

Liebig Chemical Society Reactivates at Meeting; Ag Professors Speak

The reactivation meeting of the Liebig Chemical Society, a professional organization of students in agricultural and biological chemistry, was held in the Alpha Zeta Fraternity recently.

Speakers at the meeting, the first since 1942, were Dr. Martin Lasse, professor of biophysical chemistry, and Dr. Paul Althouse, instructor in agriculture and biological chemistry.

The next business meeting will be held March 13 with Dr. R. Adams Dutcher, head of the department of agriculture and biological chemistry, the speaker.
