

Wallace Advocates Free Palestine; Says Holy Land Is British Pawn

by Marilyn H. Jacobson

"Palestine is just a pawn on the British chess board," said Henry Wallace, former Secretary of Agriculture, of Commerce, and Vice President of the United States, as he spoke to a capacity audience in Schwab Auditorium last night.

"Why shouldn't Palestine be a free nation?" he queried. "The Jews would run it and the Arabs would prosper. What stands in the way is the desire of the American Navy for the oil of Saudi-Arabia and the desire of the British to keep the Arabs on their side as they try to hem the Russians in."

Arab vs. Jew

"The Arabs did little to defeat Germany but maintained a high nuisance value," he continued. "The Jews did much to defeat Germany. Simple justice demands a free Palestine no matter what the oil needs of the American Navy may be. The creation of Palestine should be accompanied by loans to build irrigation and power plants not only in Palestine but throughout the Arab world."

"Why should American representatives play ball with high-class grafters when within a few years scientific research will enable us to drive our ships with atomic energy instead of oil?"

World Federation

Wallace, who resigned from his post as Secretary of Commerce because of a speech on international affairs which he delivered in New York, maintained his stand that "World federation without Russia will simply be world federation against Russia."

"The serious danger spots," he said, "are Germany, the Balkans, the Near East and China. Obviously the Anglo-Americans cannot tolerate Russian expansion into Turkey, but equally obviously, Russia has just claims to free access to the Mediterranean."

German Poison

"Germany is the most dangerous single spot for poisoning Anglo-American-Russian relations," he said. "Only when the Germans are fully at work again producing an abundance of peacetime goods will the danger be over."

"Too many ex-Nazis," he insisted, "still have deep in their souls the Gotterdammerung complex, wanting to see the whole world go up in one final burst of flame."

The former Vice President believes we are holding onto and arming the conquered Japanese islands in such a way as to be a threat against the mainland of Asia. "We have been backing the Chinese dictatorship with our marines because we feared Russian influence in China," he said.

Doesn't Want Communism

In conclusion, Wallace said, "I do not want communism in the United States and I do not want war with Russia. There is just one sure preventative of communism in the United States and that is to make such modifications in our free enterprise system as to produce an ever-increasing flow of abundance well-distributed among a fully-employed population without the boom of inflation, the burst of deflation, or the fear of war."

"With Anglo-Saxon Tories in charge of the foreign policy, in both England and the United States," Wallace declared, "we may fear the certainty of depression and the probability of war. The chief questions are when and where. That is why the young people of the world must organize themselves rapidly and efficiently."

New Student Directory Includes Everyone But Kilroy

If it's one of the Smith boys or girls you're hunting you'll find 60 of them in the 1946-47 Student-Faculty Directory now on sale.

But if it's Kilroy you're seeking, he's not there.

This year's directory, in addition to listing the 7000 students on the campus, includes a section for each of the four Undergraduate Centers of the College. Freshmen foresters enrolled at the Mont Alto State Forest School also compose a section of the directory.

More than 2000 faculty and administrative staff members are listed in another section. There also is a list of fraternities, dormitories, town houses, and department telephone numbers included in the 206-page publication.

Copies will remain on sale at Student Union Office, Old Main, at 25 cents, until the supply is exhausted.

College Suggests Rhodes Scholars

The College may have two Xianks at Oxford, Dean Warnock stated yesterday. William P. Hindman Jr., and Douglas Sherwin have been recommended by the Dean of Men as candidates in the December elections for Rhodes Scholarships.

"But," Dean Warnock added, "we are in the toughest competitive district in the country. Some of the men from Princeton and Pennsylvania University who have won scholarships were such well rounded individuals, that they were almost impossible to beat."

"We have been submitting applications," he said, "for the past twenty-five years, and have yet to secure a place. The reason for this lies partly in the apathy with which our students view the prospect of going to Oxford (Harvard, Yale, Columbia—yes, Oxford—no), and partly in the previous high Greek and Latin requirements, which today no longer exist."

Dean Warnock, himself, was once a Rhodes Scholarship candidate, but lost out to a Chicago University student, who could translate Greek-to-English, and English back to Greek better than he could.

William P. Hindman Jr. earned his B.A. degree at the College in 1941, and his B.S. in Industrial Engineering a year later. During this time he maintained a 2.85 average. He is now working on a masters in history at Bucknell. Mr. Hindman wants to study English constitutional and legal history at Oxford.

Douglas Sherwin is a graduate from the School of Chemistry and Physics. As an undergraduate he had "a creditable record in scholarship, and an outstanding one in athletics" according to Dean Warnock. Sherwin played on the baseball team for two years.

Thanksgiving Vacation Begins Noon Tomorrow

Thanksgiving recess will begin at 11:50 tomorrow morning and end at 8 a.m. Monday. Administrative offices will be closed on Thursday.

The College Library will close at 5 p.m. tomorrow and be closed all day Thursday and Sunday. It will be open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

Galloway Indicted On Murder Count; Trial Date Is Set

A true bill charging murder was returned by the Centre County Grand Jury yesterday against John E. Galloway, former College student, who is being held on a homicide charge in the fatal shooting of his wife, Katherine D. Galloway, in their Windcrest trailer October 26.

Foreman M. E. Rumberger, of the Grand Jury which consisted of 24 men and women, returned the bill at 12:30 yesterday. District Attorney Edward L. Willard then started presenting the County's case against Galloway.

Galloway will go on trial at the criminal session of court that convenes the week of December 9.

He did not appear before the grand jurors. Only witnesses for the commonwealth testify at grand jury sessions.

Witnesses called yesterday were Police Chief John R. Juba, William Hilbush, and Edward H. Loughner, members of the College police department, Mr. and Mrs. David Jones, Windcrest neighbors of the Galloways, and Dr. H. T. Date of State College.

Furst and Furst, and Musser W. Gettig, Bellefonte attorneys, will represent Galloway at the trial. The former student has been confined to the County jail since the morning of the shooting.

Forty-five extra jurors have been called for criminal session at which Galloway will be tried. A total of 100 men and women have been called to assure that the panel will be full for the trial.

Penn State Club Plans Recreation

Michael Zankowski has been elected Athletic Chairman of the Penn State Club, Albert Lucas, president, stated last night.

In the regular weekly meeting of the Penn State Club, the club president announced that all members who are interested in participating in intra-mural basketball should sign at the club room, 321 Old Main, as soon as possible. The Penn State Club plans to participate in campus intra-mural basketball and also to compete with teams from surrounding areas, said Lucas.

Discussed also were designs for pins and plans for a New Year's Dance at Recreation Hall, said Lucas, who also stated that the Penn State Club, IMA, and the School of Physical Education are combining to offer a Round and Square Dance at Recreation Hall, Saturday, November 16, from 8:30 p.m. to 11:45 p.m.

Memberships for the Penn State Club will be received both in the club room, 321 Old Main, and at Student Union, said the president. Lucas said that the Penn State Club offers to members weekly social gatherings, sports participation, and use of the recording machine in the club room at all times. The next meeting of the Penn State Club will be Monday, November 18, at 7:00 p.m., in 321 Old Main, said the club president.

PSCA, Hillel Present Thanksgiving Service

An All-College Thanksgiving service will be held in Schwab Auditorium today from 12:45 to 1:10 p.m.

Sponsored by the Penn State Christian Association and Hillel Foundation, the service will be conducted by students. Maurvin LeVan and Meryl Brown are in charge of the program. Special Thanksgiving music will be presented.

All students and faculty are invited to attend.

SU Clears Deep Fog; Dries Raincoat Case

In answer to a postcard sent to him by Student Union yesterday, a student at the College is richer one raincoat.

Taking the card to the SU desk, he waited for the coat, puzzled because he didn't remember having lost his raincoat recently. The coat was pulled out.

"Yes, that's my raincoat," he admitted.

"When did you lose it?" someone at the desk asked him.

"I lost it in the Corner Room," he said, "four years ago."

Moral: he had his initials inside the coat. How about your name-tags?

Fulmer Sets Date For Queen Photos

Deadline for photographs of candidates for queen of the Harvest Ball, December 7, is tomorrow, according to Eugene Fulmer, chairman of the committee for the queen's selection. All pictures should be turned in at the Student Union desk by 5 p.m.

Any organization—fraternity, sorority, independent, or Pollock Circle—may enter a candidate. All photographs should be of a suitable size.

Pictures will be on public display at the Corner Room the week previous to the Ball. The queen will be elected at the dance by public vote.

Fulmer's committee are Roy Gunther, Henrietta Munroe, Allen J. Vohden, and Howard Wise.

Library Plans Collections For Class Reunion Memories

When the class of '47 returns in 20 years for its reunion, a display of programs, announcements, pictures and other items may play a large part in bringing back the memories of student life as it is today. The library is making an earnest effort to gather materials for the Penn State Collection to be used not only for display, but for future reference by historians and students of Penn State history.

Although the College is passing into a new era, a part of the color and spirit of the past has been captured and stored in a special place of its own, the Penn State Room in Central Library. There may be found the mementoes

VA Gives Veterans Vocational Advice

Many X-GI's on campus are unaware of the vocational guidance service that the Veterans' Administration is furnishing to all veterans at the College without cost.

Conferences are held with veterans and aptitude tests are given in a variety of fields, including engineering, mechanics, science, clerical work, music and art. These tests are all conducted in the Veterans Administration building on Pollock Road across from Schwab Auditorium.

The veterans who take advantage of this service have the satisfaction of knowing that they are learning the vocation in which they are most likely to succeed and from which they will derive the greatest happiness.

The advisers are members of the College's psychology department who confer with veterans and study their abilities, personalities, and emotional dispositions. A conference lasts about four hours and when it's over, the veteran has a well-defined notion about what field he is best fitted for.

Campus Conserves Coal, Joins Nation Dimming Lights

College Fuel Supply Threatened By Strike

The campus took on a wartime atmosphere yesterday as the College joined the nation in conserving coal.

Old Main tower was dimmed out, just as it was during the war, and again last May, when another coal strike threatened the College fuel supply.

Corridors and stairways were dimly lighted.

Temperatures in offices, laboratories, and class rooms were just a few degrees below the usual temperatures.

Request Cooperation

College officials asked students, staff, and faculty to:

1. Shut off radiators when possible, and all office radiators at 4:45 p.m.

2. Keep buildings warmer by keeping windows closed and refraining from operating exhaust or fresh air supply fans.

3. Reduce the electrical load in all ways possible. Faculty and research personnel can reduce the load the greatest.

"Conservation of electrical power is necessary, but it is the reduction in the amount of heat used that will effect the greatest savings in the College coal pile," Robert Y. Sigworth, supervisor of utilities, explained. He estimated that 50 to 55 tons of coal per week could be saved if faculty and students cooperate in the conservation of power and heat.

Coal on Hand

College officials also pointed out that a fair supply of coal is on hand, but that December and January are the greatest coal consuming months. If the strike is prolonged and deliveries to the College power plant are curtailed, more stringent measures will have to be taken, they warned.

Officers Explain NROTC Function

The NROTC program at the college benefits the men enrolled in it and the Navy, agreed three naval officers stationed in the unit at the College.

Commander Charles M. Holcombe, executive officer, said, "The NROTC program is of major importance to the Navy since a great majority of the regular navy officers will be obtained from this source." Commander Holcombe reported to the College this fall after ten years at sea. He served on the Savannah in the Mediterranean campaign, and supported the Eighth Army in the advance toward Cassino.

"The Halloway Bill offers men an excellent opportunity to get a college education," said Captain Edward Cook, instructor in naval ordnance and gunnery. "Under the Halloway Bill, the government pays the NROTC men $600 a year plus tuition and books."

Captain Cook, who was promoted to Captain when he reported to the College, is a graduate of Stanford University and the Officers' Candidate School at Quantico, Va.

According to Lt. Commander Thomas C. Burly, assistant professor of naval science, "NROTC provides the Navy with excellent officers for the future."

See You Tuesday

The Daily Collegian will not be published tomorrow because of the Thanksgiving recess. The next issue will be Tuesday morning, Dec. 3.
