whole world is "pied," because of carelessness and impatience. Either we foster care and patience in our dealings with Russia or the "pied" type will go to press. No retraction can ever be made if such a thing happened.

With The Editor

Rumor spreading is, of course, a favorite pastime among students.

During the course of a day an editor hears dozens. He also learns to ignore them—lest he wind up with high blood pressure, stomach ulcers and out on a limb because he failed to check the facts.

But yesterday morning, as I sought relaxation by reading my favorite little paper, "The Sapulpa Herald" (it's very much like the New York Times), I heard two members of the Collegian staff causing quite a commotion in the outer office.

Instinctively I knew... another rumor had crept into the office.

Laying aside the Herald (Sapulpa Herald, that is) I went out to run down the rumor.

My first stopping place was the Office of the Dean of Women (since the rumor concerned that office).

Neither of us could figure out why or how the story got around, but Dr. Weston assures us that she knows nothing about plans to make coeds come back to the dorms earlier than they now do during the week and on weekends.

Such talk is foolish for while the women on this campus might submit meekly, the men never would. Whoever heard of men studying if they could spend a few hours more with the little woman? (That's not always true, of course.)

The other rumor concerns the old tale about Miami not playing us if our colored players go along on the trip.

In answer to Dick Frontman's letter, elsewhere on this page, I have only this to say:

The game is still several weeks away. At the moment the team plans to take our two Negro players to that game.

I say at the moment for obvious reasons. Injuries could prevent either from making the trip and we do have games with Fordham, Temple and Pitt before that Miami bout.

Also to be considered: Neither of the men are on the starting line-up. If we have the trouble with Miami that everyone expects, then there will be very few substitutions.

If we're kept on the defensive most of the game (and that's very likely) then Triplett probably won't see much action. He has definitely shown that he is not a defensive player.

So: (1) The College plans to send them along to Miami and (2) they will play if the Hig can afford to put anyone but members of the first string in.

This consideration has not been made by any of the students aiding and abetting the rumor: If it is true that the Miami team will make it rough for any of our colored players (and I think, after two years spent in the southland, that they would) just why should we ask them to go in and take a beating because they are Negroes—it's enough that they have to take a beating for State.

Has anyone bothered to ask our two colored players whether or not they care to play in a game where the rough-housing (all legal, of course) might be a little tougher on them?

Letters

"From Reliable Sources . . ."

I have heard from reliable sources that Miami University has refused to permit our Negro football players to participate in the Penn State-Miami game, which is to be played on November 29 at Miami. The reason is, of course, the usual Southern prejudice against the Negro.

We at Penn State realize that there is only one way to play football—the democratic way. Either all of our players should participate—or none.

If we play Miami and do not use our colored players, we merely become partners in this crime against humanity—and, incidentally, we help to make this past war seem worthless and wasted. Let's insist that Miami play our entire team—or cancel the game.

The ideals of Democracy are more important than any football game.

Sincerely,

Richard Frontman '47

Fordham's Lansing

In Wednesday's issue there is notable mention of Fordham's All-American end, Jim Lansing. It seems to me that I read in two different reliable (you wouldn't know) newspapers that Monsieur Lansing had dropped from the team due to injuries. The injury, the articles said, would have kept J. L. out of action about a month anyhow.

Now I'm not insinuating that your paper is attempting to mislead we students; I just think you don't know any better.

Paper is made from rags; maybe someday someone will do the same for you.

• Thanks to reader Kleidman and a nickel to sportswriter Al Ostar to go out and buy a newspaper, other than the Collegian, to read.

TO PARKING COMMITTEE

There's some guys at Old Penn State

Who are adverse to walking . . .

So let's get more or bigger plots

And do more than just talking.

The parking lots are too damn small

Or else too far away—

Something must be done you know

By a not far distant day.

A double decker parking lot

Is what we must invent,

For all the lots are crowded now

And fenders do get bent.

So take your pen in hand, dear sir

And on the map go sketching,

The parking lots we have just now

Sure need a little stretching.

A little fine for cars mis-parked:

If it be but a dollar —

I know it sure would be a help—

But how some guys would holler.

Well, something must be done you know

So let's get going and do it—

For if we don't—there'll come a day

When I know that we will rue it.

From—P. A. Marks
