Common Sense Protests

Common Sense Club sent letters to radio stations WMAJ and WOR protesting renewal of Upton Close's contract which recently expired, said club president Leo Troy. AVC also protested. The groups feel that radio should present unbiased programs and term those of Upton Close as undemocratic, anti-AVC, anti-labor, anti-negro, and anti-Semitic.

Galloway Trial Near End—

When asked what the borough police chief was doing behind him at the time, Galloway said he probably "wanted to get in the picture too."

Mystery of the closed partition in Galloway's trailer was cleared when Windercrest resident Theodore W. Ashbey took the stand. Ashbey said the closet doors were closed when he came in right after the accident, but that he opened them to form a partition in which to confine the pet kittens that were running around the trailer.

Parents Testify Galloway's father and mother both took the stand and told of their visit to their son's trailer a

Book Exchange Checks

Checks are now being delivered for books that were sold by the Student Book Exchange. Jane Weigle, chairman of the Student Book Exchange, said today.

Psi Chi Elects

Frank F. Morris was named secretary-treasurer of Psi Chi, professional psychology fraternity, Tuesday night. Walter A. Fabian was elected vice-president. The president of the society is John M. Laudenslager.

week before the tragedy. Mr. Galloway said the couple got along fine and that there was no objection to the marriage.

Mrs. Galloway said the newlyweds had made extensive plans for the future.

The defense rested its case at 3:25 p.m. yesterday after presenting several of Galloway's instructors who verified that he was a "peace-loving" citizen.

Thepsians

Before the war, Thepsians used a large 14 piece band to supply the all-important music. However, starting last spring, Paul Grove's smaller augmented orchestra is used because it is easier to work with a smaller group.

Regular members of Grove's band are Joby Hess, Bunny Rottilli and Charlie Zoslaw in the saxophone department; Jack Kelly on piano; and Bud Francis on bass; Don Krebs on drums, and Grove himself playing the trumpet.

Augmenting the orchestra are George Barber, Tad Komoroski, and Fred Swingle in the violin section; and Bob Mulligan on trombone.
