Houseparty Whirlwind Descends

Late AP News Courtesy Radio Station WMAJ

WASHINGTON-President Truman has made it clear that he has no intention of resigning from the White House in favor of a Republican. But Democratic Senator William Fulbright of Arkansaswho first suggested it yesterday. still thinks it's a good idea. Fulbright stuck by his guns last night. He repeated that he is planning to introduce a constitutional amendment in the new Congress which would open the way for a quick  $chang_e$  in case such a situation ever comes up again.

week. WASHINGTON - To decontrol or not to decontrol-that is the question plaguing housing agencies. The Administration is undecided as to what to do about controls over building materials. And this uncertainty is holding up the

Students Shun Class Meetings

Exactly 29 seniors out of a class of 1295 turned up at their meeting last night. This is just over one-fiftieth of the total membership.

James Sheehan, president, went over the problems discussed at last week's All-College Cabinet meeting and said that caps, gowns. invitations, and announcements would be topics of interest at the next class meeting. Plans for the Junior Prom were discussed at the meeting of the junior class last night. The date has been set for February 21, but the band has not yet been chosen. Gene Fulmer, class president, also discussed plans for a junior get-acquainted dance sometime in the near future, and for bi-monthly meetings of the class.

Only two per cent of the entire schomore class attended their meeting last night. Richard Sarge, president, summarized the All-College Cabinet's discussion of last week.

A committee volunteered to work on a social mixer for the class. Bill Jaffurs was appointed chairman and Ham Brosious, Mary Ann Fay, Joan Fox; Ray Galle, Ann Lantz, Claire Lee, Mary Magas, Georgia Miller, Mimi Pomerene, and Kay Snider are members.

Angel Street Opens Tonight

When the Penn State Players present their show, "Angel Street," in Schwab Auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight and tomorrow night, the audience will see not only a tense, psychological melodrama, but also he culmination of six weeks of long, arduous work on the part of the 57 men and wom<sub>en</sub> who have made the production possible. "Too many people lay the success of a show solely to the persons who appear on the stage,' says Director Kelly Yeaton, "and too often forget, or are ignorant of, the half-hundred unseen people who have worked to make the show a hit."

And so we stopped back stage last night just before dress rehearsal, to talk to some of the 52 men and women who never appea<sub>r</sub> in the footlights-some of the men and women who deserve to be called out in front of the curtain to receive a share of the applause.

We stopped to watch Norma Teitelbaum, director's assistant and supervisor of make-up, as she worked in the cast's dressing room. In the glare of the naked light bullos, the reflections we saw in the dressing table mirrors were men and women Martians, gro-tesque and bizarrè under layers of cold cream, grease paint, and pow-der—only two resembled Earthmen.

We paused to observe Ruth Eis-ter, chairman of the costume crew, checking and rechecking the cast's costumes, taking a last minute stitch in a torn skirt, straightening an actor's tie, and pondering the responsibilities of the person who has to insure that clothes will be

Nittany Lions Face Temple Owls In Grid Clash; Soccer and X-Country Teams See Home Action

Houseparties will high-point the biggest weekend to hit the Penn State Campus since homecoming with the opening night of the Players' production of "Angel Street" starting the social whirl of the Houseparty weekend.

The first post-war Soph Hop with Ray McKinley and his Band will provide dancing pleasure for the thousands that are expected to fill Recreation Hall tonight at 9 o'clock.

Coeds have been given special 2 o'clock permissions for the Hop tonight and will have their regular 1 o'clocks for the houseparties tomorrow.

Three Nittany Lion athletic teams will play host tomorrow afternoon when the Lion gridders clash with the Temple Owls, and Coach

Jeffries' booters take on the Orange from Syracuse while the cross-country squad runs against Manhattan.

The Temple contest on New Beaver Field is expected to draw a crowd of 15,000, including many Owl rooters who will travel with the Temple University Band from Philadelphia in special chartered buses.

Independents will have two dances tomorrow evening as the Penn State Club and the IWA jointly give a recording dance at Woodman Hall and the Saturday Night Club concludes the weekend with a "Hall Za Poppin" at Recreation Hall.

The affair at Rec Hall will be highlighted with square dancing and music by George Frye and his Bald Eagle Ramblers.

Many different dance decorations will be seen at fraternity houses tomorrow evening with open and closed parties with themes such as the "Dog-Patch Frolic," "Pink Elephant Stam-pede," "Garden of Eden," and "Carnival."

'Hall Za Poppin'' Acts As Independent House Party

"Hall Za Poppin'," will conclude House Party Weekend in Recreation Hall from 8:30 to 11:45 to-morrow night. It will be sponsored by the Saturday Nite Club instead of IMA as incorrectly reported in yesterday's Collegian. George Frye and his Bald Eagle Ramblers will present dance music, and square dance calls will be sung by Fred Hartswick. Among other events planned for the evening are cards and other table games, kick-it, and ping-pong. The 30-cent admission includes tax, and is payable at the door.

No Collegian Tuesday

There will be no Collegian Tuesday, November 12 because of the Armistice holiday Monday. The printers get triple time for holi-days and we can't afford it!
