WASHINGTON — General Dwight Eisenhower has made a dramatic protest against cutting Army's funds. In face of Eisenhower's protest, a Senate-House budgetary sub-committee voted for a $6 billion slash in President Truman's $37½ billion budget. Just before the final sub-committee vote, the Chief of Staff rushed to the Capitol. There he protested that any reduction of Army funds would cripple defense plans.

WASHINGTON—The National Coal Association issued a warning last night. The Association said that a new bituminous coal strike is inevitable by July first unless John L. Lewis agrees to give up the miners' welfare fund, or unless Congress passes a remedial law.

WASHINGTON—The United States delegate to the United Nations—Warren Austin—has told the Security Council for the first time in public, just why the U. S. insists that the proposed U-N arms commission must not encroach on the atomic energy commission.

Austin said that the resolution setting up the arms commission calls for information on armed forces of the United Nations. Last December, Soviet delegate Andrei Gromyko said that any such troop census should include full information on all types of armaments, including atomic weapons. This still is the view of the Soviet Union. Hence, said Austin, this is the reason the United States feels that the jurisdiction of the two commissions must be clearly defined now. The United States, Austin emphasized, will make no further concessions.

Propose Medical School

Enesco Pays Third Visit

When Georges Enesco, composer, conductor, and violinist, appears on the Artists' Course program on March 3, it will be his third appearance here, but his first since February 21, 1938.

The Roumanian composer first appeared at the College on February 11, 1937, in a joint recital with Charles Naegele, pianist. His popularity with the Artists' Course patrons prompted his return the following season. Then in 1939, Enesco made his final tour in the United States. Illness kept him in his native Roumania the following year.

The spread of the war in Europe resulted in the discontinuance of communications to Roumania and the fate of the famous violinist became a matter of international concern. Then in the Fall of 1945, Yehudi Menuhin, violinist and former pupil of Enesco, went abroad to search for him.

Menuhin, who appeared on the Artists' Course here on December 15, 1944, found his former teacher quietly composing at his country home near Bucharest.

Bedecked Equipment Continues Tests Of Sub-Soil

Orange-bedecked drill rigs, utilized for testing subterranean compositions, have produced many questioning glances from observing passersby.

Chugging away since early January, these towering rigs bring clay or limestone from various layers of the ground. From examination of these samples, it is possible to determine the suitable depth of the tested spot for constructing a foundation.

Once the one hundred or more holes have been drilled and resulting samples analyzed, plans will be furthered for the construction of Mechanical Engineering Lab wings, the Rec Hall addition, new Mineral Industries building, and a classroom structure.

Despite the cold and wind of the past several weeks and only a windbreaking canvas and nearby stove as a refuge, the thirteen workers have kept on with their drilling to stay on schedule.

Women Greeks Begin Rushing

Sororities Open Houses For Independent Coeds

Sorority open houses for all independent women will set off an informal rushing season this weekend, Florence Ratchford, Panhelnic president, said today.

The open houses are scheduled from 3 to 5 o'clock both Saturday and Sunday afternoon. All women interested in joining a sorority are urged to attend as many open houses as possible, Miss Ratchford said.

All independent women who have been on campus a full semester will be eligible for rushing. Although women who have not attained a 1 all-college average may be rushed, they may not, according to Panhel rules, be bidden.

The two open houses will be followed by a week's silent period when relations between sorority and independent women is limited to "Hello's." Free association will then be resumed and after the sixth week of this semester, bids may be mailed.

The new 50-member quota system now in effect with the Greek groups may prevent some sororities from rushing. The names of all sororities holding open houses and the places where open houses of those sororities not having houses will be held shall be announced in Friday's Collegian.

Students Hail ROTC Commandant With Bucket of Water—In 1900

By Roberta Hutchison

Back in the early 1900s the ROTC boys were a little more expressive of their feelings than they are today.

Take the matter of inspection, for instance. One morning when General William H. Hay, ROTC Commandant, entered McAllister Hall, then a dorm for men, he was immediately drenched with a bucket of water. No offense was meant by the act, and none was taken, for the General went home, changed his clothes, and calmly reported back for inspection.
