ATLANTA, GEORGIA - Herman Talmadge was hanged in effigy today. More than 1200 shouting college students showed their dissatisfaction with Talmadge's assumption of the office of Governor by hanging a dummy reoresenting Talmadge from a statue of Tom Watson. Watson was a famous Georgia agricultural leader. A few hours before this demonstration. Talmage had offered to resign if his opponent, Lieutenant Governor M. E. Thompson, would do likewise. And Talmage suggested that the controversy be settled in what he called a Democratic white primary election. Talmadge suggested that negroes not be permitted to vote, in the special election.

These prices are generally 60 per cent of the original price, she reported. The five-cent fee charged the seller for each book sold is used to cover the cost of operating the book mart. Sellers will be reimbursed at the exchange after the books have been sold. The location of the exchange will be posted on bulletin boards on the campus and published in the Collegian.

In addition to Miss Weigle, the book exchange committee is composed of Gloria Lou Ness, secretary; Ann Lantz, publicity chairman; Ruth Hemler; Joanne Hobbs; Bud Stetler and Johnny Pfahl.
